

350 Million Board Ft. Of Umpqua National Forest Timber Listed In Remaining '58 Sales Program

Some 350 million board feet of Umpqua National Forest timber still are left to be sold this year in 25 separate sales, the U.S. Forest Service announced in its latest general timber sales notice released at Roseburg.

By far the biggest of the sales will be the gigantic Windigo Pass transaction, involving 3,820 acres of northeast Douglas County and Lane County land and some 75 million board feet of timber. The sale is slated for this month, at an as-yet-announced date.

The Windigo Pass timber drew headlines in 1955 when a sale similar to that slated for this year was canceled by the Forest Service following a controversy between lumbermen.

Located at elevations of 3,000 to 6,000 feet in the North Umpqua headwaters area of the Cascade range crest, the timber then was sought by L&H Lumber Co., Sutherland. But protests by Bend and Klunath Falls lumbermen that it would be put at a competitive disadvantage for nearby timber resulted in a hearing and subsequent cancellation.

New Appraisals Made

Vondis Miller, Umpqua National Forest supervisor, said new appraisals of the timber have been made. He stressed the point that terms of the upcoming sale will be virtually the same as those proposed in 1955.

Complete utilization of all timber taken and use of various specified cutting methods as an experimental measure will be required of the buyer. The Forest Service proposed the former sale term as a means of combating decreased value caused by "windshake" symptoms.

"Windshake" is the bending of fibers in mountain hemlock and white fir—two of the major species in the tract—through flexing caused by strong high-altitude winds. It causes breakage during sawing. But both species yield high quality wood chips for pulping purposes.

A 1955 condition that will be built about 15 miles from the tract at Crescent Lake has been eliminated.

Some 38 miles of road will have to be constructed to gain access to the timber.

Foresters expect to learn a great deal about timber harvesting at high elevations from the Windigo operation.

Seven Big Sales Set

Seven other sales, each involving more than 15 million board feet of timber, will be held in the months of June through September.

First, and one of the two largest of these, will be held this month. It involves about 23 million board feet of timber on 485 acres of land in the Red Mountain area, west of Cow Creek headwaters in south central Douglas County.

The Red Mountain sale will involve eight timber units. The buyers will have to construct 8.4 miles of access road and re-construct 2.1 additional miles.

Largest of the sales in the North Umpqua District will involve the Jackson Creek tract, also embracing 23 million board feet of timber. The timber, on 500 acres in the Jackson Creek-Red Man's Creek area between the North Umpqua and Steamboat Creeks, will be sold in September.

The Jackson Creek timber has been broken into nine units. Nine miles of road construction will be needed to gain access to the site.

Two other large North Umpqua District sales involve timber located entirely in Lane County.

Some 16.8 million board feet will be sold in the Skeeter Ridge sale, slated for July. The timber is located on 250 acres in the Steamboat Creek headwaters area south of Bohemia in Lane County.

Access to the eight timber units will require construction of seven miles of road.

Sale Set For August

Twenty million board feet of timber spread over a spacious 720-acre area are involved in the Little Rock Creek sale. The 12-unit sale will be held in August.

Nine miles of road construction will be required for access to the Little Rock Creek timber, located roughly west of the Skeeter Ridge acreage and south of the Sharps Creek headwaters.

The only large sale in the Diamond Lake District other than the Windigo Pass sale will be the Fish Creek transaction, scheduled for next month.

This will involve 18.3 million board feet which has been divided into eight units on 350 acres located along Fish and Clear Creeks west of Diamond Lake.

The Collins sale, slated for October, will involve 17.5 million board feet of timber on 450 acres south of the South Umpqua River

Major Cities Join Labor Surplus Areas, Report Says

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Labor Department reported Thursday that New York, Chicago, Cleveland and Houston have joined a growing list of major labor market areas with a substantial worker surplus. Unemployment exceeds 6 per cent in these.

The list of such substantial labor surplus areas grew from 70 in March to 86 in May, compared with 21 in May, 1957.

The gloomy-sounding report issued by the Department's bureau of employment security said more-over that the regular bimonthly survey of employer hiring plans was discouraging.

It said the area survey reflected less than normal seasonal employment gains during the early spring rather than actual increases in joblessness.

Other cities which moved to the substantial labor surplus category of 6 to 9 per cent unemployment included Tacoma, Wash.

Sixteen cities moved from March to May to the 9-12 per cent employment group and 10 to the group having 12 per cent or more unemployment. The latter group includes Detroit and Providence, R.I.

Only one major labor market—Atlantic City, N.J., registered employment improvement between March and May. This is customary as the resort city prepares for the summer season.

Fines Imposed On Five Pleading Vagrancy Guilt

Five vagrants were jailed Saturday after a busy morning session in the court of Municipal Judge Randolph Slocum.

All entered guilty pleas when arraigned. They were given $25 fines and jailed in lieu of the fines. A five-day limit was set for serving out the penalties.

They were identified by police who picked them up last Friday and early Saturday morning as Frank Wilson, Santa Barbara, Calif.; Bishop Edverth E. Evans, Portland; Dennis Kuhlman, Hubbard, Iowa; Esper Walker, Spokane; and George R. Tapia, Sacramento, Calif.

A fine of $25 also was paid by James Edmund McColey, Ollaia, who pleaded guilty to disorderly conduct Friday night in front of 1446 SE Pine St. McColey also was jailed for lack of payment of the fine, not to exceed a five-day term.

The accompanying citation says of Eisenhower: "As you once forged the most perfect alliance of nations in the world's history for the salvation and vindication of democracy in the greatest of world wars, so now, at the sacrifice of personal tranquility, with the full measure of your strength, you labor to reap the fruits of that crusade both at home and abroad."

Referring then to Eisenhower as "a modern colossus against petty aims and mean ambition," the citation adds: "And the anxieties of the present, which you have helped weave those ties of respect and affection which bind the nations of the free world in strong alliance."

The accompanying citation says of Eisenhower: "As you once forged the most perfect alliance of nations in the world's history for the salvation and vindication of democracy in the greatest of world wars, so now, at the sacrifice of personal tranquility, with the full measure of your strength, you labor to reap the fruits of that crusade both at home and abroad."

Referring then to Eisenhower as "a modern colossus against petty aims and mean ambition," the citation adds: "And the anxieties of the present, which you have helped weave those ties of respect and affection which bind the nations of the free world in strong alliance."

Referring then to Eisenhower as "a modern colossus against petty aims and mean ambition," the citation adds: "And the anxieties of the present, which you have helped weave those ties of respect and affection which bind the nations of the free world in strong alliance."

Referring then to Eisenhower as "a modern colossus against petty aims and mean ambition," the citation adds: "And the anxieties of the present, which you have helped weave those ties of respect and affection which bind the nations of the free world in strong alliance."

Referring then to Eisenhower as "a modern colossus against petty aims and mean ambition," the citation adds: "And the anxieties of the present, which you have helped weave those ties of respect and affection which bind the nations of the free world in strong alliance."

Referring then to Eisenhower as "a modern colossus against petty aims and mean ambition," the citation adds: "And the anxieties of the present, which you have helped weave those ties of respect and affection which bind the nations of the free world in strong alliance."

Referring then to Eisenhower as "a modern colossus against petty aims and mean ambition," the citation adds: "And the anxieties of the present, which you have helped weave those ties of respect and affection which bind the nations of the free world in strong alliance."

Referring then to Eisenhower as "a modern colossus against petty aims and mean ambition," the citation adds: "And the anxieties of the present, which you have helped weave those ties of respect and affection which bind the nations of the free world in strong alliance."

Referring then to Eisenhower as "a modern colossus against petty aims and mean ambition," the citation adds: "And the anxieties of the present, which you have helped weave those ties of respect and affection which bind the nations of the free world in strong alliance."

Referring then to Eisenhower as "a modern colossus against petty aims and mean ambition," the citation adds: "And the anxieties of the present, which you have helped weave those ties of respect and affection which bind the nations of the free world in strong alliance."

Referring then to Eisenhower as "a modern colossus against petty aims and mean ambition," the citation adds: "And the anxieties of the present, which you have helped weave those ties of respect and affection which bind the nations of the free world in strong alliance."

Referring then to Eisenhower as "a modern colossus against petty aims and mean ambition," the citation adds: "And the anxieties of the present, which you have helped weave those ties of respect and affection which bind the nations of the free world in strong alliance."

Referring then to Eisenhower as "a modern colossus against petty aims and mean ambition," the citation adds: "And the anxieties of the present, which you have helped weave those ties of respect and affection which bind the nations of the free world in strong alliance."

Referring then to Eisenhower as "a modern colossus against petty aims and mean ambition," the citation adds: "And the anxieties of the present, which you have helped weave those ties of respect and affection which bind the nations of the free world in strong alliance."

Referring then to Eisenhower as "a modern colossus against petty aims and mean ambition," the citation adds: "And the anxieties of the present, which you have helped weave those ties of respect and affection which bind the nations of the free world in strong alliance."

Referring then to Eisenhower as "a modern colossus against petty aims and mean ambition," the citation adds: "And the anxieties of the present, which you have helped weave those ties of respect and affection which bind the nations of the free world in strong alliance."

Referring then to Eisenhower as "a modern colossus against petty aims and mean ambition," the citation adds: "And the anxieties of the present, which you have helped weave those ties of respect and affection which bind the nations of the free world in strong alliance."

Referring then to Eisenhower as "a modern colossus against petty aims and mean ambition," the citation adds: "And the anxieties of the present, which you have helped weave those ties of respect and affection which bind the nations of the free world in strong alliance."

Referring then to Eisenhower as "a modern colossus against petty aims and mean ambition," the citation adds: "And the anxieties of the present, which you have helped weave those ties of respect and affection which bind the nations of the free world in strong alliance."

Congress Needs Speed To Meet Session Pause

By WILLIAM F. ARBOGAST
WASHINGTON (AP)—Congress starts paying the piper this week for its slow pace during the first five months of this session.

If it's to meet the early August adjournment target set by its leaders, it will have to shift into high gear as it returns from a long Memorial Day weekend.

Leaders have mapped out a five-day-a-week work schedule which runs out any extended recesses in June and July, except for the Fourth of July weekend.

This week the House faces a program that its own leaders concede may not be met. It calls for action on pay raises for federal employees, legislation to create a space agency, appropriations for the Defense Department, extension of the reciprocal trade program, and continuation of present corporate income and excise tax rates.

Little trouble is likely over the 38-billion-dollar defense money bill and a bill to continue for another year corporate and excise tax rates due to drop July 1.

But it may take several days to dispose of legislation to extend the Reciprocal Trade Agreements Act for five years beyond June 30. Protectionist forces in the House are expected to fight to cut down the extension period and limit the added tariff-cutting powers the legislation would give the President.

The Senate has acted on only one of the major bills on this week's House docket. That is the measure to raise the pay of federal employees.

Foreign Aid Uncertain
The Senate probably will spend much of this week debating the $3,712,000,000 foreign aid authorization bill already passed by the House.

Another controversial issue in the Senate's 49th state. The House passed this bill last week.

Major bills still to be considered by both branches deal with general labor law revision, foreign aid appropriations, federal scholarships, and reorganization of the Defense Department.

All in all, congressional leaders are pessimistic about prospects for adjournment by Aug. 2. Most of them would settle now for going home in mid-August.

Another controversial issue in the Senate's 49th state. The House passed this bill last week.

Major bills still to be considered by both branches deal with general labor law revision, foreign aid appropriations, federal scholarships, and reorganization of the Defense Department.

All in all, congressional leaders are pessimistic about prospects for adjournment by Aug. 2. Most of them would settle now for going home in mid-August.

Another controversial issue in the Senate's 49th state. The House passed this bill last week.

Major bills still to be considered by both branches deal with general labor law revision, foreign aid appropriations, federal scholarships, and reorganization of the Defense Department.

All in all, congressional leaders are pessimistic about prospects for adjournment by Aug. 2. Most of them would settle now for going home in mid-August.

Another controversial issue in the Senate's 49th state. The House passed this bill last week.

Major bills still to be considered by both branches deal with general labor law revision, foreign aid appropriations, federal scholarships, and reorganization of the Defense Department.

All in all, congressional leaders are pessimistic about prospects for adjournment by Aug. 2. Most of them would settle now for going home in mid-August.

Another controversial issue in the Senate's 49th state. The House passed this bill last week.

Major bills still to be considered by both branches deal with general labor law revision, foreign aid appropriations, federal scholarships, and reorganization of the Defense Department.

All in all, congressional leaders are pessimistic about prospects for adjournment by Aug. 2. Most of them would settle now for going home in mid-August.

Another controversial issue in the Senate's 49th state. The House passed this bill last week.

Major bills still to be considered by both branches deal with general labor law revision, foreign aid appropriations, federal scholarships, and reorganization of the Defense Department.

All in all, congressional leaders are pessimistic about prospects for adjournment by Aug. 2. Most of them would settle now for going home in mid-August.

Another controversial issue in the Senate's 49th state. The House passed this bill last week.

Major bills still to be considered by both branches deal with general labor law revision, foreign aid appropriations, federal scholarships, and reorganization of the Defense Department.

All in all, congressional leaders are pessimistic about prospects for adjournment by Aug. 2. Most of them would settle now for going home in mid-August.

Another controversial issue in the Senate's 49th state. The House passed this bill last week.

Major bills still to be considered by both branches deal with general labor law revision, foreign aid appropriations, federal scholarships, and reorganization of the Defense Department.

All in all, congressional leaders are pessimistic about prospects for adjournment by Aug. 2. Most of them would settle now for going home in mid-August.

Another controversial issue in the Senate's 49th state. The House passed this bill last week.

Major bills still to be considered by both branches deal with general labor law revision, foreign aid appropriations, federal scholarships, and reorganization of the Defense Department.

All in all, congressional leaders are pessimistic about prospects for adjournment by Aug. 2. Most of them would settle now for going home in mid-August.

'MARSEILLAISE'—Standing in front of the French National Monument of Algiers singing the "Marseillaise" are, left to right: Jacques Soustelle, Gen. Raoul Salan, Navy veterans leader M. Valcade and Adm. Philippe Aubouney. Ex-Premier Antoine Pinay has appealed to Gen. Charles de Gaulle to mediate between the Pflimlin government and rebellious right-wingers in Algiers.

U. S. Answers Reds On Trawler Buzzing Protest

WASHINGTON (AP)—The State Department has notified Russia in response to a Soviet complaint—that the U.S. Navy is keeping close watch on shipping in the ocean approaches to the United States.

Moscow had protested that U.S. aircraft had buzzed Soviet trawlers in international waters near the Grants Banks southeast of Nova Scotia.

State Department press officer Lincoln White said the Soviet complaint was made about mid-April and that it received a prompt answer.

Privately, informants said that the behavior of the Soviet trawler fleet along sea and air routes between the U.S. East Coast and Europe is suspicious in some respects.

The Russian vessels were said to be in waters which are not normally heavily fished. They seem to have a large amount of electronic detection equipment such as radar. The number of vessels is constant, one arriving as another departs.

Asked about the nature of the U.S. reply to Moscow, White said that it followed the lines of this statement which he had just made to reporters on the situation:

The United States Navy conducts routine surveillance of shipping in the ocean approaches to the United States.

"Soviet trawlers have been sighted from time to time in conducting the surveillance. It is sometimes necessary to approach within visual identification range of ships being investigated."

The accompanying citation says of Eisenhower: "As you once forged the most perfect alliance of nations in the world's history for the salvation and vindication of democracy in the greatest of world wars, so now, at the sacrifice of personal tranquility, with the full measure of your strength, you labor to reap the fruits of that crusade both at home and abroad."

Referring then to Eisenhower as "a modern colossus against petty aims and mean ambition," the citation adds: "And the anxieties of the present, which you have helped weave those ties of respect and affection which bind the nations of the free world in strong alliance."

Referring then to Eisenhower as "a modern colossus against petty aims and mean ambition," the citation adds: "And the anxieties of the present, which you have helped weave those ties of respect and affection which bind the nations of the free world in strong alliance."

Referring then to Eisenhower as "a modern colossus against petty aims and mean ambition," the citation adds: "And the anxieties of the present, which you have helped weave those ties of respect and affection which bind the nations of the free world in strong alliance."

Referring then to Eisenhower as "a modern colossus against petty aims and mean ambition," the citation adds: "And the anxieties of the present, which you have helped weave those ties of respect and affection which bind the nations of the free world in strong alliance."

Referring then to Eisenhower as "a modern colossus against petty aims and mean ambition," the citation adds: "And the anxieties of the present, which you have helped weave those ties of respect and affection which bind the nations of the free world in strong alliance."

Referring then to Eisenhower as "a modern colossus against petty aims and mean ambition," the citation adds: "And the anxieties of the present, which you have helped weave those ties of respect and affection which bind the nations of the free world in strong alliance."

Referring then to Eisenhower as "a modern colossus against petty aims and mean ambition," the citation adds: "And the anxieties of the present, which you have helped weave those ties of respect and affection which bind the nations of the free world in strong alliance."

Referring then to Eisenhower as "a modern colossus against petty aims and mean ambition," the citation adds: "And the anxieties of the present, which you have helped weave those ties of respect and affection which bind the nations of the free world in strong alliance."

Referring then to Eisenhower as "a modern colossus against petty aims and mean ambition," the citation adds: "And the anxieties of the present, which you have helped weave those ties of respect and affection which bind the nations of the free world in strong alliance."

Referring then to Eisenhower as "a modern colossus against petty aims and mean ambition," the citation adds: "And the anxieties of the present, which you have helped weave those ties of respect and affection which bind the nations of the free world in strong alliance."

Referring then to Eisenhower as "a modern colossus against petty aims and mean ambition," the citation adds: "And the anxieties of the present, which you have helped weave those ties of respect and affection which bind the nations of the free world in strong alliance."

Referring then to Eisenhower as "a modern colossus against petty aims and mean ambition," the citation adds: "And the anxieties of the present, which you have helped weave those ties of respect and affection which bind the nations of the free world in strong alliance."

Referring then to Eisenhower as "a modern colossus against petty aims and mean ambition," the citation adds: "And the anxieties of the present, which you have helped weave those ties of respect and affection which bind the nations of the free world in strong alliance."

Referring then to Eisenhower as "a modern colossus against petty aims and mean ambition," the citation adds: "And the anxieties of the present, which you have helped weave those ties of respect and affection which bind the nations of the free world in strong alliance."

Referring then to Eisenhower as "a modern colossus against petty aims and mean ambition," the citation adds: "And the anxieties of the present, which you have helped weave those ties of respect and affection which bind the nations of the free world in strong alliance."

Referring then to Eisenhower as "a modern colossus against petty aims and mean ambition," the citation adds: "And the anxieties of the present, which you have helped weave those ties of respect and affection which bind the nations of the free world in strong alliance."

Referring then to Eisenhower as "a modern colossus against petty aims and mean ambition," the citation adds: "And the anxieties of the present, which you have helped weave those ties of respect and affection which bind the nations of the free world in strong alliance."

Referring then to Eisenhower as "a modern colossus against petty aims and mean ambition," the citation adds: "And the anxieties of the present, which you have helped weave those ties of respect and affection which bind the nations of the free world in strong alliance."

Gesture Of Gratitude Screens Wallet Theft

ELIZABETH N. J.—Tailor or Meyer Jacobson told police a woman entered his place and asked him to repair her ripped skirt.

When he did, the woman re-donned the skirt, threw her arms about him in a gesture of thanks and left.

Some time later, the tailor discovered that his wallet, containing $60, was missing from a hip pocket.

Norman Cornelius Dies At Riddle; Rites Dated

Norman Cornelius, 66, Riddle, died at his home suddenly early Sunday morning.

He had been a resident of Riddle for the past 12 years, moving there from Santa Ana, Calif. He was born Aug. 28, 1891, at Riverside, Calif. He was married to Louisa Simmons at Riverside on April 6, 1920. He was a member of All Souls Catholic Church, Myrtle Creek.

Survivors, beside the wife, include one daughter, Mrs. J. D. Tomaschke, Oroville, Calif.; one son, Eugene, San Francisco; one sister, Mrs. Fred Caldwell, Riverside, and four grandchildren.

Recitation of the Rosary will be held Wednesday at 8 p.m. in the chapel of Ganz Mortuary, Myrtle Creek. Funeral Mass will be recited by Father James Dillon at All Souls Church Thursday at 10 a.m.

Arrangements are in care of Ganz Mortuary.

Thailand Cholera Death Toll 106; U. S. Aids Fight

BANGKOK, Thailand (AP)—The death toll in Thailand's cholera epidemic climbed to 106 over the weekend. The disease has infected 719 in the past 10 days.

The Health Department reported a slight decline in the number of cases reported.

There were no reports of infection among the large foreign population here so far. Health authorities believe the government's intensive inoculation program, along with a quick health education campaign on the causes may help stop the epidemic from spreading to outlying areas.

The government said 200,000 cc. of vaccine received from the U.S. Air Force Saturday was already exhausted.

Pipeline Blast Kills 3 Men, Destroys 2 Cars

BIG SPRING, Tex. (AP)—Gas leaking from a pipeline was blamed for an explosion and fire which killed three fishermen and destroyed two cars on a west Texas oil lease yesterday.

Highway patrolmen said someone apparently struck a match or started one of the cars and set off the blast. The cars were parked in a depression.

The explosion killed George Washington Gilbert, 69, George Cecil Rackley, 20, and Gilbert Neal Jennings, 25, all of Big Spring. Edgar Lee Jennings Jr., 26, brother of Gilbert, suffered critical burns.

'Softening' Of West Seen By Bishop Sheen

ST. LOUIS (AP)—Bishop Fulton J. Sheen says the Western world is growing soft while the Soviet Union "is strengthening itself by discipline, self-denial and hard-ship."

He said in a speech that Soviet schools teach up to 800 more hours of science in high schools than it taught in colleges of the United States.

Campaign Costs In Primary Put Unander At Top

SALEM (AP)—The nine candidates for governor in the Oregon primary reported campaign expenditures totaling $11,585, but contributions amounting to only $85,219.

Secretary of State Mark Hatfield announced the figures Monday.

State Treasurer Sig Unander, defeated candidate for the Republican nomination, conducted the most expensive campaign. He reported spending $37,175, but had only 196 contributors who gave $26,292. This left his campaign organization $10,783 in the red.

Gov. Robert D. Holmes, who won Democratic renomination, was a close runner-up. His expenditures totaled $26,833, and there were only 61 contributors totaling $10,411.

All of the contributions include what the candidates spent themselves, but Holmes didn't report spending any of his own money. Figures for other candidates:

Wiley Smith, Democrat—Total contributions totaling $2,692; total expenditures, $2,692.

Law Wallace, Democrat—61 contributions totaling $9,383; total expenditures, $9,118.

Harold Resor, Republican—Spent $399.78 of his own money; no contributions.

George W. Livingston, Republican—Three contributions totaling $539; total expenditures $539.

Orval E. Rasor, Republican—No expenditures or contributions.

The amount that each candidate reported spending of his own money were:

Holmes, none; Wallace, $2,000; Smith, $2,367; Eichman, $399; $1,119; Hatfield, $421; Livingston, $223; Rasor, none; Unander, $1,483.

Following are contributions of $500 or more for each candidate: Holmes—Oregon Labor Council, $2,500; Thomas Mahoney, United Steel Workers, George Brown and Pat Dooley, $500 each Ben Anderson, $500.

Wallace—George Lavey and Ellen Bechtold, $1,000 each; Glenn Matteson, Dr. Emery Ingham, Leo Hogan, $500 each.

Gill—Walter Miller, $1,225; Eugene E. Laird, $751; W. S. Ouderkirch, $500.

Hatfield—Larry Teeple, $1,000; H. G. Horn, Charles E. Cook, F. Anderson, $500 each.

Unander—Thomas W. Dant, Ernest G. Swiger, Morris Linde, $1,000 each; George C. Sheehan and Ralph E. Williams Jr., $750 each; George Bruce Jr., Charles A. Sprague, G. S. Hinsdale, T. W. Young, Gale Livingston, Robert E. Dant, Stanton, Boles, McGuire & Church; S. J. Jager, Tom Chamberlain, Henry A. Buehner, Ted Gamble, $500 each; John C. Higgins, $1,000; and Edwin J. Ireland, $761.

Mrs. McRae, 86, Dies In Hospital

Mrs. Wilhelmina McRae, 86, of Oakland died in a Roseburg hospital Saturday.

She was born in Scotland Sept. 4, 1871, and came with her parents to Wyoming when she was a child. She was married in 1899 at Casper, Wyo., to Kenneth McRae who preceded her in death in 1912.

Surviving are a daughter, Mrs. John Rogers of Oakland; brother, William Clark of Casper, W