

Assistant DA Quits; Denies Knowledge About Payoff

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn. — three-year prison term for receiving and concealing stolen property. Harold E. Brown, who admitted passing $1,000 to Judge Raulston Schoolfield but insisted that if a payoff was involved it was "unknown" to him, Thursday resigned as asst. Hamilton County dist. attorney general.

Brown said he was asked to resign in a letter from his superior, Dist. Atty. Gen. W. Corry Smith. He said Smith informed him the resignation would be "advisable" in view of recent testimony before the Senate Rackets Investigating Committee in Washington.

Brown, named an assistant to Smith in March, 1956, would say nothing more than that he was resigning and that he was going back to general law practice.

The prosecutor was questioned in Washington in the case of James Spence Galloway, Chattanooga, service station operator who was paroled in 1954 by Schoolfield after being sentenced to a

Innocent Carrier

Brown told the committee he accepted the money from Sam C. Jones, a bondsman, who testified earlier that he got it from Galloway. Brown said he then gave the $1,000 to Schoolfield in the belief it was to help the judge's unsuccessful attempt in 1954 to win the Democratic nomination for governor.

Brown termed himself an "innocent carrier."

Brown was a former foreman of the Hamilton County grand jury, appointed by Schoolfield who has long jurisdiction in selection of grand jurors and naming of the foreman.

Schoolfield denied last week in a radio-television talk here and in Nashville that he ever took a bribe and called the Washington testimony part of a plot to destroy him politically. So far he has ignored committee invitations to testify under oath in reply to the allegations.

The committee also took testimony that $20,000 was passed to fix a violence conspiracy case against 13 members and officers of the Teamsters Union here.

Judge Reluctantly Throws Out Case Against Jencks

EL PASO, Tex. — U.S. Dist. Judge R. E. Thomson dismissed, "with regret," Tuesday the government's case against Clinton E. Jencks.

The judge granted the Justice Department's request to drop the case against the former union official, but declared he still thinks Jencks is guilty of the charges against him.

Jencks was once convicted of filing a false affidavit with the National Labor Relations Board stating he was not a Communist.

At the time he signed the affidavit he was president of Local 890 of the International Union of Mine, Mill and Smelter Workers (Independent) in the silver city area of New Mexico.

Asked Case's Dismissal

The Justice Department asked that the celebrated case be dismissed for the reason that "on the available evidence, the government cannot successfully retry this defendant and therefore is reluctantly constrained to make this motion to dismiss the indictment pending against him."

Although no mention was made of this factor, federal sources have made it plain that the real reason behind the motion to dismiss was reluctance of the Justice Department to compel the Federal Bureau of Investigation to open its confidential files to defense attorneys.

Acting on an appeal from the conviction, the Supreme Court early this year had ordered a new trial. The court held that certain FBI reports on witnesses who appeared at the trial should have been made available to the defense for use in cross-examination. Americans Buy Record Amount Of Insurance

NEW YORK — Americans bought a record $6.5 billion dollars worth of new life insurance in 1957, the Institute of Life Insurance reported Tuesday.

This represented a gain of 11 billion dollars over 1956 purchases. Group insurance accounted for 14 billion of the 1957 total. This year, Americans carried 456 billion dollars of life insurance. This, the Institute said, averages about $8,300 per family and indicates there is "room for material expansion beyond even the present high level."

Pro-Communist Conference Ends

CAIRO, Egypt — Delegates to the first unofficial Asian-African People's Conference headed home today with a wide range of propaganda resolutions, many of them parroting the Communist line.

The 42 nations and colonies at the weeklong conference which ended were not represented by official government spokesmen, but by 400 leaders of groups which in many cases are frowned on or outlawed at home.

A chief event of the conference was a Soviet offer of economic aid to all Asian and African countries. A last-minute attempt to delete President Eisenhower's name from a resolution attacking the Eisenhower Doctrine and the Baghdad Pact failed at the final plenary session.

Instead of using Eisenhower's name, Al el Bahawan, mayor of Tunis, proposed a reference to the "U.S. doctrine of power vacuum," an Egyptian propaganda phrase based on the charge that the American policy seeks to replace waning British and French influence in the Middle East.

Bahawan was backed by Lt. Col. Anwar Sadat of Egypt and Dr. P. N. Singh of India. Singh, who has conceded that the conference followed a line friendly to the Communists because the delegates had no experience with Soviet domination, was instrumental in toning down other anti-Western resolutions.

Martha Dodd Stern Praises Red Party Chief Khrushchev

By ROY ESSOYAN

MOSCOW — Martha Dodd Stern praised Communist Party chief Nikita Khrushchev and his central committee Thursday for "easing tensions and establishing an atmosphere of trust" in the Soviet Union.

Mrs. Stern is the daughter of the late William E. Dodd, U.S. ambassador to Germany from 1933-38, and the wife of Alfred K. Stern, former investment broker. The Sterns are under indictment in New York on spy charges. They flew to Europe from Mexico last July and later turned up in Prague, where they said they were victims of a U.S. campaign of "vilification and slander."

Mrs. Stern wrote a glowing account of her impressions of Moscow in the weekly Soviet political journal New Times. She said that she attended the big parade in Red Square on Nov. 7, the 40th anniversary of the Bolshevik Revolution, and indicated she was still in Moscow at least through mid-December.

Impressions Favorable

Her impressions of Moscow, after an absence of 20 years, were almost altogether favorable. She praised Moscow's "broad architecture as 'exceptionally rich' and its new housing as 'modern and well-planned.' She said the Soviet capital's 'broad boulevards give the impression of cleanliness and happiness.'

She said food is abundant and prices low in stores packed with quality goods — a statement that might be questioned by other Westerners. The Soviet automobile, she said, is sturdy and well-built and the cost is about the same as U.S. cars.

Tito Has Successfully Completed Treatment

BELGRADE — The Yugoslav news agency announced this week that President Tito has "successfully completed medical treatment" and his doctors consider his health completely satisfactory.

The report by the official Tanjug agency did not identify Tito's ailment. The government announced last November that the president could not attend the Soviet Union's 40th anniversary celebration because he was suffering from acute lumbago.

Tanjug said Tito had been treated at his Brioni Island retreat and now would spend "a certain time" in Slovenia, the northwestern Yugoslav republic.

BURNED BY FLARE

PORTLAND — Lloyd Miller, 33, Portland, told police a lighted flare was shoved in his face by one of three youths who ran to his car when it stopped at a traffic signal here Wednesday.

Miller was treated for burns on his face and neck.

PORTLAND'S FIRST BABY

PORTLAND — A girl born to Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Wilson Wednesday was Portland's first baby of 1958. The 8-pound, 8-ounce girl arrived just 15 seconds after the new year began. The couple has four other children.

ANTIQUE HEAT

The pot-bellied stove has come to rest in the antique shop for a very good reason. Radiant heat... the principle that made it work (such as it worked)... is simply inefficient. And it's just as inefficient in the "modern" heating system as it was in the old pot-bellied stove.

AIR—WHEN HEATED—RISES. This simple physical law explains why any heating system which does not force heat from its natural path must excessively overheat the ceiling to provide the desired temperature in the "living zone."

It's easy to see why the silent, turbo-circulated heat of THERMADOR has proved to be the most efficient method of producing comfortable, "economical" electric heat. THERMADOR gently moves the heated air across the room at floor level — prevents heat from piling up on the ceiling where it's wasted.
