

U. S. Scientists Speculate On Man-Carrying Sputnik, Speed Of Parachute Fall

Boston — Scientists say the man-carrying rocket which the Russians shot into the air probably reached the 186-mile mark in five minutes.

They added Monday night that a descent by parachute from that height would take half to three-quarters of an hour.

Dr. John S. Rinehart, associate director of the Smithsonian Astrophysical Observatory in Cambridge, said that if reports are true the Russian space-traveler probably used a series of parachutes for the descent.

He added: "I probably let himself free-fall a large part of the way down at first to get out of the bitter cold and conserve his oxygen supply."

"He probably opened small parachutes at first to slow down, then a large one for a safe landing."

Metal Parachute

Another scientist, engaged in laboratory research on getting a space vehicle back down through the atmosphere, said the parachute employed could not be of nylon or other textile, but would have to be of metal.

Asking not to be quoted directly, he said the parachute would have to be of metal and mechanically opened and would have to be 50 to 75 feet in diameter. There would be very high heating and very great deceleration, he added.

He said also the man rocketed to such a height would have to be sealed in a capsule since there would be no oxygen at 186 miles.

Dr. Rinehart said that putting a man to a height of 186 miles was much less a problem, in terms of the rocket power needed, than to launch a satellite of a man's weight.

He explained it as follows:

Fall Back By Gravity

The rocket with its man passenger only needed to reach the desired height and fall back to earth by gravity. To become a satellite the rocket would not only have to attain height enough to be above most of the friction of the earth's atmosphere, but it would have to attain a velocity of upwards of 18,000 miles an hour in a direction parallel to the surface of the earth to resist the pull of gravity.

Dr. Rinehart also said: "The Russians probably shot the rocket straight up, and the man bailed out when the rocket slowed down at the top of its flight."

"The acceleration was probably not much more than that from the jet launching of an airplane, between six and 12 times the acceleration of gravity."

"This means that while the rocket gained velocity a man would feel up to 12 times his normal weight."

Displaced Persons Head Back Home After Floods Recede

EDINBURG, Tex. — Rough seas battered the lower Texas Gulf Coast today while hundreds of persons displaced by the worst floods in three years started back to sudden homes.

More than 250 persons still were displaced by high water here, although the flood tide from five days of heavy rains was slowly receding.

"We hope to go back to our home today," said Andres Arevalo, 42, a plumber's helper. He evacuated his family of 15 when murky floodwaters began lapping at the door of his home.

"We have been here two nights. The children seem to enjoy it, but we want to return to our home," he said, sipping coffee in a Red Cross shelter at an elementary school.

In the next room, an expectant mother calmly awaited her eighth child, expected at any time.

"We don't want to be any trouble," said Mrs. Fred Flores. She motioned for her eldest to round up younger brothers and sisters watching television in the auditorium.

points of all persons interested in these problems, and is endeavoring, by holding meetings in all principal towns, to make it easy for the public to be heard. Frank and constructive information is wanted, he said.

When the meetings have all been held, the committee will prepare a report to be submitted to the governor and the next Legislative Assembly.

In order that facts and opinions developed during previous interim studies may be incorporated into the report to be prepared by the current committee, a member of the preceding study group has been invited into participation, Kelsay reports.

Amacher To Attend

John P. Amacher, former representative from Douglas County, who for two years directed interim studies into salmon fisheries and other factors of the fish and game problem, has accepted an invitation by the committee to sit in with the present committee, and will attend some of the hearings in Western Oregon, Kelsay said.

The committee, it was announced, also plans to attend the annual meeting of the Oregon Wildlife Federation in Corvallis, Feb. 17 and 18, to obtain recommendations from that organization.

Johnson Says Congress Faces Vital Decisions

WASHINGTON — Sen. Lyndon B. Johnson (D-Tex.) said Tuesday the pending Congress faces decisions that may determine who gains "total control over the earth for... tyranny or the service of freedom."

"The peril of the hour is obvious," he said.

Johnson is a Democratic leader and chairman of the preparedness subcommittee which has been probing into the status of the nation's missile and rockets programs, said Russia's leaders have made space control "a first aim of national policy."

In remarks prepared for a caucus of Democratic senators meeting just ahead of the formal opening of the new congressional session, Johnson said U.S. leaders have followed a different course. "Some dismiss the Sputniks as playthings," he continued, adding that Congress must decide "which nation is correct."

"The ground beneath us when we last met has been, largely, swept away. How much is gone, how much remains are questions no man can answer with authority."

In advance of the caucus, Johnson demanded that the Army answer testimony from Lt. Gen. James M. Gavin, chief of Army research and development, that his expected program was not tracked after he spoke out against Pentagon missile policy.

Gavin disclosed over the weekend he had asked to be retired from the Army effective March 31 so as to be free to recommend, to apply creative thinking to national defense.

Johnson said the Senate Preparedness subcommittee, of which he is chairman, will question Secretary of the Army Brucker later this week to "establish the facts."

"It is a matter of serious concern to us that there be even a hint of reprisal against any witness that appears before us," Johnson, the Senate majority leader, told reporters.

Edward Austin Miller Succumbs In Hospital

Edward Austin Miller, 77, of 117 W. Nell Ave., Roseburg, died today at a local hospital.

Born in Rockport, Mo., on Aug. 30, 1880, he later moved to Nebraska, where he spent most of his life. He came to Roseburg in 1929 after a short stay in California. He was a member of the Methodist Church and a Harlan Masonic Lodge, Alma, Neb.

Surviving are four children, Mrs. Burril (Mildred) Brown, South Dakota; Hal G. and Robert B. Miller, both of Sacramento, Calif.; and Lee O. Miller, Roseburg; a sister, Mrs. Blanche DeWitt, Nebraska; a brother, Claude Miller, Los Angeles, and five grandchildren.

Funeral services will be held in the chapel of Long and Orr Mortuary Thursday at 11 a.m., with the Rev. H. James Jenkins of the First Methodist officiating. The Roseburg Masonic Lodge will conduct ritualistic services. Concluding services and interment will be in the Roseburg cemetery.

Thompson Says Foes Took Wrong Steps In Protest

order which Thompson is appealing.

Thompson's brief contends that the court overstepped its bounds in making such an appointment. He further maintains that the proper course of action for Richmond would have been to resort to the declaratory judgment statute and cite an Oregon case in which the supreme court "specifically stated that a declaratory judgment was to be sought to determine a person's right to office in lieu of the proceeding under the 'quo warranto' statute under the 'quo warranto' statute."

His brief makes four points in the argument:

1. The judgment which is denominated as an order herein determines substantive rights as distinguished from procedure, and has no statutory or common-law basis.
2. Even if the judgment, which is denominated an order herein were procedural, there is no basis for it since there is available procedure to determine the right of a person to office.
3. Only a district attorney may bring an action in the nature of a quo warranto proceedings in Oregon.
4. The court is intruding on the power of the legislature by entering its judgment beyond its jurisdiction.

In the normal course of events, Thompson will have completed his term of office before the supreme court acts on the appeal. There is a backlog of about 2 1/2 years of cases, he said in releasing his brief.

Youth Dies Of Fumes In Chemical Experiment

VANCOUVER, B.C. — David Horsfall, 17-year-old rocket fan, died early Tuesday after being overcome by chemical fumes at his home Monday.

He was taken to the hospital when found unconscious by his father at the Horsfall home.

Described as a keen student of chemistry, the youth had been experimenting in the kitchen.

Mrs. Horsfall said the house was "full of fumes." She said she took her son outside and called for an inhalator. The youth was unable to tell his parents what had happened.

Mrs. Horsfall said her son was keenly interested in rockets and had bought his own materials at drug stores. "Although I tried to discourage him,"

Eisenhower, Other Top Officials Pray For World Peace

WASHINGTON — President Eisenhower and other government officials prayed for enduring world peace at a special church service Tuesday marking the reconvening of Congress.

The 8 a.m. service of intercession and Holy Communion was at the National Presbyterian Church, where the President is a member.

He was served Holy Communion by Secretary of State Dulles, an elder of the church.

In addition to Eisenhower, the congregation included Vice President Nixon, Cabinet members and other high administration officials, and several members of Congress.

Eisenhower bowed his head as the congregation prayed for his guidance in these critical times.

"Let goodness and mercy follow him all his days," prayed the pastor, the Rev. Edward L.R. Elson.

There was a prayer, too, that "justice and freedom may become a reality," and that government officials be granted the wisdom to solve their problems.

The service was photographed by photographers asked the President to halt briefly with Nixon on the church steps for a picture.

Smiling impatiently, Eisenhower agreed but told the cameramen: "Come on, let's hurry up. We've got some work to do."

Congress Opens Today With Eye On Rocket Race

don B. Johnson of Texas in an address to a meeting of all senators of his party shortly before the opening of the new session.

Gravely, Johnson said the future of world civilization may rest upon the decisions reached in this session.

"The urgent race we are now in— which we must enter—is not to perfect long range ballistic missiles," Johnson said.

"There is something more important than any ultimate weapon. That is the ultimate position— the position of total control over earth that lies somewhere out in space."

Along with the efforts to do something about the state of U.S. rocketry, the session promises to develop much attempted blame-gaming of the country's having fallen behind Russia.

This is in the nature of politics, particularly in a year when all seats in the House and one-third of those in the Senate will be up for contests.

Speaker Rayburn (D-Tex.) told news conference he expects "a very heavy session and one of considerable controversy."

He commented:

People Disturbed

"The people in general are pretty disturbed, and I might say unhappy, about things that are happening in the world. They were greatly humiliated when Russia got the jump on us in outer space."

Rayburn banged his gavel in the House promptly at noon to launch the session. About 300 members were on the floor.

In the Senate, Vice President Nixon similarly put that chamber into session on the dot of time.

At 10 a.m. Nixon's gavel banged again for a recess until noon Thursday. The brief interval was given chiefly to a roll call, conducted amid much stirring on the floor where senators were hand shaking and back slapping welcomes to each other.

Ninety Senators Present

Ninety senators answered the roll call. Absent were GOP Sens. Bridges of New Hampshire, Morton of Kentucky, and Martin of Pennsylvania, all reported sick; Watkins of Utah, who had business in his home state, and Case of New Jersey who was delayed in getting back from a trip to South America.

On the Democratic side, Sen. Kerr of Oklahoma was absent. He has a speaking engagement.

Senate GOP leader Knowland of California reported after a conference with the President that he got the impression Eisenhower is convinced the current year will be better from the standpoint of business generally than last year.

In reply to questions, Knowland told a news conference at the White House he and the President were thinking of both the 1958 calendar year and the fiscal year commencing July 1, as compared with the current fiscal year and the 1957 calendar year.

Responding to another question, Knowland said Eisenhower is confident of a better 1958, from an economic standpoint, despite the current business recession.

The senator left no doubt that the President looks for a business upswing in the months ahead.

Their conference came just in advance of the noon opening of the second session of the 85th Congress in which the nation's defenses are marked for top priority.

One Killed, One Injured As Plane Forced To Land

MIAMI, Fla. — An Air Force stratotanker plane made a forced landing in the Everglades Tuesday 20 miles west of here killing one crew member and critically injuring another.

Four other crewmen parachuted safely and walked to a cement plant just off the Tamiami Trail, the east-west highway across the Everglades.

A Homestead Air Force Base spokesman described the accident as a forced or emergency landing rather than a crash. The Florida Highway Patrol reported the plane ran out of fuel and was unable to reach an airport after being warned away from the Homestead field because of weather conditions.

The Air Force said the plane was on a routine training mission.

A Coast Guard search party found the airplane at about 7:30 a.m. saw the two crew members and left to get a doctor who arrived half an hour later in an airplane — a small vessel powered by an airplane engine and used for transportation in the swampy Everglades.

The names of the injured men and the dead crew member were withheld temporarily.

Those who parachuted were: Lt. George P. Dedes, pilot, Albany, N.Y.; 1st Lt. Ronald E. Comley, navigator, Reading, Pa.; M. Sgt. Robert F. Eisse, engineer and technician, Philadelphia; M. Sgt. Letcher R. Stallings, boom operator, Hobbsville, N.C.

Porter Predicts No Funds Available For Green Peter

WASHINGTON — Rep. Porter (D-Ore.) predicted Tuesday President Eisenhower will not ask Congress to appropriate money this year to start construction of Green Peter Dam.

Army Engineers have advised the Oregon congressional delegation they could use as much as two million dollars on the South Santiam River project in the year beginning July 1, including $310,000 to complete pre-construction planning.

Porter said he expects the budget, to be sent to Congress next Monday, to include the planning money but to ask nothing for actual construction.

Basis For Conclusion

He said he based his conclusion on a letter from Jack Z. Anderson, administrative assistant to the President, which stated in part:

"As a general rule, projects are considered for inclusion in the President's budget recommendations as new construction money would be considered by the Bureau of the Budget," Anderson concluded.

"Of course, any final decisions concerning the level of financing for this and other civil works projects must be made in the light of the over-all fiscal situation."

Porter said he was "Reluctantly forced to conclude" that Anderson was saying, in effect, that the budget will not contain construction money for the $9 million dollar flood control and power project.

The Oregon congressman said Army Engineers last year asked Budget Bureau approval for $500,000 to complete Green Peter planning but were given $225,000.

Porter said there is urgent need for a start on Green Peter because completion of Detroit Dam on the North Santiam has created flood problems at the juncture of the two forks.

Taxi 'Borrower' Jailed, Fined For Drunk Driving

John W. Lybrand, 33, Ashland, who was accused of "borrowing" a taxicab and zipping around the city, pleaded guilty Monday to drunk driving.

Lybrand was sentenced to five days in jail and was fined $100 on the driving count by Municipal Judge Randolph Slocum. For not having an operator's license, he was fined $20. Unable to pay the fines, Lybrand will remain in jail.

Still hanging over his head is a possible charge of taking and using an auto without consent of the owner — in this case Truman Ellis, operator of Ellis Cabs. Thus far, a formal complaint has not been issued.

Lybrand was arrested by Roseburg police Saturday night after a chase by a patrol car. He was finally forced to a halt at which time a call came from headquarters alerting officers to watch for a missing cab.

Roseburg Man Denies Immoral Conduct

Atty. William Jones appeared in municipal court today to enter a plea of innocent for his client, Richard Celand Grant, 43, accused of indecent exposure.

Grant, who lives at 1236 SE Mill St., was arrested Monday on a complaint signed by a Roseburg woman. She charged that on Sunday as she was walking at S.E. Jackson and Douglas streets, a man driving a green station wagon exposed himself to her.

The complainant furnished Roseburg police with the license number of the car allegedly driven by the man. With this information Grant was arrested.

Judge Randolph Slocum set the date of trial as May 28.

Catholic Ban Issued Against Bingo And Raffles

PORTLAND — An end to bingo and raffles in all parishes of the Catholic archdiocese of Portland — embracing all of Western Oregon — has been ordered by Archbishop Edward D. Howard.

In 1955 the archbishop recommended that parishes discontinue the games and raffles which have been used to raise money. Recently he directed that this be done and as a consequence congregations have been notified that such activities are being discontinued.

A spokesman at the chancery office said Monday that parishes already have set up plans for regular dinners or food sales to replace the lost income, or in some cases may ask increased regular contributions.

The Rev. Martin Thiel, superintendent of diocesan schools, said the games had not been a major source of income and discontinuance should not result in any curtailment of school activities.

Penguin Dies In San Diego Of Aspergillosis

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Aspergillosis, a fungus disease of the lungs, has claimed the life of another of the 67 penguins brought to this country last month from the Antarctic.

The latest victim died at San Diego Saturday, raising the toll to 16. So far the disease has killed 10 of the birds at Portland, 2 at Vancouver, B.C., 2 at Baltimore and 1 at New York.

A number of the 27 still alive in Portland are ill but Jack Marks, Portland zoo superintendent, said he has "cautious optimism" they will survive.

The large Emperor penguins are making good progress under special feeding and medication he said. An oxygen tent has been set up for them. The Adelies, the smaller birds, are not doing so well, Marks added. They are not gaining weight as they should, but they seem to be responding to a fungicide medicine, amphotericin B-1, he said.

Dr. William J. L. Sladen of Johns Hopkins University, brought here in an effort to save the dying penguins, said it was too early to tell whether the sick birds would survive, or even whether the other healthy penguins would escape the fungus disease.
