Grange Contends Farmers
Get Little Of Increase
In Retail Prices For Food

By OVID A. MARTIN

WASHINGTON (AP) — The National Grange, said Wednesday farmers have gotten comparatively little of the increase in retail food prices.

It said a study of price reports show that the great bulk of the increase in food prices during the past 10 years has been in costs of labor employed in the transportation, processing and distribution of farm and food products. It said that federal income taxes have gone up more than farm prices.

The Grange said that during 1957, the farm value of a designated quantity of food—referred to by the Agricultural department as the market basket—increased $15, but that the cost to the consumer had increased $31.

Cites Example

It said that in the case of bakery and cereal products, the farm value moved up 40 cents last year but that the consumer cost advanced $3.85. In the case of milk, it said, producer prices have gone down but consumer prices have risen.

"The facts are that ever-increasing costs of moving food from the farm through the supermarket or corner grocery have pushed grocery bills to new highs," the Grange said, adding in a statement.

"Even so, the average return for an hour of work bought more food during 1957 than ever before.

The amount of working time required to buy a pound of meat in 1957 was 19 minutes, compared to 30 minutes 10 years earlier.

Food prices were said to be 15 per cent higher than the 1947-48 average, compared with 20 per cent for all consumer goods combined.

Ullman Would Extend National Wool Act

WASHINGTON (AP) — A four-year extension of the National Wool Act was advocated Tuesday by Rep. Ullman (D-Ore).

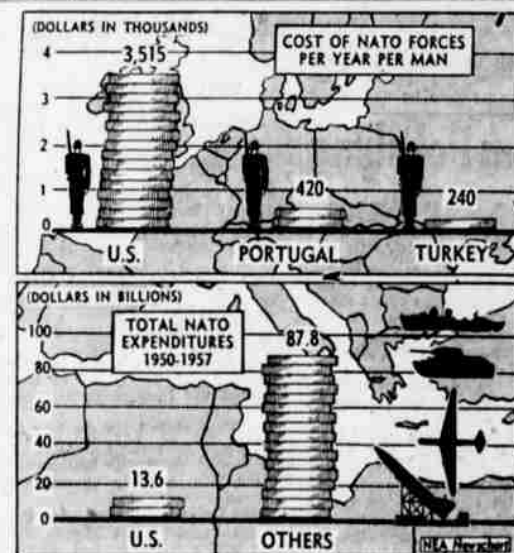

He said it has reversed a 12-year industry decline in Oregon.

The 1954 act was designed to encourage an annual domestic wool output of 300 million pounds. It provides federal payments to growers as the difference between the average market price and an incentive price fixed by the secretary of Agriculture.

NEUBERGER NAMED

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Richard L. Neuberger (D-Ore) Wednesday was appointed chairman of the retirement and general matters subcommittee of the Senate Committee on Post Office and Civil Service.

Neuberger is third ranking majority member of this 13-member Senate committee.

PRICE OF VIGILANCE—Composed of the United States, Canada and 13 nations of free Europe, the North Atlantic Treaty Organization is the most powerful peacetime alliance in history. The U.S. budget for fiscal 1959 calls for a NATO appropriation of 737 million dollars. In upper half of News-chart, average cost of maintaining one American soldier abroad is compared with two representative members. Difference is due to higher pay, housing, transportation, etc. In terms of total expenditures, however, lower chart shows that in a seven-year period, the other NATO nations combined have contributed more than six times as much as the United States.
