

Easter Seal Group Travels To Eugene To View Hospital

A group of Roseburg people, all members of the newly formed Douglas County Easter Seal Board, journeyed recently to Eugene to observe first-hand an example of the work accomplished by Easter Seal funds. The pictures on this page illustrate what they saw.

George Safford, director of the school, describes the school's functions as two-fold: First, to give physically handicapped children the academic schooling they would receive in an ordinary school; and second, to give medical and orthopedic treatment and start the children on their way toward normal, productive lives.

Safford emphasized the point that the school is for children of at least average intelligence who, because of physical disability, are not able to attend ordinary schools or whose parents are not financially able to afford special treatment.

Thomas Garrison, Roseburg attorney who is serving as fund-raising chairman of the new group, sized up his impressions this way: "Contrary to what I had expected, the attitude of the children is bright and happy. The staff is doing a tremendous job and seems to perform its work as a labor of love. The children actually enjoy themselves."

The month-long Easter Seal campaign will get underway on March 6. Funds derived from sale of the seals are the sole support of the school and other facilities designed to aid crippled children and adults.

HELPING HANDS are loaned by Garrison to Rosella, Wolf Creek, and Randy. These youngsters along with the other students receive special academic and therapy services while enrolled in the school.

PRACTICING THE SKILL of descending stairs with Canadian crutches is Ralph, a Lane County youngster enrolled at the school. Marcelle Montgomery, supervisor of physical therapy, lends Ralph a hand while Mrs. Ernest Barker, Douglas County Easter Seal Board publicity chairman, watches.

CHILDREN'S BARBER CHAIRS recently donated to the hospital school by the Lane County Barbers' Union are shown being tested by little Randy, a student from Glendale in Douglas County. Giving Randy a hand is Don Hagedorn, chairman of the Douglas County Easter Seal Board. Looking on are Thomas Garrison, fund-raising chairman of the board, and board member Mrs. Don Croucher. All children at the school receive free haircuts from local volunteer barbers.

FIRST GRADE STUDENT Becky, from Curry County, demonstrates her artistic talent to Garrison and George Safford, director of the Eugene school. The school's art courses play an important part in helping to coordinate the children's muscles.

BASIC SEWING instruction is given to three students by Nancy Woodruff, occupational therapist. Shown, left to right, are Joan, Union County; Rosella, Josephine County; Miss Woodruff and Linda, Lane County. Sewing instruction is given to improve finger coordination and dexterity and to lend experience in social and creative skills.

Man Sets Out On Long Walk To Find New Job
BAKER, Ore. — Melvin Neva, an unemployed construction worker, will set out looking for work Monday on a walk that could carry him from here to Seattle and back again.

The slight, blond Neva lost his job last week when 20 drillers were idled by lay-offs at the Brownlee Dam project on the Snake River near here.

Tuesday Neva said he hopes the walk will show what a little determination will do in finding a job. Neva, 21, is married and has two children. His home is at New Bridge, 30 miles northeast of here.

It doesn't find work on the walk to Seattle, Neva said he plans to look for jobs in the Willamette Valley on his jaunt back to this Eastern Oregon area.

Four Pacifists Set Sail To Protest Bomb Tests
LOS ANGELES — Four Pacifists have set sail in a 30-foot ketch to see what they can do about halting a series of nuclear weapons tests.

They plan to sail right into the area where the United States is scheduled to conduct the tests in April.

Albert S. Bigelow, captain of the small craft, left for Honolulu Monday with a crew of three. He said they expect to reach Hawaii in about three weeks and sail from there to the Eniwetok area where the nuclear tests are conducted.

Large Company Interested In Klamath Lands

WASHINGTON — C. Robert Mathis, Washington, D.C., attorney, said Tuesday a client of his has a "definite and strong interest" in purchasing the Klamath Indian reservation's big Ponderosa pine stands.

He did not identify the client although he said the client is in "a very substantial way" involved in forest industries. He did not say whether these are in the Pacific Northwest.

Mathis said the client is a single corporate entity but added that if the transaction can be arranged, the plan is to set up a new corporation, bringing in other companies and capital.

The existing law calls for an end in 1960 of federal supervision over the Klamath tribe. Hearings on proposals intended to keep the timber stand under sustained yield harvest through federal or private purchase are being conducted by a Senate subcommittee headed by Sen. Neuberger (D-Ore).

Mathis did not comment on last week's tentative appraisal of 122 million dollars as value of the Klamath assets. Undersecretary of Interior Hatfield Chilson gave this estimate to the subcommittee.

He said his client would want to look over the timber, which represented 118 million dollars of the total, before commenting.

Communist China's Change Indicates Russia May Be Preparing Ministers' Meet

By WILLIAM L. RYAN
AP Foreign News Analyst

Peiping's announcement of the appointment of a new Red Chinese foreign minister carries the hint that the Soviet Union may dramatically reverse itself and accept an international meeting below the summit level.

The Peiping announcement indicates Red China is closely dovetailing her foreign policy with that of Moscow in preparation for activities intended eventually to lead to a summit meeting.

It could be part of a strong Red Chinese bid to take part in such meetings, and thus in effect win tacit recognition from the United Nations as the rightful and legal government of mainland China.

There is a hint in the appointment that the Soviet Union may now agree to preliminary meetings at the foreign ministers' level.

Not Downgraded

The announcement that Chou En-Lai has relinquished his post as foreign minister, which he held simultaneously with the premiership, carries no implications of downgrading of Chou. In fact, the reverse could well be true.

Chen Yi, the newly appointed foreign minister, is known to have been close to Chou. Chou's star indeed seems to be rising all the time. He delivered an extremely important speech to the National Peoples' Congress in Peiping Monday with a proposal for disengagement of U. S. and Chinese forces in Korea.

The relinquishment by Chou of the foreign ministry would prepare Red China for a strong bid to take part in any foreign ministers' conference on international relations.

Portland Man To Head Finances For Hatfield

SALEM — A Portland man, H. G. Horn, has been named finance chairman of the Hatfield for Governor Committee. Stuart H. Compton, Salem, has been chosen campaign treasurer.

Other appointments announced Tuesday by Hatfield's campaign chairman, for Gov. Elmo Smith, include:

Mrs. Gordon Orr, Portland, vice chairman of the finance committee; Mrs. Kathleen Bash, Medford, chairman of Hatfield's Jackson County committee; and Mrs. Robert D. Gregg, Salem, Marion County chairman.

al tensions and would reserve Chou's role for a later meeting at the summit. Chou's main job is that of head of the Chinese government.

Denounces Two Chinas

It is notable in his speech suggesting withdrawal from Korea that Chou once again strongly denounced the idea of the existence of two Chinas, the Red regime and the Nationalist regime on Formosa. In the same speech Chou threw his enthusiastic support behind Soviet bids for a summit meeting.

The Soviet Union has already made it plain that it wants Red China to participate in any summit meeting, at least on questions affecting Asia.

Premier Nikolai Bulganin's letters have insisted that little could be accomplished by a meeting on such problems without the participation of the Chinese communist regime.

If the Russians accept the idea that there must be a preparatory meeting of foreign ministers first, then the United States will have little choice but to accept such a meeting. Its basic objection to a later summit meeting will have been met. It would have difficulty countering world pressure for a summit meeting with Red Chinese participation.
