Rocket Effort Of Three Boys Proves Failure

CHINCOTEAGUE, Va., (AP) —It didn't work.

Blue smoke poured from the 63-inch rocket built by four Connecticut high school science students when they ignited the charge Saturday, but the slender, aluminum missile didn't move from its launching platform.

At 12:40 p.m., the boys, in a shack about 200 feet from the poised rocket, started the countdown.

One of them tolled off the seconds for one minute. Then he went through the alphabet. Then he started through the alphabet again.

When he reached "D", he gave a signal to Navy Lt. Cdr. Joseph Bell of New Haven, who accompanied the boys on their flight here earlier Saturday. Bell threw the electric switch — an honor they gave him for the help he had given to them in their project.

Smoke poured from the top and bottom of the missile. But it didn't raise from its stand.

The boys, Charles Swenberg, 17; William Bayne, 16; Neill Buckley, 17, and David Gay, 16, are science students at Lyman Hall High School at Wallingford, Conn., near New Haven.

They built the rocket, then were told by authorities that they wouldn't be able to set it off. Too dangerous.

The Navy heard about it and offered to fly them and their rocket to this test range for a try. The boys gobbled up the opportunity.

They had said they hoped the rocket would travel 2,000 feet.

GI Of The Year Captured After Wandering Spree

GALESBURG, Ill. (AP) — Trouble closed in on all sides today for a husky Marine sergeant, the corps' "Drill Instructor of the Year" in 1957.

T. Sgt. James J. House is wanted by the Marines, the FBI and—mostly — by his wife. She said she still loves him despite his leaving home without notice more than two weeks ago.

The 28-year-old Marine is in Knox County jail, charged with breaking into a service station where he hoped to obtain gas for the car he admitted stealing in Texarkana, Ark.

Texarkana was just one of the stops on a wide-ranging, cross-country tour for House. He left his San Diego Marine base without permission Jan. 2. This was two days after he had ended his reign as "GI of the Year," an honor bestowed on him by his superiors.

Also left in San Diego were his wife and three children, ages 2, 4, and 6.

"I was depressed — I wanted to get away from San Diego," he told a newsman from the bullpen, the community cell of the jail. He started out hitchhiking, he said, spent and aimless few days in Las Vegas, Nev., and then meandered over half the country.

Mitchell To Be In Vancouver

WASHINGTON (AP) — Secretary of Labor Mitchell will meet next Monday in Vancouver, Wash., with labor and management representatives of the plywood industry to discuss plywood imports controls.

Rep. Westland (R-Wash) said the meeting was arranged Friday during a conference he attended with Mitchell and Washington congressmen Pelly, Tollefson and Mack, all Republicans.

Bills sponsored by Westland and Mack have been introduced to Congress to limit imports of Japanese plywood to 15 per cent of the domestic production.

Blame for the reported depressed West Coast plywood industry has been laid to Japanese imports.

The Simpson Logging Co. recently announced it was shutting down temporarily its plywood operations at Shelton, Wash., and Portland and Albany, Ore., because of poor business.

Body Of Third Man Recovered From Mine

SPRING CANYON, Utah (AP) — Workers recovered Saturday the body of a third man trapped deep in a coal mine by an earth tremor that caused a cave-in.

A fourth man was still caught somewhere under tons of rock and rescuers held no hope he would be found alive. He is Dean Nielsen, 27.

The body of Keith Anderson, 30, was uncovered Saturday morning. Both he and Nielsen were from Spring Canyon, a tiny company mining town of dreary brown sandstone about 120 miles southeast of Salt Lake City.

SHORTAGE OF FUNDS

PORTLAND (AP) — A shortage of funds Wednesday forced cancellation of a call for bids on dredging a mooring basin at Garibaldi, the Army Engineers said.

The engineers said bids, however, may be called again in a few months.

Girl Sentenced For Taking Part In Man's Murder

By TOM PENDERGAST

SALEM, Ill. (AP) — Pretty Trudy Jo Baker, 18, who cried when they took her husband to jail for murdering a young Marine, starts a term of her own Saturday on the same charge.

She was convicted Friday and sentenced to 30 years by Judge Daniel Dailey of Circuit Court in the slaying of a 21-year-old Marine. The Marine hitched a ride in December 1956 with her and her husband, Robert, 23, of Wormleysburg, Pa.

Last Wednesday, Robert Baker pleaded guilty to murder and was sentenced to 99 years in prison. His wife wept as they led him away.

Friday, she took her own sentencing with composure. Trim, goodlooking and smartly dressed, she appeared poised and unshaken at the prospect of spending a minimum of 14 years in the Illinois Reformatory for Women at Dwight.

Earlier she related on the stand the tale of an unhappy home life that led her to prostitution at the age of 16. She said she was a rape victim at 13 and had borne a child by a marriage her mother had annulled.

She also told the court she had known her husband only one day before marrying him, and he had dominated her during their nine days of married life before the slaying.

The body of their victim, Pvt. Larry Kirk, of Winslow, Ind., was found in a weed field near Xenia, Ill., with a rifle bullet in the back. He was en route home for Christmas. Kirk was robbed of $12. The Bakers were arrested at Prosser, Wash.

Veteran Senator Neely Succumbs

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Matthew M. Neely, Democratic senator from West Virginia, died Saturday at the naval medical center in nearby Bethesda, Md. He was 83.

Neely, former West Virginia governor and House member, had been in failing health for a year. He was on hand, in a wheel chair, when Congress convened early this month.

His death stands to cost the Democrats one seat in the Senate. West Virginia's governor, Cecil Underwood, is a Republican and will appoint a successor to Neely to serve until the next general election.

With Neely's death, the Democratic Senate ranks are reduced to 49, as against 46 Republicans.

Joseph C. Duke, the Senate sergeant at arms, said he was notified by the naval hospital that Neely died at 10:09 a. m.

HOWARD A. PETERSON, center, Roseburg, chairman of the Douglas County chapter of the Oregon Heart Assn., and Jan Galloway, left, Tillamook, recently learned firsthand how heart funds are spent when they visited the University of Oregon Medical School in Portland for a day-long series of lectures and visits to various research projects. Dr. Warren S. Welborn, clinical instructor in cardiology, explains the project. The heart fund campaign will be held in February.

PRISONERS POUND holes in walls and floor of the Douglas County jail but it's not a break-out. Instead, men serving terms in the jail are working on a remodeling job in part of the jail. The living quarters formerly used by the night jailer and matron are being eliminated. Kenneth Francis Eckley, Empire, wields a hammer as he drills a hole for a water pipe for a new bathroom for jailers. Looking on is Donald M. Hays, Oakland, taking a breather from a similar chore. Both men are serving time in lieu of $45 fines for driving with suspended operator's licenses. (Paul Jenkins)

Six Persons Arrested For Robbery Of Bank

First National Bank occurred at 6:55 p.m. just five minutes before closing time.

Four nervous young men, two of them brandishing pistols, walked in and told Wes DuBois, only bank employe on duty, "this is a holdup."

Two of the men hustled DuBois into the concrete vault at the rear, forced him to open the strongboxes inside, bound him with a cord from a blind and began stuffing the money into a satchel.

They were scared out when a pistol one of the men held accidently discharged as he tried to scoop up some coins with the same hand. They fled by car.

The bank, open late on Fridays, is next door to the Camp Hanford finance office where the military payroll is prepared. No Army funds were involved in the robbery, however.

DuBois managed to telephone an alarm from the vault but the bandits were able to elude roadblocks. A tip they were seen heading in this direction led to the arrests here.

Two revolvers, of .32 and .38 caliber, were found in a trash can at the theater in Grandview, about halfway between here and Camp Hanford. A .22 caliber pistol was recovered from the waste disposal can in the women's restroom at the Yakima bus station.

Benson Remains Hopeful On Plan

WASHINGTON (AP)—Secretary of Agriculture Benson said today he sees a good chance Congress will authorize the reduced farm price support minimums requested by President Eisenhower.

Benson said he was not discouraged by the hot reception he and the President's program got yesterday at a public hearing before the Senate Agriculture Committee. Some senators challenged Benson's sincerity and the accuracy of some of his statements.

Although Benson expressed optimism about prospects for the administration's new farm program, committee Chairman Ellender (D-La) and Sen. Thye (R-Minn) predicted in separate interviews that Congress never will grant his request for authority to set price props on the basic crops and dairy products between 60 and 90 per cent of parity.

The present minimum is 75 per cent of parity.

Bus Driver Chooses Embankment To Train

PERRY, Ark. (AP) — The driver of a school bus loaded with 35 boy and girl basketball players made an agonizing split-second choice at a rail crossing here last night and sent his vehicle hurtling down a 16-foot embankment rather than hit a speeding train.

Miraculously, only five youngsters and a coach were injured—none seriously.

Super Nordic Plot Broken Before Robbery

NEW YORK (AP) — Plans of a youth gang for a $40,000 bank robbery to get funds for setting up a Nazi-like superman society have been broken up because two members disclosed the plot.

Police said the leader, 21-year-old George Leggett, had imbued his group of 10 youths with "Nordic supremacy" and the racial ideas of Adolf Hitler. Leggett called himself "George von Lieber" and said he was born in Germany. Authroities said he was born in the Bronx.

The gang was broken up Friday with the arrest of Leggett and four teen-agers.

Early today four more youths, alleged members of the gang, were booked — three on burglary charges and one 15-year-old on a charge of juvenile delinquency.

Police said Jay Page and William Shutz, both 16, and Brian Casey, 18, broke into a Queens apartment last Wednesday night and stole a quantity of jewelry, all of which has been recovered.

In the homes of the plotters police found two-sawed-off shotguns, three .22 caliber rifles and an arsenal of knives and daggers.

The two youths who told their elders of the bank plot, which led to the arrests, were not charged.

Oregon, Washington Fish Officials Fail To Agree On Winter Steelhead Status

PORTLAND (AP) — Oregon and Washington fish officials again failed to agree Friday night on whether to protect winter steelhead from commercial fishermen on the Columbia River in winter.

Officials of the Oregon Fish Commission and the Washington State Fisheries Department emerged from a three-hour session behind closed doors and announced they were adjourning without agreement on the point.

Earlier the two departments had reached agreement on all other points for regulation of Columbia River fishing.

In a public hearing that preceded the closed session, a number of sportsmen from Oregon, Washington and Idaho urged the winter closure, asserting commercial fishermen have been catching steelhead in their salmon nets. In Washington the steelhead is protected from commercial fishermen. In Oregon it may be caught by commercial fishermen.

Say Run Satisfactory

Robert Schoning, research director for the Oregon commission, and Jurgen Westrheim, Oregon biologist, contended the winter run of steelhead is in satisfactory condition.

They said only 25 per cent of the steelhead run was being caught, and that up to 48 per cent could be landed without endangering the runs.

The winter season covers the month of February.

John A. Biggs, director of the Washington State Game Commission, urged the closure. He said 100 commercial fishermen were taking the fish, and that 44,000 Washington sports anglers seek the fish the year around.

In Interest Of All

"But we do not speak only for the sportsmen—nor against the men who live by the nets—we are here together in the interest of all the people of both states. We feel that the February season should be abolished and that sports and commercial anglers should get together in a common conservation program," Biggs said.

A spokesman for the Oregon commission said a joint two-state decision on the matter may be announced in a week.

The two groups adopted all other regulations proposed by biologists for commercial fishing on the Columbia. These largely duplicated previous regulations. The only major change was the addition of four days to the summer fishing season, which will open June 16 instead of June 20.

Attempt Will Be Made To Free Grounded Barge

PORTLAND (AP) — An attempt may be made this weekend to free a steel barge from the Umpqua River jetty near Reedsport where it went aground in a storm last Sunday.

The barge, San Marcos, wound up on the jetty when a tugboat towline parted. It is owned by the Shaver Transportation Company of Portland. It was leased to the Oregon Coast Towing company and Crowley Launch and Tug Company of San Francisco.

The barge, valued at $65,000, was being used to haul rock from an Umpqua River quarry to Coos Bay for jetty repairs.

George Shaver said the salvage attempt would be made if the sea is calm enough.

Rescued Soldier To Come To Aid Of Army Colonel

CHICAGO (AP) — A soldier saved in the battle of the Burma jungles 14 years ago is rallying to the support of the man who rescued him, a retired Army colonel now jailed for attempted theft in California.

The soldier is the son of Edward Rogers of suburban Evanston, who yesterday said he will pay all the travel expenses to send his son to California.

"We'd like to do more," the elder Rogers said, "and we plan to do anything we can to help."

The man Rogers and his son, Paul, 35, want to help is Melvin Russell Blair, retired Army lieutenant colonel who faces trial on a charge of attempting to steal $40,000 in receipts at the Bing Crosby Golf Tourney.

The elder Rogers, who announced the family's plan to help Blair, said his son owes his life to the former colonel — holder of two distinguished service crosses and a silver star.

House Committee Okays Higher Legal Debt Limit

WASHINGTON (AP) — The House Ways and Means Committee Friday approved legislation for a five billion-dollar increase in the national debt limit.

The measure would raise the debt ceiling from 275 to 280 billion dollars.

The committee voted down a proposal to hold the increase to three billion dollars.

The House is expected to act on the bill next Tuesday.

Secretary of the Treasury Anderson told the committee that "distressingly low" cash balances in the Treasury necessitated the increase.

Anderson emphasized what he called the tight position under a 275 billion dollar ceiling by saying he expected federal cash balances in commercial banks to drop as low as 250 million dollars by early February.

That would be less than a single day's needs, since the Treasury pays bills amounting to 1½ billion dollars every five-day work week. Generally, Anderson added, the Treasury likes to have at least a three billion dollar balance.

Major League Rookie Ed Bouchee Arrested

SPOKANE, Wash. (AP) — Major league rookie standout Ed Bouchee, 24, charged Friday with indecent exposure involving a 6-year-old girl, was pictured by officers as being relieved at his arrest.

Police Lt. George Berg said the Philadelphia Phillies first baseman said after his arrest:

"I knew I'd get caught. I'm glad I got caught now."

Bouchee is the father of a three-year-old boy and his wife is expecting another child. He was released after posting $2,500 bond and left the county court house by a back door to avoid reporters and photographers.

Oregon's Jack Crabtree Accepts Trophy In Ohio

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Jack Crabtree, University of Oregon quarterback, Friday night received a trophy as the outstanding player in the Rose Bowl.

Oregon lost to Ohio State in the Rose Bowl, 10-7, but was widely hailed for playing Ohio State on even terms and nearly upsetting the Big Ten team.

Crabtree said he was accepting the trophy in the name of "Coach Len Casanova and the wonderful guys on the Oregon team who made this honor possible."

The Oregon quarterback said there were not many special plans prepared by Oregon for the Rose Bowl game. He said the preparation was much as for any regular game. He also said Casanova gave him no special instructions on what plays to call.

Crabtree was one of two score sports celebrities honored at the third annual Columbua Touch down Club dinner. Proceeds from the $10 a plate dinner went to the Olympic fund.

CRIPPLED PLANE LANDS

All told, the Eastern Airlines plane carried 89 passengers.

PLAIN TRUTH

By Glen W. Lundy: Gospel Evangelist

Our entire outlook respecting spiritual matters is conditioned by one of two principles; either we rely on the sufficiency of the Scriptures and speak only as the "Oracles of God", speak; or the broad and elastic principle, so convenient, that, "anything is permissable so long as the Scriptures does not specifically forbid it".

Following the latter principle the floodgates are opened to all the diversive practices we see in the religious world such as burning incense, counting beads, infant baptism, sprinkling, keeping special days, dinners to raise money, robed choirs and instrumental music in worship. There is no end to the practices of men when such a principle is followed nor do we have the right to censor another for his peculiar practice when we follow this principle.

Following the first principle we can have a "thus saith the Lord", for our faith and practice basing our obedience and worship on the principle "where the Oracles of God speak we speak." We will need no peculiar or hard to defend arguments for our practice nor will we need to depend on the theories of men. With bold assurance we can sustain our stand by directing those who oppose to the New Testament saying, "We stand with Peter and Paul on the sufficiency and dependability of the Gospel, and refuse to take liberties with God's law."

Does your practice allow you to take this stand? Do you have a "thus saith the Lord," for what you do. Worship where God's authority is respected.
