Ground Breaking--Modern Style

"DOWN THIS WAY," says William Garrison, president of the YMCA board of directors, as Wayne Schulz, YMCA general secretary, mans the controls and Pete Sarafin, city councilman, looks on to what will be a 25x75 foot heated indoor swimming pool. The ground-breaking ceremony took place Monday at Stewart Park in Roseburg where the new YMCA building will be located. Schulz pointed out an interesting fact at the ceremony. He said that on June 6, 1844, the YMCA was founded in London, England and on June 6, 1960, a new YMCA building was started in Roseburg. (News-Review Photo)

Herter Believes President Should Make Orient Trip

WASHINGTON (AP) — Secretary of State Christian A. Herter said today President Eisenhower should go ahead with his plans to visit Japan June 19.

Herter told the Senate Foreign Relations Committee that despite demonstrations in Japan against the visit "under existing circumstances, the President's plans ought to remain unchanged."

Herter expressed this view in response to a question from Sen. Bourke B. Hickenlooper (R-Iowa).

The secretary told the senators that he would prefer to make any further comment in a closed session.

Herter was before the committee to urge Senate ratification of the new U.S. - Japanese treaty which he said will strengthen the "fabric of international peace and security."

There have been leftist demonstrations in Japan against both Eisenhower's visit and the treaty, scheduled to take effect at the same day the President arrives. Chairman J. William Fulbright (D-Ark) said the open hearing on the treaty would be followed by a closed session on questions that were not proper for public discussion.

Herter told the committee at the open hearing that the old security treaty, signed immediately after the state of war with Japan was ended, gave the United States the right to station troops in Japan for maintenance of peace and security in the Far East. But there was no obligation on the United States to assist in Japan's defense, he said.

Japanese Socialist opposition to the treaty is based on a desire to strengthen their ties with Communist China," Herter said.

He added that the Socialists want to be associated with Red China in belief it is "the wave of the future."

"They oppose any relations with the United States in a military sense," Herter said under questioning by Chairman J. William Fulbright (D-Ark).

Herter said the treaty defined the Far East where the United States will help maintain peace and stability as being primarily north of the Philippines to include Japan, the Republic of Korea and the area controlled by Nationalist China.

Not all members of the senate group have joined in Fulbright's doubts as to the wisdom of Eisenhower's visiting Japan at this time. Sen. George A. Aiken (R-Vt.) took a different view. He said, in a separate interview, that only a minor percentage of the Japanese people are opposed to the treaty and a lesser percentage to the president's visit.

"I think the decision probably should be left to the Japanese government," Aiken said. "If the President doesn't go it will provide new propaganda fuel for Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev. I'm sure the Japanese government wouldn't want the President to come if they didn't have the situation in hand."

The Japanese government reiterated Monday there are no plans to postpone Eisenhower's visit. Both Fulbright and Aiken said they know of no opposition to U.S. ratification of the treaty, which was signed here earlier this year.

The pact, replacing one signed after World War II, is designed to give Japan added recognition as an equal rather than a conquered nation and to provide for mutual defense arrangements.

1,200 Autos Checked

Around 1,200 vehicles were checked in the recent safety inspection carried on by the Roseburg Police Department, according to Bert Eaton, captain.

Capt. Eaton praised the public and press cooperation during the checks. It was found that 380 of the cars needed service, he added.

Riders Panic In New York Subway Fire

NEW YORK (AP) — Hundreds of subway riders fought their way to safety through acrid, choking smoke today after fire broke out in a tunnel near busy Grand Central Terminal.

A trainman said some passengers became hysterical and screamed in terror during a wait of over one hour before rescuers could start leading them out.

Several subway trains were stalled in the smoke-filled tunnel section, but operation of railroad lines into Grand Central was not affected.

Officials said 86 people were taken to hospitals for treatment. Fire Commissioner Edward F. Cavanagh Jr. said the blaze apparently started in rubbish and spread to cable insulation. It forced suspension of all service between the Brooklyn Bridge at the foot of Manhattan Island northwest to 88th street for three hours.

The fire broke out at 9:25 a.m., but rescuers hampered by the blinding smoke, were unable to start leading out passengers out for over an hour.

The subway station under the big mid-Manhattan terminal, was filled with smoke. However, the upper level passenger facilities of the New York Central and New Haven railways which use the terminal were not affected.

Lake County Lease Title Suit Opens

A lawsuit to determine lease title to some 24,000 acres of property in Lake County north of Lakeview went to trial today in the Lake County Courthouse.

The property, owned by the Fremont Lumber Co., has been under lease to Starrell Petroleum Co., owned by a group of Roseburg residents who have been interested in uranium deposits there.

Last Thursday the sale of the Starrell lease holdings by the Roseburg group, headed by Dr. Harvey W. Kring as president, to Oklahoma interests, headed by Odes J. Harwood of Oklahoma City, was announced.

The sale, however, is subject to satisfactory settlement of the court case in favor of Starrell.

Fremont Lumber Co. has leased the property to Humble Oil Co., and seeks, through the suit, to quiet title to the property. Fremont claims Starrell did not do sufficient work to retain the lease.

Dr. Kring and others from Roseburg interested in Starrell were in Lakeview today.

If she is elected, she will win merchandise prizes and a trip to another of the state's rodeos. The girl selling the most tickets to the rodeo will also win a trip to another rodeo in Oregon. (Chris Studio)

Lou Ann Shelton Represents Glide Community On Court

She will be one of the five candidates of the court to be selected as queen Friday night at 7:15. Queen Donna Esselstrom of the 1959 rodeo will officially crown one of the five during a television show on KPIC.

The other four candidates are Cheryl Lee Carmine, Eleanor Irwin, Gerry Garrett and Genevieve Shelton (no relation to Lou Ann). Lou Ann is not only good-looking and vivacious, she has a talent with horses as well. For example, in a recent horse show, she received a trophy for being high-point winner, another in English pleasure riding.

A belt buckle in the keyhole race, another for musical staves and a second place for horsemanship.

The 15-year-old candidate is characterized by ready wit.

Roseburg High Band At Event

Two bus loads of Roseburg High School band students, their chaperones and Director Robert Lennette, plus a van to haul equipment and a pickup for additional luggage departed from Roseburg at 8 a.m. today for Portland.

This is the start of a five-day participation in the Rose Festival activities, for which the band has been preparing since receiving an invitation to be the state "honor band" for the festival.

The schedule calls for a noon stop in Salem for lunch on the capitol grounds in Wilson Park. They will go on to Portland, expecting to arrive at 4 p.m. They will make their first appearance tonight in the Merrykhana Parade at 7 o'clock.

Their week's activities will include 10 appearances in all. There will be two brief parades of their own downtown and in the Hollywood district, plus a concert in Holladay park and playing for the sports show on Wednesday.

Two concerts and a short parade for the queen coronation are slated Thursday. Friday will be the Junior Rose Festival parade and Saturday the grand floral parade. The students are scheduled to return to Roseburg, arriving at 9:30 p.m. Saturday.

Approximately 80 students made the trip. Drivers and chaperones brought the number to more than 90 in the party.

Besides the band a Roseburg memento of recent vintage will be in the line of march. That would be the "On-To-Oregon" Cavalcade wagon representing the Douglas County city.

It'll join those from Medford, Drain, Cottage Grove, Independence, Eugene, and Hillsboro. They made the now-famous trek from Independence, Mo. to Independence, Ore. last year. The "Ol Blue Van," the supply van furnished by Consolidate Freightways Corp., will also meander merrily along the Merrykhana route.

Weaver Clark of Hillsboro, president of the permanent On-To-Oregon Cavalcade organization, says it'll be the first time all the wagons will be assembled together since the cross-country pioneering journey.

County Courts Discuss Forest Service Income

A general discussion of forest service income was held in Roseburg recently by representatives of five county courts.

Court members from Jackson, Josephine, Curry, and Lane counties participated, but Douglas County Judge V. T. Jackson said there was little tangible to come out of the discussions.

Federal Jury Convicts Ohio Union Official

CLEVELAND, Ohio (AP) — A federal jury today convicted William Presser, head of the 85,000-member Ohio Teamsters Council, of a charge of obstructing justice.

Sentence was delayed when his attorney announced he would file a motion for a new trial. The defendant impassively had the jury of six men and six women polled to verify the verdict.

In a week-long trial the government presented evidence designed to show that the union official obstructed the work of the Senate rackets committee by tearing and mutilating an invoice contained in the records of Teamsters Joint Council 41, in Cleveland.

The records had been subpoenaed by the committee in September 1958.

Maximum penalty for the offense would be five years in jail or a $5,000 fine, or both.

Specifically, Presser was charged with tearing an invoice from a jewelry firm, with an attached "Christmas list," so that the names of recipients were missing.

The Christmas list was for eight silver champagne buckets, valued at about $100 each, and was dated December 1955.

One name on the list was that of George Bender, former Republican senator. In 1958 he had been appointed by the Teamsters Union to a commission to clean up corruption in the union.

Forest Shutdown Regulations Set

A shutdown in logging operations when humidity sinks to 30 per cent or lower has been ordered for most of Douglas County, according to Fred L. Southwick, district fire warden of the Douglas Forest Protective Assn.

The only areas excluded so far are those south of the Cow Creek divide and north of State Highway 98.

All operations of power driven machinery and equipment used in sawmilling, logging or other operations within an eighth of a mile of forest land must:

1. Close down the operation during any day or part of a day when the relative humidity is 30 per cent or lower in the operation area, unless the forester gives written permission to operate.

2. Close down when high wind prevails over the operation area and the relative humidity is 35 per cent or lower unless written permission to continue operations is given by the forester.

High wind shall be considered as any continuous wind or air disturbance causing an increase in fire danger in the area.

These regulations were effective June 6 until cancellation.

After June 15, Southwick added, permits will be necessary on all incinerators burning within an eighth of a mile of forest land.

Timber Income Drops

Douglas County has received $263,051.80 from property sales and timber payments for the 1959-1960 fiscal year, reports county treasurer Bert Laurence.

This is a drop from the 1958-1959 year, when $670,648.33 was collected.

Solons Show Concern Over Future Of Pacific Fishery

WASHINGTON (AP) — Northwest congressmen Tuesday discussed with the State Department their concern over the future of North Pacific salmon, crab and bottom fisheries.

The eleven senators and congressmen from Washington and Alaska asked for the meeting to discuss international problems facing the North Pacific fisheries, with emphasis on Japanese and Russian activities in the area. They arranged to meet with Under Secretary of State Douglas Dillon.

Sen. E. L. Bartlett (D-Alaska) expected no immediate results from the session, but said the legislators "want to let the State Department know what is on our minds and find out what they are thinking about these problems."

Sen. Warren G. Magnuson (D-Wash.) said the talks would concern the "recently concluded Japanese - Russian salmon agreement, the failure to effect agreement at the Geneva Law of the Seas Conference, and the possibility of bringing about a unilateral agreement with Canada covering American off-shore fisheries."

In asking for a meeting, the elevenfold Secretary of State Christian A. Herter that prospects for a good 1960 run of salmon from Alaska's Bristol Bay area are largely due to conservation efforts of American fishermen in past years.

Quick Strikes Idle 5 More Test Centers

SAN DIEGO, Calif. (AP) — Two Atlas missile test launchings at Cape Canaveral, Fla., were postponed today because of the machinist strike against Convair, which makes the ocean-spanning rocket.

The union meanwhile expanded its walkout by calling new "quickie" strikes against Convair in San Diego. Some facilities here already had been struck.

The International Assn. of Machinists pulled workers out of two departments at the Convair plant here in a continuing policy of calling quick strikes, a spokesman said, "where it hurts the most."

Fifty men who service Air Force F106 jet interceptors before they are flown from the plant and an undetermined number of maintenance workers inside the plant were called off the job today.

This brings the total of IAM members out at missile bases and plants to about 2,450, a spokesman said. The number of IAM workers at Convair facilities prior to the strike was given as 27,235.

Work at five missile bases including the Cape Canaveral test firings came from the Air Force in Washington. The launchings had been scheduled for this week.

The strike, which was called early Monday by the IAM in the wage dispute, has curtailed activity at five missile bases including Vandenberg Air Force Base, Calif., site of the nation's only combat-ready Atlas launching pads.

Construction of new launchings facilities has been slowed at Vandenberg because many workers are refusing to cross the IAM picket lines.

However, the machinists today agreed to confine their picket lines at Cape Canaveral to Convair operations inside that missile test center instead of placing them at entrances to the facility.

The decision means that construction work can resume on key launching complexes. Some 2,000 building tradesmen honored the machinists' lines Monday, halting all construction work. Approximately 500 members of other unions also refused to cross the lines, but they too will be able to resume work now.

A Polaris submarine missile was launched at Cape Canaveral today. The strike has tied up construction at the Cape.

A Convair spokesman said the strike had forced it to reduce the number of shifts it operates at Vandenberg and at Edwards Air Force Base, Calif., a flight test center on the desert 100 miles north of Los Angeles.

Convair normally operates three shifts around the clock at Vandenberg and one or two at Edwards. Only one shift is operating today at both bases.

The strike was called at midnight Sunday by International Assn. of Machinists. However, another 25,000 IAM workers at plants here which make the big missile voted to go on working because large scale strikes are too costly.

Five bases were laid when many other union workers refused to cross IAM picket lines.

They were: Vandenberg AFB, whose war-ready pads and gantries are located on a windy mesa and beach 160 miles north of Los Angeles.

Cape Canaveral, where the Atlantic missile range that recently sent an Atlas zooming 9,000 miles to the tip of Africa in a test shot.

Warren AFB, Wyo., and Offutt AFB, Neb., where Atlas launch pads are near completion.

Water Safety Courses Slated By Red Cross

Mrs. Rummell, American Red Cross Water Safety Chairman of the Douglas County Chapter, announced that a Water Safety instructor's (WSI) refresher course is being given for those who currently hold a WSI card. The instruction will be given on Wednesday, Thursday and Friday of this week.

Ron McAnaney, First Aid and Water Safety Field Representative of the American National Red Cross from the San Francisco Area office will be instructing the three-day course. Ron is a graduate of Roseburg High School and more recently of San Francisco State College.

The initial meeting is set for Wednesday at 1 p.m. at the Armory. Two American Red Cross movies will be shown at that time, "Teach Johnny How to Swim," and "Boats, Motor, and People."

Any instructors who will teach swimming this summer should plan to attend.

No Specifics

Lindholm came up with no specific answers for the problem, but he indicated possibilities existed. He said the housing industry should try to devise a method to get at the equity savings which are available.

"There is no shortage in money, and there are plenty of savings," he said. But they are just not available under present conditions.

Lindholm's broad topic for the meeting was money and fiscal policy.

Looking at general economic conditions in the United States, he said that comparatively stable prices of consumer goods are due to the depression of agricultural prices. He said industry as a whole is "being subsidized" by the slide ing agricultural prices.

Lindholm warned that this situation of prices going up slowly cannot continue because wages in industry are continuing to climb, and production is not increasing fast enough to offset them.

Foreign Sales

Coming back to the matter of "tight money," he said the money supply is not going up as fast as the volume of loans in the United States. This means that bank reserves are cut back, giving the federal reserve system a tighter rein on the money that can be loaned. This power is due to the fact commercial banks have to borrow from the federal reserve.

The University of Oregon authority on the gold reserve situation. He said the dwindling gold supply is caused by the United States paying out more money than it is receiving back.

He said he thinks the situation will improve as industry begins doing a better job of selling its products abroad. He said the considerable amount of American travel and investment abroad has drained the gold supplies.

Levy Fact Rant

By L. F. Reizenstein

"What's so rare as a day in June."

A desired day when Uncle Sam, in reply to Khrushchev's bluster, will use General McAuliffe's answer at Bastogne, Belgium, to the Nazi demand for surrender:

"Nuts."

Asked by the puzzled Nazi general what he meant, Mc. Auliffe replied:

"It means, 'Go to hell'." (Quoted from history)
