

Army Engineers Tell Morse 78 Million Dollars Needed For Oregon River Projects

By FRANK W. VAILLE
WASHINGTON (AP)—Army engineers say they could use nearly 78 million dollars next year for power, flood control and navigation projects in and around Oregon.

The engineers' figure, including money for three major Columbia River works, was made public by Sen. Wayne Morse (D-Ore.).

There was no indication how much of the amount has been asked for by the engineers in submission of their budget requests for the year beginning next July 1.

Morse, however, said he plans to urge the administration as well as appropriations committees of both the House and Senate to approve the full $77,920,100.

More than half the total—40 million dollars—could be used, engineers said, in bringing John Day lock and dam on the Columbia River to 15 per cent of completion.

An additional 7 million dollars would bring The Dalles lock and dam, also on the Columbia, to 97 per cent of completion while the availability of $3,311,000 would finish the 27-foot channel between Vancouver, Wash., and The Dalles.

Needed On Projects

On other projects now under construction, engineers told the Oregon senator they could use 9 million dollars for Hills Creek Reservoir and 11 million dollars for Cougar Reservoir. These amounts would bring Hills Creek to 80 per cent completion and Cougar to the halfway point.

Work on the Multnomah County Drainage District No. 1 flood project could be completed with $702,000. The engineers said the Willamette River bank protection program could be 65 per cent completed with $800,000.

Two million dollars also could be used on the Rogue River navigation project at Gold Beach, bringing this project to 60 per cent completion.

On authorized projects where construction has not started, the corps said it could use $2,500,000 to start work on Green Peter dam and $350,000 for the Malheur River flood control project.

Planning on the Blue River and Fall Creek reservoirs could be completed with allowances of $252,000 and $202,000, respectively. An added $12,500 could be used in planning on the John Day River flood project.

Other Jobs Needed

Amounts which engineers advised Morse could be used on other projects include:

Construction—Lower Columbia River bank protection, $600,000; Beaver Drainage District, $250,000; Deer Island Drainage District No. 6, $35,000; Magruder Drainage District, $61,000; Rainier Drainage District, $200,000; Sauvie Island Drainage District, $150,000; Woodson Drainage District, $81,000.

Planning—Hayden District, $25,000; Clatskanie Drainage District, $18,000; Deer Island Drainage District, $30,000; Scappoose Drainage District, $61,000; Pilot Rock, $11,600; Pudding River, $100,000; Umatilla River, $40,000; Willamette River channel clearing, $35,000; Hood River small boat basin, $18,000; Coos and Millicoma rivers, $22,000; Yamhill River and Willamette above Portland, $40,000; Willamette River at Willamette Falls, $85,000; Siuslaw River and bar, $21,000; Yaquina Harbor modification, $100,000; Willamette River east of Albany, $50,000; Coyote and Spencer Creek, $50,000; East Muddy and Lake Creek, $100,000; Flat Creek $50,000; Shelton Ditch, $50,000; West Muddy and Mary's River, $50,000 and Bear Creek, $28,000.

Sen. Morse Couldn't Be Recalled, Says Thornton

SALEM (AP)—Oregon's congressional delegation isn't subject to recall by the voters under an attorney general's opinion rendered 23 years ago.

State Rep. Fayette I. Bristol (R-Grants Pass) has asked Atty. Gen. Robert Y. Thornton whether Sen. Wayne Morse could be recalled.

Thornton said he has sent Bristol the copy of the 1933 opinion rendered by former Atty. Gen. I. H. Van Winkle.

In that opinion, Van Winkle advised the secretary of state he couldn't accept recall petitions against a U. S. senator or a U. S. representative.

Van Winkle explained, in that members of Congress are federal officers, and thus immune from the state recall laws.

The opinion has never been tested in court.

Goons Again Rear In Havana; Bank Loses $150,000

By LARRY ALLEN
HAVANA, Cuba (AP)—Heavy gunfire broke out early today between suspected rebels and police and military intelligence agents in the Santa Suarez section in southern Havana.

The shooting, which continued from 4 a.m. until dawn, started when police raided a third floor apartment searching for arms.

Rebels, said to have included two men and a woman, fired machineguns and hurled grenades in an unsuccessful effort to fight off police.

Early reports said one woman and an intelligence agent were wounded. Police made no immediate announcement on casualties.

Presumably, the suspected rebels were captured after police called for fire department ladders to scale the building and hurl tear gas.

The gunfire touched off a flood of rumors that a rebel uprising had been attempted.

Other developments:

Four men and a woman armed with pistols held up the Royal Bank in Canada in Sagua la Grande in central Las Villas Province and escaped with $150,000.

Cubana Airlines resumed flights today within the rebel stronghold of Oriente Province. Airline officials were searching all passengers as a precaution against further "kidnappings" of aircraft by Cuban rebels.

Cubana has lost three planes since Oct. 21 because of rebel action.

Miss Shoda has been seen much in the prince's company.

The two-month-old magazine went counter to an agreement by Japanese newspapers, wire services and television stations last June to carry no speculation on the crown prince's bride and to wait for an official announcement. Magazines were not obligated but had refrained from carrying any story on the subject.

Soviet Nuclear Shots Rouse Assembly Fears

While saying they were not resuming tests at least for now, the American and British governments took the position that the Soviet shots had freed them from their self-imposed obligation to suspend such tests for a year.

First Russian reaction to Eisenhower's statement came from the news agency Tass. Without giving details of Eisenhower's statement, Tass said "it appears . . . that the U.S. government is getting ready to continue nuclear tests despite its promise to suspend them for one year . . ."

3rd U. S. Moonrocket Fizzles In 3rd Stage

On Aug. 17 when the big rocket blew up after 77 seconds of flight.

But on Oct. 11, a second 88-foot rocket traveled about 90,850 miles toward the moon before falling back into the atmosphere and burning up from friction.

Scientists had hoped to get to within 16,000 miles of the moon, and possibly into orbit around it.

Chances of Pioneer II being a success had been rated in advance at less than 1 in 10.

In its announcement, NASA said Pioneer II reached an estimated maximum speed of about 16,000 miles an hour—well below the 23,000 miles an hour scientists said was needed to send a rocket to the region of the moon.

A spokesman said the rocket probably flew slightly less than 45 minutes.

Although Pioneer II apparently failed in its major mission, it roared enough for the automatic radio signals from the payload to be received for 16 minutes by a tracking station at Jodrell Bank in England. The signals were received between 2:45 and 3:01 a.m.

The trip to the moon would have taken 2 1/2 days, or until next Monday afternoon.

Ballistic Missile Power Of U.S., Soviet Compared

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Maj. Gen. Bernard A. Schriever gives this as a consensus of informed opinion:

Russia has an edge over the United States in short-range ballistic missiles, substantially less of a lead in intermediate range weapons and apparently is about even in intercontinental range missiles.

The commander of the Air Force ballistic missile division told the World Affairs Council Friday:

"In saying this I do not want to leave you with the impression that all our problems are solved or that we can relax.

"We need to worry. We need to do some constructive worrying. It would do us no harm to stay up nights worrying—constructively—because we are up against an adversary who never ceases and rarely sleeps."

Wilderness Bill Opinions Divided At Bend Hearing

BEND, Ore. (AP)—A hearing on a wilderness bill entered its second and final stage here today.

After final testimony is taken here, Sens. Richard Neuberger (D-Ore) and Henry Dworshak (R-Idaho) move on for similar hearings Nov. 10 in San Francisco and Nov. 12 in Salt Lake City.

Under the bill, all wilderness areas would be combined, and their status could be altered only by the Congress.

Most logging and cattlemen's groups said Friday that they opposed the bill because it would stifle the west's economic development.

And one, George Wall, president of the Chelan Box and Manufacturing Co., said it would remove vital timber from the market.

However, Clarke Collins of the Oregon Wildlife Federation testified the bill "would accomplish the necessary transition from an exploitation-dictated forest management policy to one of best ultimate use."

Another witness, William Larson, Seattle, director of the Washington Forest Protective Assn., said the bill would prevent fire protection roads from being built in the wilderness areas.

A Forest Service spokesman later said temporary fire protection roads were allowed for by the bill.

Rome's Police Break Up Party

ROME (AP)—Rome police today charged a Turkish dancer with "obscene acts in public" for doing a striptease at a party attended by the international set. The restaurant where the party was held Wednesday night was closed by police for what they called morally repugnant.

Italian newspapers published photos of Anita Ekberg dancing barefooted at the party, which was attended by about 100 persons, including film stars and young members of Roman nobility.

It was given by Peter Howard, son of the Vanderbilt family, for Countess Ghigna of Robilant to celebrate her 25th birthday. Film stars among the guests included Elsa Martinelli, Linda Christian and Eleonora Rossi Drago.

Police broke up the party and took names of the guests, but the only charge lodged was against Turkish dancer Ajse Nur Nanah. Newspapers said she has been working as a striptease artist in Paris and was in Rome seeking a movie part. She was not taken into custody.

Prankster Trick Might Cost College $6,000

WILLIAMSTOWN, Mass. (AP)—On the eve of the Williams-Tufts football game Oct. 26, a prankster painted the Tufts nickname "Jumbo" across the front of Chapin Hall—one letter on each of five columns.

Now it turns out the damage was Jumbo-sized, too.

Williams College officials said Friday night that to obliterate the word might cost as much as $6,000.

Steam and chemical solvents failed. Next the college plans to sandblast, following with a dye to restore the columns to their original color. If that is unsuccessful, the entire building may have to be sandblasted.

A Williams spokesman said Tufts officials have assured Williams that restitution will be made.

PLAIN TRUTH

By Glen W. Lundy: Gospel Evangelist

The common conception of religious worship today is: how can it be conducted so as to please the worshipers? Religious changes, alter, embellish and in many ways strive to cater to the whims of men. One would almost think that it was man being worshipped rather than God. As a consequence religious worship in many groups has come to be little more than a pleasant, fraternal get-together under the guise of worship.

And the truth is that God is very definite about what pleases Him and what he desires from man by way of service. First of all He demands our entire attention be in the spirit. Jn. 4:24. God does not receive strength and a blessing from worship because they are not "tuned in" to God. Our desire must be to please Him, not man to follow, he has revealed what will please Him. He desires that we worship Him in song. Eph. 5:19-20. He desires our prayers. Phil. 4:6. He desires us to commemorate the death and resurrection of His Son by gathering about the Lord's Table on the first day of the week. 1 Cor. 11:23-26. Acts 20:7. He desires our offerings to be given purposefully and regularly on the first of the week. 1 Cor. 16:1-2. These things we can know will please Him for He has so declared. We receive strength and joy from such worship because we know we are glorifying and pleasing our Creator and our Savior.

Do you measure your worship service by whether it pleases you or God? We invite you to worship according to the Order of God in heaven. God's smile is to be valued above the acclaim of men.
