KITCHEN POLITICS

By George Castillo

One of the funniest stories to come out of this year's primary election campaign had the Eugene television station scrambling.

It started one afternoon when canny campaigner Al Flegel was watching a program, one of the highlights of which is a demonstration of favorite recipes of guest housewives in the signal area of KPIC and KVAL.

During the program, it was announced that Jean Davis, wife of circuit court candidate Robert G. Davis, would appear on a subsequent program to demonstrate her favorite recipe.

Flegel, who managed the campaign of Davis' opponent, Dan Dimick, had the program monitored by some of his friends. Unwittingly, the hostess asked questions about honors and positions Davis had held and then clinched it by asking if he were not a candidate for judge.

In jig time, the station received a tongue-in-cheek letter from Flegel demanding equal time for Dimick's wife, Dorothy, for her favorite recipe. He also indicated it might be good to ask the same kind of questions and mention Dimick as a candidate.

The next day, Flegel received a sheepish telephone call from the station indicating that Mrs. Dimick had a date on a subsequent program. Needless to say, the format was about the same.

It's apparent the campaigners enjoyed this race anyway.

MAN IN TROUBLE

The plight of the American male on the home front appears likely to get tougher in the future.

Lester Rand, president of the Youth Research Institute, which surveys opinions of teen-agers, reports that a survey shows today's teen-aged girls want their husbands to do more housework.

"Most girls don't think men should sit around leisurely while wives put in a 10 to 14-hour day," Rand says. "The girls also believe their mothers made a mistake by not putting men in harness the minute they were married. The younger generation vows it won't repeat this mistake," he adds.

This bears out the contention of writer Philip Wylie, a perpetual fighter for husbands' rights, that the male is the victim of the calculated schemings of woman.

Husbands, arise, or face eternal domination!

SUSAN CREEK OPENS

One of the county's finest recreational areas is now ready for visitors.

Lloyd Lansing, park supervisor, happily announced Friday that Susan Creek State Park is open for campers.

Anyone who has never been to this beautiful park area is missing something. It's situated in the heart of one of the most beautiful scenic areas in the world.

It's particularly valuable for the modified outdoorsman or woman and family, who only wants to rough it just a little. One can fish, hike, swim or just loaf for the day or weekend. And it's less than an hour's drive from Roseburg.

For a picnic on Sunday, a weekend camping trip or a vacation campout, it's hard to find a better spot than Susan Creek State Park on the North Umpqua Highway.

WASHINGTON— (NEA) — Internal Revenue Service hopes to complete this year's refunds on income tax overpayments by mid-May.

This will be several months ahead of usual schedule. It is the result of a Treasury Department decision to speed up repayments early in the year.

The idea was that if people got their refund checks in a hurry, they might rush out and spend the money. This would give the economy a shot in the arm when most needed and cushion the effects of the recession.

So Internal Revenue Service personnel were pulled off other jobs and Bureau of Accounts took on some temporary help to speed up the refund disbursement. By April 24, 22 million checks for 2.4 billion dollars had been issued, as compared with 18 million checks for 1.8 billion dollars a year ago.

INTERNAL REVENUE Service experts can't estimate yet whether the number of refunds and their total value will set a new record high. But it's possible.

With many incomes declining in the last quarter of 1957, it is likely that more people than usual will have overpaid on their income taxes.

Internal Revenue Service experts report a strange psychology on overpaying "pay-as-you-go" income taxes. Most taxpayers would rather overpay, to get the refund. Those who underpay often have a hard time making final payments.

LETTERS WHICH COME into the Treasury are heavily weighted in favor of overpayment. The squawks come from people who complain about Joe Louis, or somebody like that, who has been allowed to fall behind on his payments and appears to get by with a partial payment settlement.

Many of the overpayments are accidental, however, rather than intentional. People whose tax status changes during the year are principal beneficiaries. An increase in number of dependents, unlooked for heavy medical expense, storm losses, business reverses or unemployment and loss of income are principal causes for refund claims.

Last year, out of 58 million income tax returns filed, 34 million collected refunds totaling 3.124 billion dollars. The average refund was a little over $91.

In the top bracket, 11 people got refunds averaging nearly $20,000. In the bottom bracket — income of $600 to $1,000 a year — an average refund of around $7 went to a million people.

This year, up to the end of April, the average refund check is for $108 — $17 higher than last year. On 34 million refunds, that could amount to an increase of over half a billion dollars.

THERE IS LITTLE possibility that refunds will throw the Treasury deeper into the red, however. For 3.6 billion dollars were included in the budget to cover refunds.

While people who fall behind on income tax payments must pay interest on what they owe, the Treasury does not pay interest on its refunds unless they are made 45 days after the last payment is due. In effect, this means the government pays no interest if it makes the refund before June 1.

On claims for overpayment that have been in adjustment more than 45 days, the Treasury pays 6 per cent interest.

House Group Takes Up Klamath Timber Sales

WASHINGTON (AP) — The House Indian Affairs subcommittee took up a proposed Klamath Indian timber sale program Thursday.

It listened briefly to Hatfield Chilson, undersecretary of Interior, and Edward C. Crafts, assistant Forest Service chief, but made no decision.

They spoke in favor of a Senate-passed bill which would offer private operators the Oregon tribe's timberlands under conditions requiring practice of sustained yield for 100 years.

Under the measure the government also could spend up to 90 million dollars for timber not purchased by private interests for inclusion in the national forest.

Rep. Ullman (D-Ore) said Chairman James A. Haley (D-Fla) told him after the testimony the subcommittee plans to resume the hearing soon.

Reader Opinions

Porter Says His Trips Didn't Cost Taxpayers

A recent contributor to your "Reader Opinions" department, Mr. John Hale Foster, 238 King Street, Medford, commented May 5, 1958, on my efforts on behalf of encouraging Oregon development and in our country's adopting a sane nuclear policy.

Apparently he disagrees with these aims or at least with my methods of furthering them.

For the record, I want Mr. Foster to know that I traveled by train to New York City one night, arriving there about midnight and returning by train three hours later. I went at the request of Gov. Robert Holmes as Oregon's official representative at a ceremony planned to foster interest in a Fourth Congressional District prime natural resource — the Douglas fir.

My train fare will be paid by the public relations firm responsible for the advertising. As I told onlookers that night: "You probably think this is a publicity stunt to advertise Oregon. You're right." It's interesting to note, I believe, that more than 12,000 persons have requested Oregon Douglas firs and that these requests have come from all parts of the nation.

Finally, Mr. Foster implies that I serve a Communist cause and waste taxpayer money when I go to the Marshall Islands to learn about safeguards in nuclear testing. Rather than detail my findings here, I will say that they were deemed valid enough to receive considerable attention from the Atomic Energy Commission, from the press, which had not been told that the tests had begun, and from citizens who believe the AEC, under present policy, is impairing U. S. domestic and foreign policy.

I traveled to the test area on regularly scheduled military flights which would have been made whether I was there or not. The AEC had designated me an official observer and was providing routine transportation, just as it does for each official observer. I paid for my own meals and lodgings.

In order to return to Washington from Eniwetok without undue delay, I took a commercial flight from the West Coast — paid out of taxpayer Charles O. Porter's pocket. The flight and incidental expenses cost me well over $200.

I'm sending Mr. Foster a copy of this letter along with the remarks I made on the floor of the House of Representatives the day following my return. I hope he will read both.

Field Artillery Trades Mules For Helicopters

FT. SILL, Okla. (AP) — The 4th Field Artillery Battalion has traded its mules for helicopters in a unique experiment at this Army artillery and missile center.

For the first time, the Army is using whirly birds to transport a complete standard 105mm howitzer battery and keep it supplied for continuous operation.

Advantages of the aircraft, the Army said, are increased speed and mobility and greater access to isolated areas. The idea of transporting and supplying by air a five-unit artillery battalion, comprised of a firing battery and supporting units, is credited to Col. Charles W. Matheny Jr., now in Germany.

BELIEVES IN HARMONY

ELMIRA, N.Y. (AP) — Veronica Skella, a 23-year-old soprano with the Elmira Choral Society, believes in perfect harmony.

With her right leg in a cast from a skiing accident, she appeared on stage Tuesday night in a delicate blue knee-length gown—and her cast painted blue to match.

In The Day's News

Convention framed a constitution. The constitution provided for a national legislature.

But—

The people rebelled against the Convention's provision that two-thirds of the new representatives were to be chosen from among the members of the Convention.

There were mobs in the streets. The leader of the Convention, Vicomete Barras, called in a young army officer for a conference on what to do. The name of the young officer (he was then 26) was Napoleon Bonaparte.

Barras said to Napoleon: "What shall we do?"

Napoleon said to Barras: "I'd give the canaille a whiff of grapeshot."

Which he did.

Mangled, writhing bodies filled the street down which the cannon fired.

It was thus that Napoleon came to power.

He bled France white with wars, and soaked the soil of half of Europe with the blood of France's sons. As long as he WON, the French adored him. But when he lost his magic touch for winning battles the people turned against him.

In the end, he would up in exile, and the French could think of nothing better to do in that emergency than to call back into power the line of Bourbon kings who had brought on all the bloody trouble with their excesses of power and extravagance.

That's France for you.

At the root of the present trouble lies Algeria.

France wants to KEEP Algeria—for it is very rich, including oil. The Algerians want to be FREE and run their own shebang.

That is the stage—as it is now set.

In the wings, keeping out of sight, is another strange character General Charles De Gaulle. What is he? What will he do? Is he another Napoleon?

I think that can't be answered. Nobody knows what De Gaulle will do.

Nobody knows what the FRENCH PEOPLE will do. Nobody has ever known what the French people would do.

We'll have to wait and see.

State Highway Employe Acquitted Of Bribe Count

HILLSBORO (AP)—George Black, 36, Portland, Thursday night was acquitted of a charge of accepting a bribe.

Black, an employe of the state Highway Department, was acquitted by a 10-2 vote by a Circuit Court jury that deliberated 2 hours and 45 minutes.

The state's main witness, Irwin Tucker of Forest Grove, said Black offered to get him $6,800 for a piece of property for a $150 consideration.

The property was to be used for highway right-of-way.

Black testified in his own defense and said Tucker gave him a $150 fee for advice on how to develop other property.

The state Highway Department suspended Black after his arrest last December. Black had handled right-of-way purchases for the department.

Quadruplet Calves Born; Said One In 2 Million

MUNISING, Mich. (AP) — The birth of quadruplet calves, described as a one-in-two-million rarity, occurred on an upper peninsula farm near here Wednesday. The first-calf mother was bred through artificial insemination.

John Campana, Michigan State University agricultural agent, said the two bulls and two heifers born weighed 173 pounds.

"This happens maybe once or twice in the United States," he said. "But it's the first time I know of that it happened as a result of artificial breeding."

Sentiment Veers Off From Income Tax Reductions

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sentiment appeared to be solidifying in Congress today against any general tax reduction and in favor of cuts in some excise levies.

Four key senators said in separate interviews they believe excise reductions would give a greater stimulus to the economy than action to lower income taxes.

President Eisenhower was described by an influential Republican senator as indicated at White House meetings that he is opposed to a general tax cut. This Republican said the President always brings up the issue of where the money is coming from to pay for government expenses if taxes are reduced.

This sort of thinking appeared to be taking hold among some Democrats.

Sen. Robert S. Kerr (D-Okla), a member of the Senate Finance Committee, said he will support action to revise the 10 per cent levy on automobiles, the 3 per cent on freight and the 10 per cent charge on passenger transportation.

Kerr predicted corporation taxes will be held at 52 per cent and that individual income levies will remain unchanged.

Missile Sites To Be Readied For New Hercules

WASHINGTON (AP) — Conversion of four Nike sites in Washington state to handle the Hercules missile is planned as the Army's first step in placing the missile at all sites ringing Pacific Northwest cities.

This was announced Thursday by Sens. Warren G. Magnuson and Henry M. Jackson, Washington Democrats. The senators said conversion costs for the Washington points will total $1,100,000.

The sites are presently equipwill be retained as a compliment to the Hercules when conversion is completed.

Sites to be converted are at Redmond and Kingston, protecting Seattle, Reardan protecting Spokane and a site north of the Columbia River which protects Hanford and its atomic plant, the senators said.

The conversions will include new blast tabs, launcher foundations, underground structures and new paving. Estimated cost at the Redmond and Kingston sites is $400,000; the North Columbia site $500,000 and the Reardan site $200,000.

American Fleet In Mediterranean

LONDON (AP) — Roaming the Mediterranean is a powerful U. S. naval amphibious task force carrying battle-equipped Marines—its movements and mission secret.

U. S. naval spokesmen said the stage was merely being set for allied air and naval exercises next week extending from Gibraltar to the Dardanelles. The operation—called Medflex Fort—was planned long before the latest trouble flared in the Middle East.

Taking part will be the U. S. 6th Fleet and air and naval units representing France, Italy, Turkey, Greece, and Portugal. A spokesman at U. S. naval headquarters said he was not authorized to comment on movements or mission of the task force. He explained the 6th Fleet was made up of three units—the main one built around the carrier Saratoga, an amphibious force and a mobile force to service the ships.

PLAIN TRUTH

By Glen W. Lundy: Gospel Evangelist

Too little attention is paid to our religious worship. Many feel that anything that wears the name of religion is safe and will gain for them the desired end. Thus they window shop, examining each denomination until they find one that suits them. This makes our service to God a matter of pleasing ourselves rather than God.

Often when men cannot find a denomination that suits them they simply start another and thus have these religious bodies multiplied until today the atheist, infidel, and Satan must find great pleasure in observing the confusion presented by the denominational world. Just consider trying to please God in two or three hundred differing ways. Someone declares, "We are all going to the same place but by different ways." Jesus asserts in Jn. 14:6, "I am the Way, the Truth, and the Life, no man cometh to the Father but by Me." Is Jesus divided into two or three hundred different ways? Of course not. HE IS THE WAY.

Neighbor, it is not a question of pleasing ourselves — it is a matter of pleasing God. There is only ONE Gospel to believe, ONE heaven to gain, ONE hell to avoid. Jesus is the ONE and ONLY way to God and eternal life. Strip your belief of its simulated religion and measure it in the light of the pure Gospel. Will it measure up? Is it pleasing to God? Matt. 7:21-27 If you are interested in pleasing God and learning His will, according to the Bible, we invite you to worship with the Church of the New Testament.
