Top U. S. Club Boy Native Of Latvia

BINGHAMTON, N.Y. (AP)—"I just wish my father could know this," said John Drupa when he learned that he had been chosen boy of the year by the Boys Club of America.

The 16-year-old high school sophomore, born in Soviet dominated Latvia, explained that his father, Theodore, and an older brother are in Latvia. They had been held in Siberia until recently, he said. John, a 5-foot-8, crew-cut youngster, came to the United States about 10 years ago with his mother, a sister and a brother. He attends North High School.

He celebrated his selection as boy of the year by taking his best girl to a dance.

The Boys Club bases its selection, which was announced Friday night, on service to community, schools, church and the club. A committee at Boys Club national headquarters in New York City made the selection.
