U. S. Proposes Experts Meet On Safeguards

WASHINGTON (AP)—The United States proposed to Russia Thursday that experts from both Soviet and Western countries meet in Geneva the first week of October "for a study of the technical aspects of safeguards against the possibility of surprise attack."

In a note delivered to the foreign office in Moscow earlier Thursday the United States said the experts should "concentrate on the means and objects of control and on the results which could be secured from these safeguards."

This was interpreted to mean the meeting should discuss such specific questions as aerial inspection of Soviet bloc and Western areas, watchdog teams at key transport centers such as ports and road junctions, and the like.

The problem before the experts would be to analyze these methods and figure out what would be required to make certain that one of the great powers did not secretly mobilize the forces necessary for a surprise attack on the other.

The United States linked the proposed expert meeting to a possible overland summit meeting—apart from the Middle East crisis—in these words:

"Such technical discussions would be helpful in determining whether a meeting of heads of government would provide opportunity for conducting serious discussions of major problems and reaching an effective means of reaching agreement on significant subjects."

The prime minister read to the House of Commons the text of a letter which he had arranged to have delivered to the Soviet premier in Moscow only a short time before. He suggested that permanent representatives on the Security Council—which would include Nationalist China—should decide on the meeting place.

"If this meeting is agreed I shall be there on Aug. 12," he added. "I hope you will be there too. So far as I am concerned New York, Geneva or any other place generally agreeable will do."

Both Conservatives and Laborites in the commons cheered Macmillan's announcement.

In Washington, the White House indicated President Eisenhower agrees fully with Macmillan. The U.S. reply to Khrushchev, it is
