Russia Agrees To Meet Delay

WASHINGTON (AP) — Russia today agreed to President Kennedy's request for a six-week delay in resumption of the nuclear test ban talks in Geneva.

U. S. Ambassador Llewellyn Thompson was handed a note in Moscow telling of the Russian's agreement. The Soviet government was to make the text public later in the day.

Thompson reported immediately to the State Department. Officials there said the tone of the note was civil and that it was relatively brief—less than 300 words.

A first reading indicated no Soviet effort to use the note as a vehicle for propaganda.

There had been some puzzlement here over why the Russians had not replied earlier to putting off the talks until March 21.

The test ban conference, which has been held on and off in Switzerland for more than two years, was recessed early in December with agreement to start again Feb. 7.
