

Extensive Big Game Populations Allow Liberal Season Rules

High densities of deer and elk in all sections of the state influenced the commission to allow another liberal harvest of big game animals during the 1961 seasons under tentative rules established Thursday, May 18, following a public hearing in Portland. Under the tentative rules, the big game seasons for 1961 would follow closely the big game hunts of a year ago. The final regulations for the 1961 season will be adopted by the commission at a second hearing on June 1.

Under tentative rules established the general buck deer season would run from Sept. 30 through Oct. 22, with forked-horns legal game in western Oregon and buck deer with visible antlers legal game east of the Cascade range. Management units would be thrown open to antlerless deer hunting Oct. 7 and run through the remainder of the season allowing permit holders and additional week from last year to take animals of either sex. A total of 130,700 permits would be allowed, an increase of 1,800 permits over last year. Adjustments in permit quotas would be made in a number of units to increase or decrease the take of antlerless animals. Slight adjustments were made in several unit boundaries and one new unit established, the Sprague, although no antlerless permits would be authorized this year.

In addition to the 62 management units for the taking of antlerless animals, 11 extended seasons would give holders of unused tags late season hunts for deer, mostly in agricultural areas.

Hunters who would like to take two deer would have this opportunity in 28 controlled hunt areas. A total of 15,800 tags would be authorized in these areas at a tag fee of $5.00.

The general elk hunt for bull elk would run from Oct. 28 through Nov. 10 in western Oregon and from Oct. 28 through Nov. 26 in southeastern Oregon elk areas.

The commission would clamp down on elk hunters in the north coast area under the tentative rules established where hunting would be allowed by permit only in an attempt to cut down the high illegal elk kill by mass concentrations of hunters. A total of 5,000 permits would be authorized for the Clatsop unit, valid from 9 a.m. Oct. 28 through Nov. 10, and 750 either-sex permits in the Clatsop agricultural areas, valid on Dec. 16 and 17. In the Wilson unit a total of 600 bull and 200 cow permits would be issued, valid during the regular season, 9 a.m. Oct. 28 through Nov. 10. Clatsop and Wilson hunters would be allowed to apply for either cow or bull permit but not for both.

Permit quotas for the elk management units and special areas would be similar to last year, with 2,050 authorized for northeastern Oregon and 750 for western Oregon, mostly on the south coast.

The antelope hunt was tentatively scheduled from Aug. 19 through 23, with 900 tags scheduled for the six antelope areas. Archery hunts would follow a similar pattern to last year's hunts.

Following are the big game seasons for 1961 tentatively established by the commission.
