

Humphrey Asks Income Tax Cuts To Help Cure Economic Weakness

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Senate Democratic Whip Hubert H. Humphrey called today for prompt federal income tax cuts to help cure economic "weaknesses" he said were reflected in the stock market break.

The Minnesota Democrat's recommendation of tax cuts now for both corporations and individuals was at sharp variance with statements by both Treasury Secretary Douglas Dillon and Senate Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield.

Echoing the views of Dillon and some other officials, Mansfield said in an interview there was no prospect of the administration moving to stabilize the market with new tax-cutting proposals.

Prior to today, Humphrey also had stressed the economy's strength and said that, beyond urging Congress to complete action on the pending tax reform bill, no new administration proposals were in the offing.

Meets Market Officials

But from New York, where he conferred with New York Stock

Exchange officials and other financial leaders, the assistant Democratic leader framed a four-point program of "action" to stimulate the economy.

In a statement issued today through his office here, Humphrey said:

"There are certain weaknesses in the economy which have been reflected in recent stock market developments and they need to be faced and acted on immediately."

Humphrey said unemployment was "too high," consumer spending was "too low," business investment for modernization was "too little," and the nation's economic growth was "too slow."

Dramatic Reminder

Conceding that the economy is "enjoying considerable prosperity," Humphrey added:

"The instability of the stock market is a dramatic reminder to government and business alike that economic policies which stimulate growth and expansion are long overdue. It will take more than expressions of friendship and cooperation from the White House and other areas of government to strengthen the market."

"What is needed is action. Delay by Congress or the administration will bring further economic trouble."

Specifically, Humphrey suggested tax cuts of between two and four per cent (presumably percentage points) on corporate income and two per cent on individual income, along with enactment of the investment tax credit in the pending administration bill.

He also urged a committee by government and industry to cut unemployment to not more than four per cent of the work force, a stepped-up and expanded public works program, and a "massive overseas selling campaign" to boost exports.

63 First-Time Donors Help Meet County's Blood Quota

During the amazing turnout of blood donors for the visit of the Red Cross Bloodmobile this week, no less than 63 first-time donors were recorded, reports Dr. B. R. Shoemaker, chairman of the county blood program.

It was the first time since World War II that the blood quota had been surpassed. The quota in Roseburg was 300 pints, and a total of 343 was collected.

While the big news was the first time donor list, the roll of gallon donors continued to mount. Heading the list was Elmer Estelle who became a four-gallon donor.

Three-gallon donors were Robert Langhoff, Elmer Schindler, Doris Cahill and Loya White. Boasting donations of two gallons were Alvin Elyland, Norman John, Patrick McMullen, Paul Cacy and Parley Dilworth.

Gallon donors added to the list were Harold J. Horn, Melford Greenup, Harold C. Conley, Ivan P. Edwards, Edwin Starr, Gene Chasteen, Mabel E. Bell, Louis H. Bell, Rose Blake, Chris Warnes, Carol Trimble, Carl Wenger, Ray W. John, Lynn Everson, Henriette Orloff, Alma McAllister, Mary Fair, Louis Cotton, Clifford Broadwater and Robert Kampf.

Dr. Shoemaker credited much of the success to the new program in which merchants and industries had granted time off to employees to allow them to give blood. But he also credited the help of organizations and volunteers.

Book Suggests Goldwater Bid

WASHINGTON (AP) — A new political biography of Sen. Barry Goldwater, R-Ariz., pictures him today as feeling he would have a good chance at winning the Republican presidential nomination in 1964. And it suggests he might take a stab at it if the GOP's prospects look bright.

In any event, Goldwater is said to believe the party's conservative wing, for which he is the chief spokesman, will hold the balance of power at the next GOP national convention.

"I am reasonably certain that the Republican presidential nominee in 1964 will have to accommodate the conservatives," Goldwater is quoted as saying in "Mr. Conservative: Barry Goldwater," published today and written by Jack Bell, Associated Press political writer.

In suggesting he might throw his hat in the ring in 1964 if he thinks he has a fighting chance, the Arizona senator cited the historical precedent that the incumbent president—President Kennedy, in this case—always has the inside track the second time around.

He says he doesn't think Richard M. Nixon, the 1960 GOP presidential candidate, or New York Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller would run in 1964 if Kennedy "looks good" at the time.

On his own chances, Goldwater says: "I think my strength would lie in the South, the Middle West, and the Rocky Mountain West. Certainly, I wouldn't have great strength in the big states like Pennsylvania, New York, Massachusetts, and New Jersey. But I would have some in Indiana, Illinois and Ohio."

Goodman Band Swings Melody

MOSCOW (AP) — When you swing it they jive—even in Moscow.

Benny Goodman's band souped up an old Cossack melody, "Meadowlands," with some good old Mississippi River sludge Thursday night and had young Muscovites hopping.

The American "king of swing" brought fans out of their seats and marching toward the stage—a gesture of a happy crowd in the Soviet Union.

A few firm volunteer police wearing red arm bands kept the enthusiasts in check but didn't try to put a damper on the gay festivities.

Soviet Premier Khrushchev's stamp of approval, showing up at the opening concert the night before, put the audience in a relaxed mood for music they often had heard officially criticized.

The government brass stayed home Thursday night and the crowd of 5,000, including Soviet beatnik poet Evgeny Yevtushenko, let go.

Goodman was called back for 25 minutes of encores.

At several points the audience began whistling—usually a sign of displeasure—but this time clearly of pleasure. Apparently they got the idea that whistling is what jazz lovers in the United States do when they want more, so they tried it.

Joya Sherrill, girl vocalist with the Goodman band who caught Khrushchev's fancy opening night, again was the big hit. She sang "Katusha" in Russian with an accent that would have brought blushes to a linguist—but the crowd loved it.

Prince Philip Due At Seattle's Fair

SEATTLE (AP) — Prince Philip was scheduled to arrive here Friday morning to give a royal touch to the closing days of British Week at the Seattle World's Fair.

The Duke of Edinburgh was to arrive in a Royal Canadian Air Force plane from Kamloops, B.C., where he has been vacationing at a ranch for four days.

On hand to greet the Duke will be John Hay Whitney, former U.S. ambassador to Great Britain and publisher of the New York Herald Tribune; Sir David Ormsby-Gore, British ambassador to the United States; Gov. Albert D. Rosellini of Washington; Joseph E. Gandy, World's Fair president and a host of other dignitaries.

Prince Philip's visit marks the first time any member of the royal family has been in Seattle and a full schedule has been planned for his 27-hour stay.

It was to go to the fairground immediately following his arrival, visit the British Pavilion, have lunch in the Space Needle and take a ride on the monorail. Inspection of the U.S. Federal Science Pavilion and visits to other exhibits were scheduled before an afternoon cruise on Lake Washington.

The English Speaking Union, of which Whitney is national president, has scheduled a banquet for Prince Philip Friday night.

Saturday, the Prince's schedule calls for a tour of the University of Washington and the Boeing Co. He leaves that afternoon for Vancouver, B.C., where he will attend the second Commonwealth Study Conference.
