Smith was one of six committee members who voted against clearing the measure last month when it was considered by the 12-man group. All four Republicans and another Democrat, William Colmer of Mississippi, joined Smith in blocking the measure.

The cost tag placed on the present bill by its Democrat backers is $2,100,000,000. Republicans contend the cost would be $5,800,000,000 over the long term, including an estimated $3,700,000,000 in principal and interest for 4-year public housing subsidies.

FOREST GROVE, Ore. (AP)—Dr. Miller A. F. Ritchie, president of Hartwick College at Oneonta, N.Y., will be the next president of Pacific University.

He will replace Charles J. Armstrong, who quit last fall to take a similar position at the University of Nevada.

In Ritchie's five years at Hartwick, Rossman said, the building program expanded and endowment funds received large additions.

Ritchie is married and has three children. He is a graduate of Roanoke College in Virginia and also earned degrees at William and Mary and New York University.
