GENEVA (AP)—The Soviet Union attempted today to indict the United States and Britain before world public opinion for refusing to accept an unpoliced moratorium on nuclear weapons tests.

The American and British delegations rejected allegations by Soviet Deputy Foreign Minister Valerian A. Zorin before the 17-nation general disarmament conference. The eight middle group nations in the conference refrained from getting drawn into a diplomatic cross fire between the big nuclear powers.

Zorin argued that the proposal for a moratorium did not come from the Soviet Union but from India and some of the other countries at the conference which want to see all testing stopped.

He said the United States and Britain could not find the courage to reply to these small powers. The American and British delegations turned down the moratorium idea Thursday when Zorin specifically asked them a yes or no question.

Zorin said Indian Delegate Arthur F. Lal was the author of the moratorium idea.

Western sources told newsmen after the session that remarks Zorin directed to the United States and Britain were abusive in tone and seemed to be pitched on the cold war level.

U.S. Ambassador Arthur H. Dean and British Minister of State Joseph B. Godber told the conference they answered Zorin on the moratorium idea because that was specifically a Russian proposal.

Dean expressed regret that the eight nonaligned countries at the table had failed to find a way to get the Soviet Union to change its rigid policy blocking the conclusion of a test ban treaty.

Oregon Gets Funds For Training Idle

SALEM (AP)—A $285,000 annual federal grant for vocational training of unemployed persons has been given to Oregon, the State Department of Education said Thursday.

Dr. Leon P. Minear, state superintendent of public instruction, said the money comes from the new Congressional Manpower and Training Act of 1962.

"Due to a current shortage of skilled workers and the unemployment situation, as well as the critical need for trained manpower, the State Board of Education has been authorized to develop training programs in Oregon," Minear said.

He said the new legislation will provide $300 a year per person for about 250 individuals in need of and qualified for specific job training.

During the first two years, 100 per cent of both training and administration costs of the program will be met by the federal government. After two years, states and local communities will have to match funds on a fifty-fifty basis.

Minear said selection and training will be given to unemployed and heads of families and households, but youths 19 to 21 who are unemployed may constitute 5 per cent of the total number.

The money will be provided jointly to the State Education Department and the State Labor Bureau.

Pearson Misquotes, Bob Thornton Says

SPRINGFIELD (AP)—Atty. Gen. Robert Y. Thornton said Thursday that Sen. Walter Pearson, D-Portland, is talking off base, using trumped up charges and quoting out of context.

Pearson, who is opposing Thornton for governor, said recently that Thornton has contended that increased school financial needs can be met from off-shore oil revenues.

Thornton, in remarks prepared for a Democratic rally, said he is perfectly aware that no oil has been discovered under Oregon's off-shore oil land so there is no revenue.

Thornton said he only asserted that because of the 1961 oil and gas exploration act which the attorney general's office had a major hand in writing all revenues of off-shore oil are earmarked for school needs.

Thornton said he merely pointed out that should off-shore oil be found and if a federal aid-to-education bill is passed these are potential sources of school money.

The attorney general said that without these two possibilities that school needs should be met by strengthening the present income tax structure rather than through a sales tax as Pearson proposes.

Roseburg Lions Club Views City Police Demonstration

The element of surprise is all important in disarming a man with a gun, Roseburg's Chief of Police John Truett told the Roseburg Lions Club Thursday night.

Using Officer Steve Ryder for his demonstrations, the chief showed how a man holding a gun can be disarmed, but he warned that this is usually a last resort gamble and should not be tried by anyone unless they have had adequate training.

This training is given the police force not so much to teach officers how to disarm a person, as to keep them from being disarm-ed and having the criminal use the officer's own gun on him.

The theory is that the hand is quicker than the eye. For that reason it is necessary to be close enough to the gunman to act before he has the opportunity to pull the trigger. It is important to know the type of gun and whether double action or single action with the hammer cocked. This is important in knowing where to grab the gun and how to wrest it from the gunman.

More criminals are talked into jail, however, than through desperate measures, the chief said. If you can get a man to talk, then his thoughts are on his words, not on pulling the trigger, the chief said. Most criminals can be talked into surrendering.

Of the 60 to 70 police officers killed every year, the cause usually can be traced to lack of training or laxity in their work, according to Truett. It is important for the officer to know the rudiments of boxing, wrestling, judo and other tactics for subduing the criminal.
