

Halloween Party Gala Affair On Monday Night

Monday evening, Golden Agers were greeted at the door of the American Legion Hall by a pair of costumed gypsies who pinned names on the guests' back for the mixer game in which players guessed their identities by questioning other members of the group.

After all had assembled, the game, "Jack O'Lantern," was played, then fortunes were drawn from an iron cauldron on a tripod over a make-believe fire.

Other Halloween decorations included the traditional black and orange crepe paper festoons accented by cardboard cut-outs of cats, pumpkins, witches, ghosts and eerie skulls. In two corners of the hall stood tall cornstalks, scarlet vine maples and wild rose seed pods, with pumpkins, squashes and gourds at their bases.

A most attractive centerpiece used on one table was a tall witch's hat with a gay group of white skeletons in various poses forming a circle around the hat. The clever arrangement was made of pipe stem cleaners and button molds by Mrs. Marie Nelson. Orange tapers in crystal holders
