LOTUS KNIGHT PORTER

SATURDAY, DECEMBER 7, 1957

—The News-Review, Roseburg, Ore. 5

ALBERT MOW is keenly sensitive to the beauty of the region of his home, which he has captured in the landscapes painted in his leisure time. He was born in Argos, Ind., and has worked in the lumber industry, factories and as a commercial fisherman. He studied painting at the Otis Art Institute in Los Angeles. Mr. Mow has also written a book entitled, "Man, Save Thyself." Copies of the book are also on display in the multi-purpose room.
