South Facing Greatest Conflict, Says Eastland

NEW ORLEANS (AP)—Sen. James Eastland (D-Miss) says the South faces its greatest domestic conflict since 1860 because of what he called the Communist-inspired and Communist-directed integration issue.

Eastland and Gov. Marvin Griffin of Georgia spoke Monday night at a rally of the pro-segregation Citizens Council.

Integrationists, said Eastland, wage their fight one state at a time and are presently most active in Louisiana and Virginia.

"But the flag is still flying in Louisiana," he said, "and 20 years from now the white culture will still be supreme."

Griffin said President Eisenhower would never force school integration with federal troops in Georgia.

"The President," Griffin said, "or no one else will ever march streets of Georgia down the street. If federal troops are ever brought in, they'll walk up and down in front of an empty school house."

Bishop Carman To Confirm Sunday At Episcopal Church

The Rt. Rev. James W. F. Carman, bishop coadjutor of the Diocese of Oregon, will be at St. George's Episcopal Church, Roseburg, to administer the sacrament of Confirmation Sunday, at both the Sunday school and the late services.

A class of children will be presented at the Sunday school service by the Rev. Alfred S. Tyson, rector of the parish, and a class of adults will be presented at the later service, which will begin at 11:30 a.m. instead of the usual time of 11.

A reception will be held in the parish house honoring the new members of the church as well as the bishop. Arrangements are being made under the direction of Mrs. Ray Casebeer, and it will be held about 12:30. This will be the second Confirmation visit of Bishop Carman to St. George's, and the seventeenth class prepared and presented by the present rector. At 4 p.m. Bishop Carman will go to Sutherlin to confirm a class to be presented by the Rev. Albert E. Renter, vicar of the Church of the Holy Spirit in Sutherlin.

Aluminum Use In United States To Double By '65

WASHINGTON (AP)—The United States will be using 10 billion pounds of aluminum a year by 1965, compared to a current annual rate of less than half that, an aluminum company official said Monday.

Joseph H. McConnell, general counsel for Reynolds Metals Co., told a House Small Business subcommittee that annual U.S. aluminum consumption probably will reach 6,800,000,000 pounds by 1960.

In a prepared statement, McConnell said there is no present shortage of aluminum, and that small, medium and big business can get all they need.

"The reason," McConnell said, "is not to be found in any sudden drop in consumption, but rather in the steady and substantial increase in supply."

He said the total U.S. aluminum supply "has increased from 2,400,000,000 pounds in 1950 to 4,670,000,000 pounds today, a jump of 95 per cent."

McConnell said peacetime uses account for more than 90 per cent of present consumption.

Seventeen of the 33 presidents of the United States visited Newport, R.I. while holding office.

Drop Opposition To Negotiations With Reds, Advice

LONDON (AP)—George F. Kennan urged the Western Allies last night to abandon opposition to bilateral negotiations with the Russians.

"Coalitions are poor negotiators, particularly when anything positive is to be achieved," said the leading American expert on Soviet affairs in the second of a lecture series he is giving over the British Broadcasting Corp.

The United States, Britain and France have steadfastly rejected Soviet suggestions for U.S.-Russian talks on major world issues. The British and French fear such bilateral negotiations would force them into the back seat.

"I am sure the people of the world would prefer that we make some sort of progress privately rather than that we continue to get nowhere in a series of sterile public demonstrations of Atlantic unity," said Kennan, the former U.S. ambassador to Moscow and author of the West's containment policy.

Potato Council Wants Better Picture Of Stock

WASHINGTON (AP)—The National Potato Council sought means Wednesday of obtaining a more accurate picture of national potato stocks during marketing seasons.

This and reestablishing the popularity of potatoes on the American dinner table were among problems before the ninth annual meeting of the grower association.

Officials said there is great need for more reliable and faster distribution of information concerning movement of potatoes to market and to diversion programs, and about the quantity in stock on farms.

Council Executive Director A.E. Merker said the Agriculture Department's crop reporting board does good work in its monthly crop forecasts, but that for orderly marketing procedures the producers need more knowledge on the actual movement of their produce in trade.

He said the council hopes at this session to evolve methods of providing such information, possibly on a weekly basis. He said distribution of the information obtained probably would be through trade journals and the Agriculture Department's fresh fruits and vegetables division.

The council voted Tuesday to instruct its policy committee, headed by Ted Still, Monte Vista, Colo., to draft a resolution opposing further futures trading in potatoes on the New York Mercantile Exchange. Growers have contended such futures trading can be used to fix or manipulate prices. Proponents of futures trading argue that it permits growers to hedge against losses.

Secretary of Agriculture Benson will address Thursday's final luncheon session.

Gov. Faubus Won't Order Protection In Schools

SHREVEPORT, La. (AP)—Gov. Orval Faubus of Arkansas says he will not order state police or National Guardsmen in Arkansas to guard anyone in school.

However, the governor said, Arkansas National Guardsmen will have to carry out federal integration enforcement orders or "they will be court-martialed at the drop of a hat."

Faubus told the Shreveport News Club the planned withdrawal of federal troops from Central High School at Little Rock was unfair to guardsmen who will be left with what he called the distasteful task of enforcement.
