

Western Big Four Say Next Berlin Move Up To Russians

PARIS (AP)—The Western Big Four foreign ministers made clear today they are willing to negotiate a settlement of the Berlin problem but left the next move to the Soviet Union.

After a two-day review of the crisis resulting from Soviet Premier Khrushchev's new drive to end the allied occupation of West Berlin, Secretary of State Dean Rusk and the foreign ministers of Britain, France and West Germany said they would talk with the Soviets "only on a reasonable basis."

but that the Soviets have done nothing so far to provide for such an approach.

Mutual Respect Asked
The talks must be conducted on a "plane of mutual respect," a French spokesman said. A British spokesman said Moscow's last notes to the four allies, threatening a separate peace with the East Germans and demanding a new status for West Berlin, amounted to "abuse which does not provide reasonable basis for negotiation."

The Western powers decided to await further developments before taking any initiative toward an East-West conference. One of these developments will be Premier Khrushchev's speech to night.

Khrushchev, reportedly angered by President Kennedy's speech on the Soviet challenge to Berlin, is expected to reply when he goes on a nationwide radio and TV network. The Soviet leader reportedly told visiting Italian Premier Amintore Fanfani he considered Kennedy's speech excessively belligerent.

Reds To Sign Pact

Leaders of the Communist Warsaw Pact nations disclosed Saturday night they had decided in a secret three-day Kremlin meeting to sign a separate peace treaty with East Germany by the end of this year. The eight-nation group asserted that delaying a German treaty indefinitely would "contribute to an intensification of the threat of a new war in Europe and not only in Europe."

Khrushchev stated in notes to the Western powers last week that he is ready to negotiate a settlement on the future of Germany and Berlin. But he apparently left it to the West to take the initiative.

The ministers issued no communiqué after their review of the Berlin situation, but their spokesmen gave this sumup:

1. The conference agreed the Communist threat to West Berlin is a threat to free men everywhere. The Western powers are determined to prevent East Germany from taking over West Berlin.

West Behind Kennedy
Any reasonable basis for negotiating the problem will be welcomed, but the West stands behind President Kennedy's denunciation of the Soviet conception of negotiation as meaning "what's mine is mine and what's yours is negotiable."

3. No decision was made to propose an East-West conference of foreign ministers or heads of government.

NASA Continues Push To Orbit U. S. Astronaut By Year's End

WASHINGTON (AP)—The National Aeronautics and Space Administration, abashed though it may be at the Soviet Union's newest manned satellite triumph, is moving ahead with a program that could place a Mercury astronaut in orbit by next December or January.

The NASA plans to attempt within a month to launch an unmanned Mercury spacecraft into orbit, and then bring it back to earth again.

Officials said the Mercury program—which has sent astronauts Alan Shepard and Virgil Grissom on 15-minute suborbital rocket flights—is moving forward as rapidly as possible.

George M. Low, chief of NASA's manned flight program, said Sunday the Soviet feat had been anticipated by U.S. space officials, but probably could not be duplicated by this country for "quite some time."

The attempt expected this month to orbit an unmanned Mercury capsule would employ an Atlas rocket more than four times as powerful as the Redstone used in the Shepard and Grissom flights.

If the craft is launched successfully and recovered after one or more orbits, the next Mercury-Atlas shot—according to present plans—would have a chimpanzee aboard.

Only after the effects on the animal have been observed does NASA plan to risk a human life. The manned orbital flight is still on the agency's calendar for late this year, but officials privately have been dubious that it could be achieved before early 1962.

Low said the United States has more ambitious plans for its Apollo program, which would follow Mercury. Apollo is designed to land at least one man and possibly three on the moon "within the decade." The Apollo capsule is not yet built.

Another NASA official, Dr. Robert C. Seamans Jr., said NASA hopes to launch the first manned Apollo vehicle in late 1964 or early 1965. The mission would be to launch up to three men at a time in the capsule, which would make a prolonged orbit about the earth, with a maximum of two weeks.

Gen. Bernard A. Schriever, head of the U.S. military space effort, said after Russian cosmonaut Gherman Titov reportedly landed safely that the flight was "quite a feat."

But Schriever said it was to be expected in view of Soviet achievements to date.

NASA officials had no immediate comment on the Russian report that Titov had been recovered safely and indicated it may have none.

Humphrey Says Administration Has Votes To Best Opposition

WASHINGTON (AP)—Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey, D-Minn., said today the Kennedy administration has the votes to defeat a coalition effort to require yearly congressional approval of long-range foreign aid lending.

"We are very optimistic about Senate passage of this provision," Humphrey said. "We are not going to compromise on it. We don't have to, since we have the votes."

Aid Debate Due

After time out for argument over the nomination of Lawrence J. O'Connor Jr., of Houston, to the Federal Power Commission, the Senate will plunge back into debate on its $4,326,500,000 version of a foreign aid authorization bill.

The House, engaged in routine matters, may reach by midweek a showdown vote on the Senate's action in adding $95 million to a money bill to finance an electric power producing installation at the Hanford, Wash., plutonium plant.

Humphrey, the assistant Senate Democratic leader, said he is confident administration forces can scuttle a proposal by Sen. Harry F. Byrd, D-Va., to require annual congressional appropriations for a proposed $8.8 billion development loan fund.

Kennedy Seeks Bypass

President Kennedy asked for five-year authority to finance such loans through Treasury borrowing, a method which would bypass congressional control of the pursestrings in future years. Loan authority of $1,187,000,000 for the first year is included in the pending bill.

Byrd made no victory claims in a separate interview. He said only that he believes the critical vote will be close and he has a chance of winning it.

Byrd said he had been informed that 32 of the Senate's 36 Republicans would support his amendment, which is backed by Senate Republican Leader Everett M. Dirksen of Illinois. Byrd said Southern and some Western Democrats had promised backing.

Sen. George D. Aiken, R-Vt., said he fears at least six Republicans will vote against the Byrd proposal. He said he hasn't too much hope that it will be adopted.

Compromises May Be Due
Several proposed compromises for keeping congressional strings on the loan fund may be offered. The consensus was the battle would be won or lost on the Byrd amendment.

Sens. Leverett Saltonstall, R-Mass., and Kenneth B. Keating, R-N.Y., have proposed that Congress be given a veto over all loans of $10 million or more. They would require that all loans above this minimum be reported to Congress, with either house permitted to reject them by majority vote within 30 days.

Senate Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield of Montana said he couldn't predict when the Senate will reach a vote on the Byrd amendments. He said he hopes that action on the bill can be completed this week.

Six In Hospital After Accidents

Weekend automobile accidents sent six persons to hospitals, according to reports of State Police.

Diane Marie McCullah, Riddle, was taken to Douglas Community Hospital suffering from a fracture of the right arm, injury to her right knee, head injuries and numerous cuts and abrasions. Her companion, Ronald Kay McNeil, 21, Myrtle Creek, was taken to Myrtle Creek clinic with undetermined injuries, following a car accident on the Shoshone Road, ¼ mile from Riddle going toward Canyonville. The accident occurred at 1:50 a.m. Sunday.

Turn Missed

According to the police report, the car failed to negotiate a right hand curve, went into the ditch on the west side of the road, skidded along a ditch approximately 80 feet on one wheel, then struck a power pole as the car rolled over. The pole was sheered off. The car was registered to Miss McCullah. The driver was not immediately determined.

Four youths were taken to a Cottage Grove Hospital by Dr. James Nielsen following another one-car accident on Highway 225, south of the Smith Ferry Bridge, seven miles from Elkton. The injuries were not serious.

The owner and operator was Elmer S. Rasmussen, of W. Ivan St., Roseburg, and passengers were Donald Gordon Larson, 19, of 430 Leland Ave., Roseburg, and Laurie Watson, 18, and Linda Watson, 15, All but Laurie Watson were treated and released. Her condition was reported from the hospital as good.

Mechanical Difficulty Noted

The State Police report said the accident resulted either when the brakes locked or a tire blew out as the car was approaching another car on a curve. To avoid striking the other car, Rasmussen took to the ditch on the east side of the highway, police said. The car traveled approximately 135 feet in the ditch, came out of the ditch sideways, crossed the highway and went over a 45-foot bank, before coming to rest.

A non-injury accident occurred at 4:50 p.m. on the Willis Creek Rd., seven miles south of the Rice Creek Junction. A car, owned and operated by William Bennie Wood, of 1245 SE Mill St., Roseburg, was traveling south and approaching a curve. A second car, registered to Harold Colton and operated by Karen Darlene Colton of Dillard, came around the curve. The car started to slide in loose gravel over into the southbound lane of traffic. The wooden car suffered a dent on the side door, and the Colton car a smashed left front fender. Both cars left under their own power.

Resisting Arrest Holds Local Man

City police report they had considerable trouble jailing a man on a disorderly conduct charge, and that after he was placed in a cell in the city jail, he proceeded to tear it up.

Lloyd Avin Craig, 29, a railroad worker living on SE Mosher St., is also booked on a charge of resisting arrest.

Officers were called to a Roseburg tavern by the manager, about 11:50 a.m. Sunday. He said the man had caused a disturbance then left after issuing a threat.

Officer Larry Burge on his way to the scene saw a man answering the description, so stopped him and asked him to return to the scene to straighten things out.

Craig agreed and was left outside in the patrol car with a reserve officer, while the officer went inside to talk to the manager and witnesses. He came out and informed Craig he was under arrest, but the latter proceeded to kick at the rear window and rip up the interior of the vehicle. The officer and reserve managed to get the handcuffs on him, but it took the assistance of several bystanders to get him in the car, and further aid to place Craig in a cell at the city jail.

Inside the jail, according to officer Burge, Craig rammed the bunk against the door, cracking the plaster and denting the door and wall. Later he called for the services of a doctor, because he had cut his hand. He was taken to Community Hospital for treatment, and is scheduled for hearing in Municipal Court today.

450 New State Laws Due Wednesday

SALEM (AP)—Oregon's residents will become subject to 450 new laws Wednesday, 90 days after the end of the 1961 legislative session.

On that day, it will become illegal to refuse to sell goods or services to a person because of his race or religion. Another new law allows state and local officials to name their successors in case of death in an enemy attack.

Tougher laws against water and air pollution go into effect, as does a law abolishing the state Hydroelectric Commission and giving its powers to the Water Resources Board and the Water Engineer.

The state Highway Commission gets authority to issue $24 million in bonds to build the Astoria bridge and $4 million each for reconstruction of the Coos Bay-Roseburg and north end of the Dalles-California Highway.

Basic school aid to local districts goes up from $105 per child per year to $115. A Scenic Area Commission of seven members will be created, with power to ban billboards from scenic areas.

Another new law is aimed at blocking the dissemination of obscene matter. A new military code goes into effect.

The state will be able to conduct elections to allow workers to decide what union, if any, they want to represent them. There will be a new timber tax system, designed to encourage owners to let their trees grow to maturity before they are cut.

Any candidate in the presidential primary will be allowed to withdraw his name. And the six months' residence requirement will be waived in voting for president.

There will be some changes in names, too. Oregon State College becomes Oregon State University. The words "of Education" will be dropped from the names of Eastern Oregon College of Education and Southern Oregon College of Education. Mid-Columbia Home at The Dalles, an institution for mental cases, becomes Columbia Park State Home.

Anybody who robs a telephone coin box, or fraudulently charges a long distance call to somebody else, will become subject to a jail and $500 fine.

But those who try to cheat in payment of bridge tolls will be subject only to a $20 fine.

Farmers will be able to use firework to scare birds and predatory animals.

City jail prisoners will get a break. They will be able to work out their fines at $5 a day, instead of $2 as now provided.

The word "illegitimate" will disappear from the law, and it will become illegal for a man to live off a woman who's on relief. Prisoners will get their civil and political rights restored upon completion of their sentences.

The ceiling on damage awards for wrongful death will jump from $20,000 to $25,000. Persons who sell explosives will have to keep records of who buys them.

Ambulances become subject to regulation by the Department of Motor Vehicles and State Board of Health. House trailers on sale will have to be inspected as to their plumbing, electrical equipment and heating.

Fraternal organizations and home fallout shelters will be tax exempt, as will forest access roads. The Tax Commission will become subject to suits against it. Farm lands in suburban areas will get a tax break in that they won't be taxed as residential or industrial property.

New education laws set up use of television in school classrooms, allow Saturday classes for driver training, let school districts regulate parking on school grounds, and regulate school traffic patrols.

In the field of local government, county governing bodies will appoint the county Public Welfare Commissions. Klamath County gets another circuit judge and Marion County another district judge. Counties will get 5 per cent of state liquor funds, and cities will have their liquor money share boosted from 10 to 12 1/2 per cent.

Counties will be allowed to abolish the position of county judge if the judge has no judicial function. The judge would become a commissioner.

Other new law, going into effect are:

Allowing the public utility commissioner to start proceedings to require grade crossings.

Permitting forest camps for inmates of the correctional institution.

Requiring persons entering freeways to yield the right of way.

Directing the state Board of Health to take over regulation of radiation sources.

Permitting cities to establish pedestrian malls.

Ordering state political party conventions to be held between 15 and 50 days after the primary election.

Permitting persons 21 through 25 years old to get identification cards from the Liquor Control Commission.

Permit alcohol tests of suspected drunken drivers after they give oral consent. Written consent now is required.

Gov. Mark O. Hatfield signed 726 bills into law. Those with emergency clauses became law when he signed them. A few others will become law next year.
