Teamster Elections 'Rigged,' Probe Told
ords subpoenaed from files of Hofa and the international secretary-treasurer, John F. English, which counsel Kennedy denounced as "completely false."

The records purported to show that local 447 had seven as paid-up members since January 1956. Kennedy said that canceled checks show that dues payments for the seven had not been received by the international union until last April, months after the seven cast their votes for Gibbons and his slate as paid-up members.

McClellan said testimony from Gibbons would be postponed at least until Tuesday. Gibbons had been scheduled to appear today.

Karsh invoked the Fifth Amendment Thursday in refusing to answer questions about Gibbons' election.

Nor would Karsh talk about allegations that he was Gibbons' agent in violence-ridden drives to recruit the nation's circus and carnival workers first into the Jewelry Workers Union and then into the Teamsters after Karsh was kicked out of the jewelry union.

Delegates Hand-Picked
Vernon F. Korhn, a carnival worker from Tampa, Fla., told Karsh he was president of Local 447 just before the election. Korhn said he then hand-picked the other six officers of the local and all seven went to St. Louis at Karsh's expense to vote for Gibbons.

He said he knew nothing about Teamster affairs in St. Louis and to this day hasn't seen any of Local 447's official records.

Most of the hearing dealt with Karsh's efforts to engineer labor contracts with circuses and carnivals, including the Ringling Bros. Barnum & Bailey Circus. There was considerable mention of violence in those organizing efforts.

The committee also heard how the Teamsters and another union set up an rival circus in Boston in 1956 in an effort to split the crowd while Ringling was touring there. However, the two unions lost heavily on the deal and the attempt at organizing Ringling workers failed.

Alleged Traitors Carry Appeal To High Court
SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—John W. Powell and his wife Sylvia are asking the U.S. Supreme Court to halt their trial on charges of sedition. The trial is scheduled to start Sept. 22 in federal court here.

The Powells are charged with printing false reports that U.S. forces made germ warfare attacks on Communist China during the Korean War. They published the China Review in Shanghai.

The petition contends the sedition charge is without basis since the Korean conflict was fought without a declaration of war by Congress.

The U.S. Court of Appeals here rejected substantially the same appeal here last month.

Interim Coroner Naming Slated Sometime Today

The Douglas County Court is expected to name a new coroner late today to fill the post vacated Wednesday by the resignation of L. L. Powers. The appointee will serve until Jan. 1.

As soon as possible the county committees of both major political parties will caucus to nominate candidates to oppose each other on the Nov. 4 general election ballot.

The winning candidate then takes office the first week of January to serve a two-year term, which has two years to run.

This was the opinion handed County Clerk Charles Doerner this morning by Avery W. Thompson, district attorney.

The resignation of Powers two days after the deadline for candidates prompted Doerner to call for an opinion as to how to fill the vacancy.

Thompson, in his opinion, said parties should meet in the very near future and present their nominations to Doerner by next Thursday, Sept. 4, the deadline for certification of the general election ballot. Statutes provide this must be done 60 days before the election, done 50 days before the election, and 40 days before the election.

He said he has a history of heart trouble, and has been confined to his home after attacks in recent months.

bring in more than is needed to finance the higher benefits. The surplus, however, will go to reduce the current deficit in the social security trust fund, and will bring the fund's income and outgo into balance by 1965.

Tax Rate Up In 1960
Workers earning the maximum of $4,800 a year will pay $120 a year in social security taxes as compared with $94.50 at present.

Self-employed workers electing social security coverage will have their tax raised from 3 1/2 per cent to 3 3/4 per cent.

Under a speed-up schedule further increases in the tax rate are scheduled for Jan. 1, 1960, and every three years thereafter until 1969, when workers and employers will be paying 4 1/2 per cent each. During the same period the tax on the self-employed will rise to 6 1/2 per cent.

The new law also liberalizes many provisions affecting disabled workers and their dependents, dependent children and widows of insured workers.

Forest Fire Situation Eased By Rain

Western Oregon Aided In Battle; Fighters Gain In Eastern Area
By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Rain dampened Western Oregon forests today and for the first time in weeks forest officials were optimistic about the fire situation.

Only one fire remained a danger—the 1,000-acre Canyon Creek fire in the Willamette National Forest near Detroit—and even it was stopped at least temporarily by the rain.

Foresters said more than a third of an inch of rain fell on the blaze. Guy Johnson, fire control dispatcher for the regional office of the Forest Service, said, however, that the fire will not be considered under control until a fire line has been completed around the blaze.

Rugged terrain has prevented crews from completing the fire trail. Eight hundred men are working at it, but the country is so steep that they have had to call in helicopters to get into some areas.

Wilds, Hunt Nearer
The rain did not reach Eastern Oregon range fires, but crews all around had them under control anyway.

John C. Hunt of the Bureau of Land Management said a wind fire died down Thursday and enabled fire fighters to get trails around 116,000-acre fire south of Baker and a 4,000-acre blaze about 35 miles south of Baker.

A mop-up crew of 25 men worked today on the Vale fire, which destroyed much grass and browse. Hunt said. A crew of 50 men is mopping up the fire south of Baker known as the Sherritt Creek blaze.

A week-old fire in the Rogue River National Forest also was controlled. It was south of Crater Lake Park, in the Klamath District. It destroyed seven acres of timber along the Cascade summit. It was five miles from the nearest road and it took a crew considerable time to reach the smoldering blaze. Forty men were mopping it up today.

Two Dogs Survive In Space Rocket Fired By Soviet

LONDON (AP)—Moscow radio said tonight two dogs have landed safely from a space rocket that reached an altitude of 281 miles.

The broadcast said the dogs were about a one-stage geophysical rocket launched in the Soviet Union Aug. 27.

"Having reached this estimated height the rocket has landed in a precisely allocated sector," the radio said.

The dogs were enclosed in a special hermetically sealed cabin. The weight of the dogs plus the equipment carried by the rocket was 3,725 pounds, Moscow reported.

Moscow said that during flight the apparatus worked normally and insured the supply of essential systems of air which is now under study.

The U.S. Air Force announced July 24 that Wickie, a mouse launched in a Thor-Able missile, apparently was lost at sea after surviving a 6,000-mile journey through space.

The mouse was the third to be fired through space by the Air Force.

The Russians shot a dog Laika into space in their Sputnik II last Nov. 3. Laika was estimated to have lived about a week. The satellite ended its trips around the earth April 14.

The Moscow overseas broadcast, quoting the Soviet news agency Tass, said special stabilizers prevented the rocket from rotating during flight. It was launched from an angle close to the vertical.

The firing took place at an unspecified area in the central European part of the U.S.S.R.

The specially pressurized capsule carrying the dogs was equipped with an air purifying system, instruments for the registration of the animals' biological functions and a film camera for recording their behavior in flight.

"But I was married when I finished college and had to support my family. After getting my master's degree, I tried to get employment doing research but the pay was very small."

Vanguard Satellite Skipped Orbit, Hit S. Atlantic Area
WASHINGTON (AP)—The Navy said today the Vanguard satellite launched from Cape Canaveral, Fla., May 27, traveled 7,500 miles into the South Atlantic instead of going into orbit.

The 20-inch, 21 1/2-pound sphere and the 50-pound third stage of the Vanguard rocket were intended to reach an altitude of 300 or 400 miles and then to go into orbit.

Instead, the second stage lifted the rocket to 368 miles, a naval research laboratory report showed.

The second stage engine failed to cut off properly, causing the rocket to fly with its nose at an upward angle instead of parallel to the earth.

The third stage, flying in a high arc, fired at the wrong angle and climbed to a peak altitude of 2,900 miles.

An impact predictor device showed that if this satellite successfully returned to earth it landed near the east coast of South Africa, 7,500 miles from the launching site. However, the laboratory was unable to determine whether the sphere survived the shock of its re-entry into the earth's atmosphere, because radio signals from it failed before that point was reached.
