Many Americans Pass Up Social Security Checks

WASHINGTON (AP) — Maybe it's the high cost of living. Or maybe many persons just don't relish the idea of loafing.

Whatever the reason, government records show that nearly 1 1/2 million Americans over 65 were passing up Social Security retirement checks as of last Jan. 1 to keep on working.

Of that total about 1,180,000 were men and about 22,000 were women. In addition, the Social Security Administration said some women over 62, also eligible for retirement benefits, were continuing to work.

However, the agency figured about nine million persons over 65 were drawing monthly checks.

MRS. JOHN BRIDGES OF SEPULVEDA, CALIF.

My Husband doesn't really trust me...

"I GUESS NO MAN EVER TRUSTS A WOMAN when it comes to certain things."

"For instance, every Thursday (that's my day to take the car) I get the same old speech with the car keys. Something like this:

"Now don't forget to get gas, and don't forget it's Royal 76, and be sure to check the water, and see if we need oil, we take Royal Triton such-and-such a weight, et cetera, et cetera."

"I just let him ramble on; all the time I'm thinking about the price of round steak and asparagus."

"Then I just roll the car to our Union Oil dealer on the corner. We've been going there for years, and he knows just what to do. So he takes care of All Those Things* while I'm checking my grocery list. I don't even have to watch!"

"Then when my husband comes home and starts in, 'Did you?... did you?... did you?' I just say 'Yes dear, yes dear, yes dear.'"

"And, do you know? I've never yet been caught!"

*Your Union Oil dealer, in addition to filling your tank with the West's most powerful premium gasoline, automatically checks the water and oil, the battery, and the tire pressure. And, of course, cleans the windshield thoroughly. He does it all before you know it...and always with a smile.
