Two Young Cyclists Head Toward Canada

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Two young cyclists carrying $80 apiece, 160 pounds of camping gear and a generous supply of enthusiasm, are en route to Vancouver, B. C., and way points.

"Sure, we'll make it," said Ted Ciesla. "And we're going to have as much fun as possible."

Ciesla, Pomona, and Jerry Montgomery, Santa Barbara, Cal., said they plan to pedal up the Oregon coast to Seattle, returning from Canada through Glacier National Park—a 4,000-mile trip. The intrepid bicyclists, both 22, said Monday as they left town: "We're going to depend a lot on the hospitality of friends."
