

Satellite Secrets Leaked To Russia

Convicted Spy Makes Disclosure

David Greenglass Says Rosenberg Gave Top Secrets To Russians

LEWISBURG, Pa. (AP) — Robert Morris, counsel for a Senate internal security subcommittee, said Thursday convicted atomic spy David Greenglass carried earth satellite information to the Russians in the late 1940s. Greenglass, imprisoned in the federal penitentiary here, was a brother-in-law of Rosenberg, executed in 1953 as an atomic spy. Greenglass told us that Rosenberg was stealing secrets about space platforms and atomic-powered airplanes," Morris said. Morris interviewed Greenglass and Harry Gold, also a convicted atomic spy, in the penitentiary here prior to a public hearing planned later in the day at Philadelphia.

The hour and a half interview with Greenglass and Gold, Morris said, also brought out that a Soviet agent had provided anti-missile secrets to the Russians.

Refuses To Give Identity

Morris declined to identify the agent but said he would do so during the hearing.

Morris placed particular emphasis on what he said was a Russian demand on Gold that Gold's espionage efforts go into actual processes rather than theories.

"Gold told us that the Soviet kept hammering at him to get scientific secrets from us," the Senate subcommittee counsel said. He said Gold quoted his Soviet boss as saying:

"We (Russia) can do it ourselves but we haven't the time. You, by obtaining this information, save us time."

Morris said both Greenglass and Gold cited specific instances in which information on U.S. projects was turned over to the Russians.

Morris said questions covered whether or not secrets were passed to Russia on atom-powered airplanes, anti-missile missiles and earth satellites.

"I will turn over whatever information I get to the committee at Philadelphia this afternoon," Morris said before starting the questioning.

Morris and Sen. Butler (R-Md.) planned a public hearing of the subcommittee in Philadelphia where seven witnesses were scheduled to testify on communism in that area.

He said the first witness would be a former Soviet colonel who worked with the Russian secret police in the American zone of Germany after World War II and who is now an American citizen.

Homemade Rat Trap Is Skunk's Undoing

An odoriferous corpse was left on Henry Easton's hands Wednesday after Roseburg police answered his call for assistance.

A patrolman answered a call to the Easton residence at 362 SE Rose St. where a skunk was reportedly trapped. Sure enough, the striped animal was in a homemade rat trap which Easton had set.

The skunk, unhappy about his confinement in the cage-like trap, was given the coup de grace with a bullet from the policeman's revolver.

In his report the officer wrote, "... the complainant stated he would bury the animal as soon as it was possible to get close enough to him."

Mayors making the proclamation were Ed Oaks of Canyonville, Otto Griffith of Riddle and J. D. Groom of Myrtle Creek.

To further publicize the event, program chairman Robert Adams, accompanied by two J. C. Ellis, Mrs. Blake Hardy and Mrs. Gordon Sikes, will appear on the Red Reynolds show Friday afternoon at 4:45 over television station KPIC.

Subcommittee's Report Delayed Until Dec. 4

A scheduled report on findings of a subcommittee headed by Jack Gamet was replaced Wednesday night by a general discussion during the regular meeting of the Roseburg School District's Evaluation Steering Committee.

The report by Gamet's supervisory subcommittee probably will take place Dec. 4 at the next regular committee meeting. No meeting will be held next week because of the Thanksgiving holiday.

Also slated for the Dec. 4 session is a report on findings of Mrs. A. G. McLean's administration subcommittee, by George Luoma.

Cloverdale Rehabilitation Starts

Contractors Start On Sewer, Street Work

The first job in about $284,000 of improvements to the Cloverdale district of North Roseburg was started today.

J. R. McAllister's men made the first cut in the lower end of a comprehensive system of storm sewers which eventually will drain the area of some 170 homes of excess surface water during the rainy winter months.

Before the winter is over, it is anticipated, the storm sewer will be in and 1.75 miles of regraded and new-surfaced streets will have been completed.

McAllister entered the low bid of about $74,000 for putting in the storm sewers, and Roseburg Paving Co. soon will start its $210,000 job of street improvements.

The two hold commitments from the Federal Housing Authority for the jobs. Formal announcement of the contracts will be made soon, according to Peter B. Serafin, manager of about 130 homes now owned by the Federal National Mortgage Assn., a subsidiary of FHA.

Won Titles

The FNMA won titles to the homes through foreclosure proceedings the past two years in U. S. District Court in Portland. Actually, about 17 of the homes still are in the year's redemption period in which original purchasers from Roseburg Homes, Inc., may pay back payments on the properties and retain possession. But that isn't likely.

The storm sewer project included:

Dulles Predicts NATO Would Fight Upon Provocation

CHICAGO (AP) — Secretary of State Dulles says that forces of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization would "almost certainly fight back" without waiting for a declaration of war if attacked in the field.

Dulles told newsmen last night such a decision would be made on the spot by field commanders. He said the attack "almost certainly would involve American troops because the NATO forces are so intermingled."

Insanity Plea Entered By Gein To Murders

WAUTOMA, Wis. (AP) — Edward Gein, admitted butcher-slayer of a middle-aged business woman, pleaded innocent by reason of insanity when arraigned Thursday on a charge of first degree murder. He was ordered held without bond for trial in circuit court.

Waushara County Judge Boyd Clark, after accepting the plea, found "probable cause" that the crime had been committed and that the 51-year old bachelor farmer should be held for trial.

The farmer-handyman is accused of the premeditated killing of Mrs. Bernice Worden, whose mutilated body was found hanging by the heels from a rafter in Gein's farm home last Saturday night. Gein also is charged with robbing her hardware store.

Gein's attorney waived preliminary hearing.

To Check Sanity

The case now goes before Circuit Judge Herbert A. Bunde who will decide whether Gein is sane and capable of standing trial or is insane and should be committed to the Central State Hospital at Waupun State Prison without standing trial for murder.

Gein also has admitted the fatal shooting of Mrs. Mary Hogan, 54, a tavern keeper in adjoining Portage County. The admission of the second slaying was the result of lie detector examination at Madison Wednesday.

Gein's arrest followed the discovery of Mrs. Worden's mutilated

Larger Housewives' Group To Demand Highway 42 Work

When 72 women, "Housewives for improvement of Highway 42," visited Gov. Robert Holmes recently, seeking improvement of the highway between Winston and Coos Bay, they were told by the governor that they were the "largest delegation ever to storm the state capitol."

"Wait until Gov. Holmes sees our delegation Dec. 6," says Mrs. Jean Nichols, Winston, chairman of the Douglas County section of the women's organization.

Mrs. Nichols reports that plans are being made to take a delegation of approximately 250 women to Portland to meet with the Oregon State Highway Commission.

The women will be housewives from Coquille, Myrtle Point, Remote, Camas Valley, Tenville, Winston and intermediate points along the highway.

Will Make Point

"We will point out that we live on the worst stretch of primary road in Oregon, with the least improvement for the amount of population served and the volume of traffic carried," said Mrs. Nichols.

"Our principal argument is that buses from six school districts use this highway and that the lives of our children are endangered, particularly in bad weather and when intermingled with log trucks."

The women will urge that the road be widened and straightened wherever possible and that a program of improvement be carried out from year to year to make the road more suitable for the traffic it carries now and may be expected to carry in the future.

Excellent response is being obtained from the housewives contacted, Mrs. Nichols reports, and she believes the goal of at least 250 women pledged to make the trip will be reached with ease.

Sputnik's Rocket To Make Its Swan Song Next Week

CAMBRIDGE, Mass. (AP) — The rocket that launched Russia's Sputnik I will be making its evening swan song over the United States next week, the Smithsonian Astrophysical Observatory said Thursday.

The rocket and possibly Sputnik I should be visible over most of the country on successive passes in the evening twilight.

The following week the rocket should be visible for a few days in the morning before sunrise. The Smithsonian predicts the rocket will make its flaming death plunge within three days, either way, of Dec. 11 so the predicted appearances are expected to be the last in which the satellite will be visible in the United States.

Next Monday the rocket is due to make a first passage starting at approximately 3:40 p. m. (PST) in the Chicago area and passing out of the United States over Atlanta, Ga., four minutes later.

Over Portland On Tuesday the third passage that day will begin in the Portland, Ore., area at 5:30 p. m. PST, ending near Phoenix, Ariz., five minutes later.

The third passage on Wednesday will begin at 8:25 p. m. PST about 20 miles off the West Coast and should be visible far in the western sky to West Coast residents.

Dr. Charles Whitney, Smithsonian astrophysicist, said the rocket-satellite would be about 250 miles high in its passages overhead. Its minimum height, he estimated, is approximately 120 miles and its maximum 325 miles above the earth.

This is a decrease since the launching Oct. 4 in Russia of approximately 260 miles in its maximum height and 15 miles in its minimum.

Sputnik II the dog-carrying satellite, is still out of sight for viewers except in the Far North and Far South. It should be visible in the twilight in the United States early in December, the observatory said.

Two AWOL Servicemen Held For Authorities

Two servicemen who reportedly admitted being AWOL were arrested by state police early today and are being held in the Douglas County jail for military authorities.

PARK CASUALTY — Probably the first traffic accident to happen in the big city park near the Veterans Hospital took place Wednesday morning. The driver of this Armour's truck-trailer lost his bearings while delivering produce to the hospital and drove into the park. The trailer tipped over on the soft shoulder of the road, carrying the truck with it. Damage was minor. The produce was transferred to other trucks. (Paul Jenkins)

TRAPPED in this car after the brakes failed coming off the "China Wall" were two Roseburg women. Roseburg police summoned to the scene Wednesday kept the teetering vehicle from completing its roll and lifted the occupants through the topside door. Neither of the women was injured. The driver, Mrs. Edna Kluber, 980 NE Alameda Ave., told officers she was headed west on Northeast Klamath Avenue and as she started down the hill, the brakes failed. Mrs. Kluber said she used the emergency brake but it wouldn't hold the car so she steered into the bank. This caused the 1951 vehicle to tip over. Riding with Mrs. Kluber was Ethel Heacathorn, 224 SE Jackson St. (Roseburg Police Dept.)

Remember GI William Girard? A Japanese court has found him guilty of manslaughter in the case of a Japanese woman who was scavenging for scrap brass (empty cartridge cases) on an army firing range in Japan. He was given a three-year sentence, which the judge suspended.

If there is no appeal, the case—which created quite a furore—will be ended. The verdict seems lenient and tolerant. Probably no one suspects Girard of firing deliberately at the Japanese woman, but considering all the evidence that came out it certainly does look like he was awfully careless with a shooting iron.

Speaking at a potluck dinner for Marion County Democrats at Silverton, Oregon's Senator Neuberger told his hearers that "too much of the government's agricultural benefit payments go to big one-crop farmers in Mid-West and Southern states rather than to average farmers all over the nation."

He criticized what he termed the absurd practice of subsidizing such a crop as tobacco while farmers growing nutritious products such as eggs, fruit and vegetables go without any federal supports whatever. He said he hopes greater stress will be placed on a "really far-reaching agricultural policy" designed to protect the diversified family farm against economic and natural disasters.

In Oregon, he added, about two-thirds of farm income comes from commodities with NO supports.
