George Carlson builds a monument in his mind every time he walks into his brand-new home, or looks at his fine new furniture. The inscription on Mr. Carlson's monument reads: "To the most valuable fifteen minutes I ever spent."

Mr. Carlson shivers every time he remembers how easily he might have missed out on those fifteen minutes. He could have been "out" to all callers. He could have refused to listen when we explained how woefully weak was his insurance protection.

Mr. Carlson did none of those things. Instead, he listened carefully to expert examination of his insurance coverage.

So, when fire destroyed his home, Mr. Carlson had the right insurance in the right amount to replace everything.

Your most valuable fifteen minutes may be coming around soon. You'll get competent, straightforward advice on all your insurance problems when you talk to us.
