

Child Accidentally Shoots Self With Pistol

DAIRY, Ore. (AP)—A family pistol which accidentally came within her reach, caused the death of Barbara Ann Rice, 5, here on Wednesday afternoon.

The unloaded .41 Derringer was kept in a box on top of the refrigerator, out of the child's reach. However, the interior of the house was being repainted this week and furniture moved about in such a fashion that the child got to the gun which she apparently loaded herself.

Her mother was painting in an adjoining room and heard the gun fire, rushed in and found the child shot through the chest. In addition to her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Donald W. Rice, she is survived by a sister, Suzanne, 15.

Laughton Has Potted Man Put Out Of Theater

LONDON (AP)—Actor Charles Laughton, who plays a drunken father in his current stage offering, Thursday night had a customer thrown out who was soused for real.

Shortly after the start of the last scene of the play—aptly titled "The Party"—a man in the orchestra started shouting.

Laughton called for the curtain to come down. "We will have that troublesome fellow out," he said.

The man was escorted to the door. Then, with a wave to the audience, Laughton said, "I'm sorry somebody seems to have been upset by the schizophrenia in the play."

Lane Assessor's Views Clash With Owners Of Timber

EUGENE (AP)—Assessor Winfred W. Smith declared Wednesday that Lane County's private timber owners will pay less total timber taxes this year than they did in 1957.

This, he said, is based on calculations his office made from valuation changes ordered recently by two members of the county Board of Equalization.

Smith notified the Equalization Board that he is going to appeal the board's decision to the state Tax Commission. This means the commission must hold hearings.

The assessor's figures are in conflict with calculations which timber owners submitted to the Equalization Board. They said the taxable values of timber and timber lands will increase this year, even though the Board of Equalization reduced the values on the original assessment roll by about two-thirds.

The original assessment roll contained timber and timber land values recommended by the state Tax Commission following a lengthy property reappraisal program here.

Timber owners appealed the values, claiming they were too high and that a 25-year "depletion rate" for old-growth standing timber was too short.

When all the evidence was heard, board members Earl McNutt and L. H. Williams voted to reduce the values to about the amounts requested by the timber owners and to increase the depletion rate to 50 years. Board chairman Robert Straub dissented.

Timber owners appealed the values, claiming they were too high and that a 25-year "depletion rate" for old-growth standing timber was too short.

When all the evidence was heard, board members Earl McNutt and L. H. Williams voted to reduce the values to about the amounts requested by the timber owners and to increase the depletion rate to 50 years. Board chairman Robert Straub dissented.

Timber owners appealed the values, claiming they were too high and that a 25-year "depletion rate" for old-growth standing timber was too short.

When all the evidence was heard, board members Earl McNutt and L. H. Williams voted to reduce the values to about the amounts requested by the timber owners and to increase the depletion rate to 50 years. Board chairman Robert Straub dissented.

Timber owners appealed the values, claiming they were too high and that a 25-year "depletion rate" for old-growth standing timber was too short.

When all the evidence was heard, board members Earl McNutt and L. H. Williams voted to reduce the values to about the amounts requested by the timber owners and to increase the depletion rate to 50 years. Board chairman Robert Straub dissented.

Timber owners appealed the values, claiming they were too high and that a 25-year "depletion rate" for old-growth standing timber was too short.

When all the evidence was heard, board members Earl McNutt and L. H. Williams voted to reduce the values to about the amounts requested by the timber owners and to increase the depletion rate to 50 years. Board chairman Robert Straub dissented.

Timber owners appealed the values, claiming they were too high and that a 25-year "depletion rate" for old-growth standing timber was too short.

When all the evidence was heard, board members Earl McNutt and L. H. Williams voted to reduce the values to about the amounts requested by the timber owners and to increase the depletion rate to 50 years. Board chairman Robert Straub dissented.

Timber owners appealed the values, claiming they were too high and that a 25-year "depletion rate" for old-growth standing timber was too short.

When all the evidence was heard, board members Earl McNutt and L. H. Williams voted to reduce the values to about the amounts requested by the timber owners and to increase the depletion rate to 50 years. Board chairman Robert Straub dissented.

Timber owners appealed the values, claiming they were too high and that a 25-year "depletion rate" for old-growth standing timber was too short.

When all the evidence was heard, board members Earl McNutt and L. H. Williams voted to reduce the values to about the amounts requested by the timber owners and to increase the depletion rate to 50 years. Board chairman Robert Straub dissented.

Timber owners appealed the values, claiming they were too high and that a 25-year "depletion rate" for old-growth standing timber was too short.

When all the evidence was heard, board members Earl McNutt and L. H. Williams voted to reduce the values to about the amounts requested by the timber owners and to increase the depletion rate to 50 years. Board chairman Robert Straub dissented.

Timber owners appealed the values, claiming they were too high and that a 25-year "depletion rate" for old-growth standing timber was too short.

When all the evidence was heard, board members Earl McNutt and L. H. Williams voted to reduce the values to about the amounts requested by the timber owners and to increase the depletion rate to 50 years. Board chairman Robert Straub dissented.

Timber owners appealed the values, claiming they were too high and that a 25-year "depletion rate" for old-growth standing timber was too short.

When all the evidence was heard, board members Earl McNutt and L. H. Williams voted to reduce the values to about the amounts requested by the timber owners and to increase the depletion rate to 50 years. Board chairman Robert Straub dissented.

Timber owners appealed the values, claiming they were too high and that a 25-year "depletion rate" for old-growth standing timber was too short.

When all the evidence was heard, board members Earl McNutt and L. H. Williams voted to reduce the values to about the amounts requested by the timber owners and to increase the depletion rate to 50 years. Board chairman Robert Straub dissented.

Timber owners appealed the values, claiming they were too high and that a 25-year "depletion rate" for old-growth standing timber was too short.

When all the evidence was heard, board members Earl McNutt and L. H. Williams voted to reduce the values to about the amounts requested by the timber owners and to increase the depletion rate to 50 years. Board chairman Robert Straub dissented.

Timber owners appealed the values, claiming they were too high and that a 25-year "depletion rate" for old-growth standing timber was too short.

When all the evidence was heard, board members Earl McNutt and L. H. Williams voted to reduce the values to about the amounts requested by the timber owners and to increase the depletion rate to 50 years. Board chairman Robert Straub dissented.

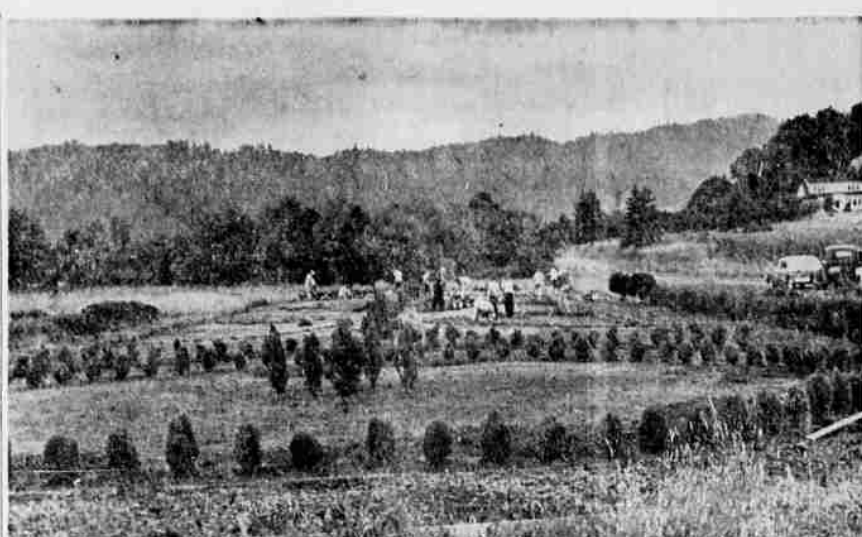

Timber owners appealed the values, claiming they were too high and that a 25-year "depletion rate" for old-growth standing timber was too short.

When all the evidence was heard, board members Earl McNutt and L. H. Williams voted to reduce the values to about the amounts requested by the timber owners and to increase the depletion rate to 50 years. Board chairman Robert Straub dissented.

Timber owners appealed the values, claiming they were too high and that a 25-year "depletion rate" for old-growth standing timber was too short.

When all the evidence was heard, board members Earl McNutt and L. H. Williams voted to reduce the values to about the amounts requested by the timber owners and to increase the depletion rate to 50 years. Board chairman Robert Straub dissented.

Timber owners appealed the values, claiming they were too high and that a 25-year "depletion rate" for old-growth standing timber was too short.

STEWART PARK beautification project has been undertaken by three local garden clubs. Over 1700 plants were used near the Garden Valley entrance to the park. Chairmen are Mrs. D. W. McCarger, Town and Country; Mrs. Robert Dishman, Riverbend, and Mrs. Berta Emery, Oak Knoll. The group purchased the plants with proceeds from a flower show, but will depend on future donations to complete the project. (Jenkins)

Hoffa Is Linked To Indiana's Highway Scandal

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Senate Rackets Committee threw the names of Teamsters Union President James R. Hoffa and the Lake County, Ind., prosecutor into a surprise investigation of the Indiana highway scandals Thursday.

Committee Chairman John L. McClellan (D-Ark.) said the inquiry may show a conspiracy to obstruct justice in the Indiana highway case.

McClellan announced Hoffa will be summoned as a witness later. He also said Lake County Prosecutor Metro Holovachka has not answered a warning from the committee that information "reflecting" on Holovachka would be explored.

Holovachka was invited to testify but not subpoenaed.

(Hoffa was in Seattle Wednesday to address the Western Conference of Teamsters convention).

The investigation exploded without prior notice in a public hearing at which New York publisher Max Radtke refused to answer when asked whether a "reimbursement" was paid to Holovachka after the Lake County grand jury refused to return indictments in the highway scandals. The jury took no action on grounds it lacked jurisdiction.

A Marion County, Ind., grand jury subsequently took over the inquiry and late last year indicted three top officials of the Carpenters Union. They were charged with reaping an illegal $75,000 profit and splitting it with some Indiana officials on the purchase and sale of land for highway right of way.

The investigation exploded without prior notice in a public hearing at which New York publisher Max Radtke refused to answer when asked whether a "reimbursement" was paid to Holovachka after the Lake County grand jury refused to return indictments in the highway scandals. The jury took no action on grounds it lacked jurisdiction.

A Marion County, Ind., grand jury subsequently took over the inquiry and late last year indicted three top officials of the Carpenters Union. They were charged with reaping an illegal $75,000 profit and splitting it with some Indiana officials on the purchase and sale of land for highway right of way.

The investigation exploded without prior notice in a public hearing at which New York publisher Max Radtke refused to answer when asked whether a "reimbursement" was paid to Holovachka after the Lake County grand jury refused to return indictments in the highway scandals. The jury took no action on grounds it lacked jurisdiction.

A Marion County, Ind., grand jury subsequently took over the inquiry and late last year indicted three top officials of the Carpenters Union. They were charged with reaping an illegal $75,000 profit and splitting it with some Indiana officials on the purchase and sale of land for highway right of way.

The investigation exploded without prior notice in a public hearing at which New York publisher Max Radtke refused to answer when asked whether a "reimbursement" was paid to Holovachka after the Lake County grand jury refused to return indictments in the highway scandals. The jury took no action on grounds it lacked jurisdiction.

A Marion County, Ind., grand jury subsequently took over the inquiry and late last year indicted three top officials of the Carpenters Union. They were charged with reaping an illegal $75,000 profit and splitting it with some Indiana officials on the purchase and sale of land for highway right of way.

The investigation exploded without prior notice in a public hearing at which New York publisher Max Radtke refused to answer when asked whether a "reimbursement" was paid to Holovachka after the Lake County grand jury refused to return indictments in the highway scandals. The jury took no action on grounds it lacked jurisdiction.

A Marion County, Ind., grand jury subsequently took over the inquiry and late last year indicted three top officials of the Carpenters Union. They were charged with reaping an illegal $75,000 profit and splitting it with some Indiana officials on the purchase and sale of land for highway right of way.

The investigation exploded without prior notice in a public hearing at which New York publisher Max Radtke refused to answer when asked whether a "reimbursement" was paid to Holovachka after the Lake County grand jury refused to return indictments in the highway scandals. The jury took no action on grounds it lacked jurisdiction.

A Marion County, Ind., grand jury subsequently took over the inquiry and late last year indicted three top officials of the Carpenters Union. They were charged with reaping an illegal $75,000 profit and splitting it with some Indiana officials on the purchase and sale of land for highway right of way.

The investigation exploded without prior notice in a public hearing at which New York publisher Max Radtke refused to answer when asked whether a "reimbursement" was paid to Holovachka after the Lake County grand jury refused to return indictments in the highway scandals. The jury took no action on grounds it lacked jurisdiction.

A Marion County, Ind., grand jury subsequently took over the inquiry and late last year indicted three top officials of the Carpenters Union. They were charged with reaping an illegal $75,000 profit and splitting it with some Indiana officials on the purchase and sale of land for highway right of way.

The investigation exploded without prior notice in a public hearing at which New York publisher Max Radtke refused to answer when asked whether a "reimbursement" was paid to Holovachka after the Lake County grand jury refused to return indictments in the highway scandals. The jury took no action on grounds it lacked jurisdiction.

A Marion County, Ind., grand jury subsequently took over the inquiry and late last year indicted three top officials of the Carpenters Union. They were charged with reaping an illegal $75,000 profit and splitting it with some Indiana officials on the purchase and sale of land for highway right of way.

The investigation exploded without prior notice in a public hearing at which New York publisher Max Radtke refused to answer when asked whether a "reimbursement" was paid to Holovachka after the Lake County grand jury refused to return indictments in the highway scandals. The jury took no action on grounds it lacked jurisdiction.

A Marion County, Ind., grand jury subsequently took over the inquiry and late last year indicted three top officials of the Carpenters Union. They were charged with reaping an illegal $75,000 profit and splitting it with some Indiana officials on the purchase and sale of land for highway right of way.

The investigation exploded without prior notice in a public hearing at which New York publisher Max Radtke refused to answer when asked whether a "reimbursement" was paid to Holovachka after the Lake County grand jury refused to return indictments in the highway scandals. The jury took no action on grounds it lacked jurisdiction.

A Marion County, Ind., grand jury subsequently took over the inquiry and late last year indicted three top officials of the Carpenters Union. They were charged with reaping an illegal $75,000 profit and splitting it with some Indiana officials on the purchase and sale of land for highway right of way.

The investigation exploded without prior notice in a public hearing at which New York publisher Max Radtke refused to answer when asked whether a "reimbursement" was paid to Holovachka after the Lake County grand jury refused to return indictments in the highway scandals. The jury took no action on grounds it lacked jurisdiction.

A Marion County, Ind., grand jury subsequently took over the inquiry and late last year indicted three top officials of the Carpenters Union. They were charged with reaping an illegal $75,000 profit and splitting it with some Indiana officials on the purchase and sale of land for highway right of way.

The investigation exploded without prior notice in a public hearing at which New York publisher Max Radtke refused to answer when asked whether a "reimbursement" was paid to Holovachka after the Lake County grand jury refused to return indictments in the highway scandals. The jury took no action on grounds it lacked jurisdiction.

A Marion County, Ind., grand jury subsequently took over the inquiry and late last year indicted three top officials of the Carpenters Union. They were charged with reaping an illegal $75,000 profit and splitting it with some Indiana officials on the purchase and sale of land for highway right of way.

The investigation exploded without prior notice in a public hearing at which New York publisher Max Radtke refused to answer when asked whether a "reimbursement" was paid to Holovachka after the Lake County grand jury refused to return indictments in the highway scandals. The jury took no action on grounds it lacked jurisdiction.

A Marion County, Ind., grand jury subsequently took over the inquiry and late last year indicted three top officials of the Carpenters Union. They were charged with reaping an illegal $75,000 profit and splitting it with some Indiana officials on the purchase and sale of land for highway right of way.

The investigation exploded without prior notice in a public hearing at which New York publisher Max Radtke refused to answer when asked whether a "reimbursement" was paid to Holovachka after the Lake County grand jury refused to return indictments in the highway scandals. The jury took no action on grounds it lacked jurisdiction.

A Marion County, Ind., grand jury subsequently took over the inquiry and late last year indicted three top officials of the Carpenters Union. They were charged with reaping an illegal $75,000 profit and splitting it with some Indiana officials on the purchase and sale of land for highway right of way.

The investigation exploded without prior notice in a public hearing at which New York publisher Max Radtke refused to answer when asked whether a "reimbursement" was paid to Holovachka after the Lake County grand jury refused to return indictments in the highway scandals. The jury took no action on grounds it lacked jurisdiction.

A Marion County, Ind., grand jury subsequently took over the inquiry and late last year indicted three top officials of the Carpenters Union. They were charged with reaping an illegal $75,000 profit and splitting it with some Indiana officials on the purchase and sale of land for highway right of way.

The investigation exploded without prior notice in a public hearing at which New York publisher Max Radtke refused to answer when asked whether a "reimbursement" was paid to Holovachka after the Lake County grand jury refused to return indictments in the highway scandals. The jury took no action on grounds it lacked jurisdiction.

Roseburg Station Owner Featured In Trade Mag

John Robertson, who operates a service station at 358 SE Stephens St., was featured in a full-page story in the June issue of "Shell Progress," national trade magazine of the Shell Oil Co. A picture of him and his wife also appeared on the cover of the magazine.

The article lauded Robertson for his business practices and told of highlights in the Roseburg man's 25-year history with the firm, and details of his civic activities.

Robertson recently was named a certificate of distinction winner in the Brand Names Foundation's Retailer-of-the-Year competition. He and his wife were treated to a three-day tour of New York in mid-April as an award for winning the honor.

"Make mine 7 Crown"

Why leave it to chance when you can Say Seagram's and be Sure

SEAGRAM-DISTILLERS COMPANY, N.Y.C. BLENDED WHISKY, 86 PROOF, 65% GRAIN NEUTRAL SPIRITS.

E. O. M.

MAGNAVOX

Hi-Fi

SPECIAL

Console—4 speed Automatic Phone 179.95

Diamond Needle 25.00

Aux. Speaker Unit .. 65.00

Regular Value 269.95

6 SPEAKERS

FOR ONLY 199.95

GRAVES MUSIC STORE

516 S. E. JACKSON

PHONE OR 2-1621

V8 WITH VITAMINS!

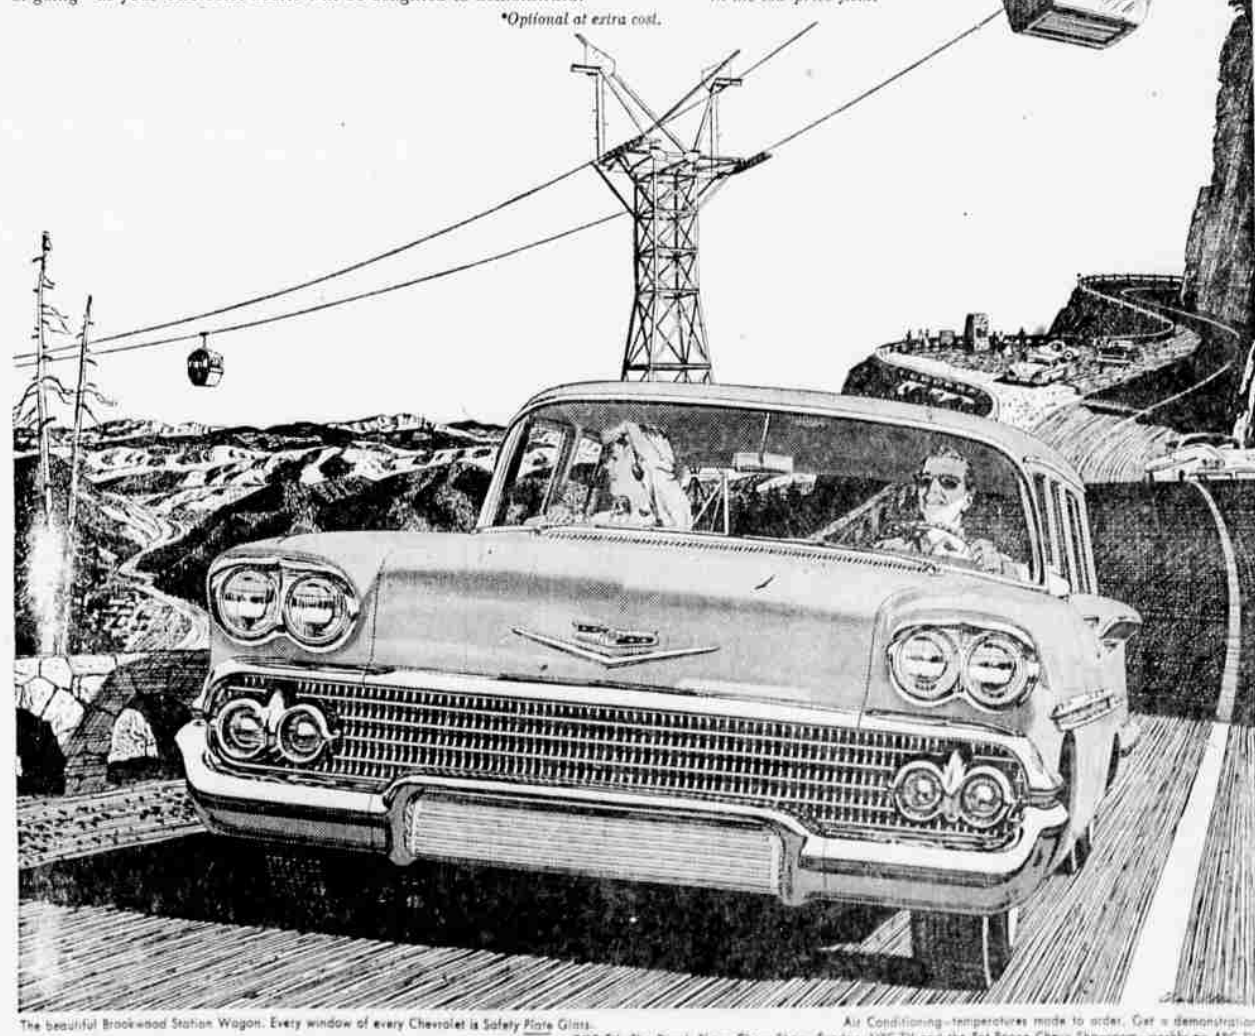

When you feel the full-blown vigor of CHEVROLET'S TURBO-THRUST V8,* you'll agree that here's a car with a healthy heart. And it looks as good as it goes—the only car of the low-priced three with Fisher Body "fitness" and that fine new Chevy shape. Try it on the road... and in your driveway!

Here's a gentle giant designed to just dream along at cruising speeds, using only a velvety fraction of its tremendous strength. So everything Turbo-Thrust does is superlatively easy, supremely quiet. Ultra efficient too—with fully machined combustion chambers for exact power-metering, aero-light valve gear for effortless "breathing," extra-short stroke for long, long engine life. Cradled in a more rigid, road-holding Safety-Girder frame, Turbo-Thrust offers a whole new way of going—as your Chevrolet dealer will be delighted to demonstrate!

The only all-new car

CHEVROLET

in the low-price field.

The beautiful Brookwood Station Wagon. Every window of every Chevrolet is Safety Plate Glass. Air Conditioning—temperatures made to order. Get a demonstration! TOP TV—The Dish Show Chevy Show—Sunday—VBC-TV and the Fat Boone Chevy Showroom—weekly on ABC-TV.

See your local authorized Chevrolet dealer

HANSEN MOTOR COMPANY

OAK AND STEPHENS

ROSEBURG

ORchard 3-4446

TIRE SERVICE CO.

Presents A GIGANTIC PRE-FOURTH

TIRE SALE

U.S. Royal Tires

Extra Special Bonus Offer!

U.S. ROYAL MASTERS

1680 NYLON

50% OFF

Exchange Plus Tax Includes All Popular Sizes

GUARANTEED NEW TREADS

777	6.40-15	6.77	ALL PRICES EXCHANGE PLUS TAX
	7.10-15	8.77
	7.60-15	9.77
	8.00-15	10.77

NYLON

Deluxe $17.95

Now get the extra margin of safety only NYLON can give you. At these thrifty prices, smart shoppers will get 4 new U. S. Royal NYLON Tires.

THE ALL-NEW $12.95

It's ALL-NEW... new tread design, latest materials, processing methods. Original name of low-pressure form.

US

TIRE SERVICE CO., Inc.

YOUR FRIENDLY TIRE STORE

2555 N. E. Diamond Lake Blvd. Phone OR 3-4421