Gov. Faubus Says There Are Precedents For Government Aid To Private Schools

NEW YORK (AP)—Gov. Orval E. Faubus of Arkansas today said there are many precedents for government assistance to private schools, such as have been proposed in Arkansas to circumvent integration.

He cited federal grants to education for lunch programs and other assistance.

"If the federal government can do that, how can they not do it here?" he asked.

"There are thousands of private schools throughout the country," he added. "There are no more than 100 in Arkansas. There are no more than 100 in Arkansas. There are no more than 100 in Arkansas."
