

National Newspaper Week Typified By Work Of Newspaper Carriers

NEWSPAPER BOYS will be honored tonight by Roseburg Elks as part of Newspaper Week observance. The boys will be feted at a dinner where the outstanding carriers of The News-Review, Oregonian and Oregon Journal will be awarded trophies. Ralph Ohman, former News-Review carrier, gives his son Vern a few pointers. Vern works for The Oregonian.

FATHER HELPS SON — Floyd Wilson gives his son "Jay" a hand with his newspapers. Both know their business, since Wilson carried The News-Review while he was in the 7th, 8th and 9th grades from 1927-29. Jay now has a News-Review route on S.E. Stephens St. and has worked about a year for the newspaper.

NOW HERE'S HOW we used to fold the News-Review, Harry Hill tells his son, Gary, 12. When Hill was the same age as his son, he was a carrier for The News-Review. Young Gary is a substitute carrier for The Oregonian and delivers a route on E. Douglas Ave. two or three days a week. (Paul Jenkins photos)

A LOT OF TIPS on carrying newspapers can be passed on to his son Robin, by Robert Kidder. Father carried The News-Review from 1925 to 1933, working a route inherited from an older brother and passed on to a younger one. In addition, he carried Oregonian for a year and also the now defunct Portland News-Telegram. Robin is a substitute News-Review carrier.

FIRE DANGER SERIOUS
SALEM (AP) — Oregon's forest fire danger is "very serious," the state Forestry Department said today.
But the governor's office said it is optimistic over chances that the hunting season will open on schedule Saturday.
Humidities were expected to drop to 20 and 25 per cent over most of the state today, with northeasterly winds. Logging has to stop when it falls to 30 per cent.

By DOROTHY ROE
Associated Press Women's Editor
Most women have trouble raising one family, but unruffled Jane Wyatt, of New York and Hollywood, manages two with the greatest of ease.
(Miss Wyatt and her husband were visitors this week at a lodge on the North Umpqua.)

In private life she is the wife of investment banker Edgar B. Ward and mother of two sons, Chris, 21, a student at M.I.T., and Michael, 15, who attends prep school in Rhode Island.
For five years Jane's screen husband has been Robert Young, and the other members of the TV Anderson family have been her three make-believe children: Betty, the college daughter, played by Elinor Donahue; Bud, the high school son, played by Billy Gray, and little Kathy, played by Laurie Chapin.
Same Children
"We've had the same children in the east from the beginning," says Jane, "and of course all three are five years older now. We planned it that way. If the series goes on and on, as seems likely, we can start having grand-

That is where Portland Zoo Director Jack Marks faces the chilly task of catching more penguins.
The temperature was reported by a Navy radio operator via short wave to an operator in Portland.
Marks is going aboard Navy and Air Force planes to the Antarctic. On a similar expedition last year, he returned with 67 penguins. A number of them died of a lung disease after arrival here.
