

Cliff Warns More Timber Sales Might Further Depress Market

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Forest Service chief Edward P. Cliff warned today that the sale of more national forest timber to the lumber industry might have a further depressing effect on the market.

But Cliff told the Senate Commerce Committee that his agency would try to sell the full allowable cut to help meet complaints by the lumber industry that it could not get enough logs to keep mills in operation.

"It might have a further depressing effect on the market unless demand improves," he told West Coast senators who questioned him for two and a half hours on Forest Service timber sale policies.

Cliff said the outlook for increased demand was "not too encouraging." He noted that forecasts of more housing starts were not being reflected in the lumber market.

The committee, under Sen. Warren G. Magnuson, D-Wash., would begin a long series of hearings on the problems of the lumber industry. The hearings, presumably called to study the impact of lumber imports from Canada on the U.S. lumber industry, ranged far and wide in covering other problems.

Sen. Wayne Morse, D-Ore., renewed his attack on the Kennedy administration, saying it was guilty of "red tape and delay" in taking action to help the depressed lumber industry.

Insisting that his criticism of Cliff was "wholly impersonal," Morse termed the Forest Service chief's statement "a Forest Service snow job."

The Oregonian went on to attack the Forest Service as having been granted too much authority. He recommended setting up an independent appeals board to provide an "effective check" on the agency's power.

Sen. Thomas H. Kuchel, R-Calif., questioned Cliff sharply on what steps it would take to make more timber available when it could be done to help an individual community, particularly in Northern California.

Cliff said the Forest Service had allowed bigger cuts in some areas, notably Northern Idaho, but said it was "not a healthy cut except when losses could be recouped" after economic conditions improved.

current fiscal year ends June 30, the Forest Service would have sold 1.4 billion board feet of its 1.5 billion allowable cut for California.

Sen. Clair Engle, D-Calif., contended that the Forest Service was not allowing timber to be harvested when it was "ripe." Likening timber to a peach crop, he said it had to be cut when it was ripe and should not be left to be "harvested by fire and the insect lumber company."

Cliff said it was not possible to sell all the timber that would be made available on that basis. He said an effort was made to get rid of overripe and diseased trees while it was still possible to salvage them.

Fisher Blasts JFK Tax Plan

State Rep. Carl Fisher, Republican candidate for the U.S. House of Representatives, today teed off on President Kennedy's proposal to withhold for taxes 20 per cent of dividend and interest income.

"Such a law would allow the federal government to literally confiscate millions of dollars to which it has no right," Fisher said. "Not only would people be overtaxed and hardship imposed on many people," he said, "this proposal would force institutions and businesses to maintain records of nightmarish volume."

And he was expected to carry the attack into Douglas County Tuesday and Thursday.

He is scheduled to speak to the Young Republicans Tuesday at the courthouse in Roseburg and make a major address at a dinner meeting of the Douglas County Republican Club Thursday.

He opened his attack on the Kennedy proposal at Medford today while speaking at a luncheon of the Jackson County Women's Federation.

'Learn To Swim' Campaign Set Here Tuesday

Registrations are still being accepted for the first "learn-to-swim" campaign which opens Tuesday at the Roseburg Municipal Swimming Pool.

Larry Lerma, pool manager, said today sign-up for the city Red Cross swim program has been "very slow." He said less than 100 boys and girls have registered for the opening session.

"We can handle up to 300 students in each session," said the manager.

Cool weather was blamed for the shortage of students. But Lerma said the pool water was gradually becoming more comfortable and it "should be nice if we have a couple of good, warm afternoons."

The manager said it appeared there will be larger registration totals for the two swim programs to follow. Several organizations plan to bring groups of students to the later sessions.

Seven-year-olds are also being accepted in the program, it was reported.

Lerma pointed out that six certified water safety instructors will be in charge of classes.

Plans For Laos Coalition Regime Derailed By Phouma

VIENTIANE, Laos (AP)—Plans to install today a new coalition regime in Laos were derailed by last-minute objections from neutralist Prince Souvanna Phouma, destined to be the premier.

A postponement of the installation until late this week seemed likely.

Souvanna flew in seven hours late from his headquarters in pro-Communist territory. He declined all comment before hurrying off to see King Savang Vathana.

Informed sources said he would refuse to go ahead with the installation ceremony unless a royal decree eliminated all reference to the national assembly, which is pro-Western.

The decree notes that the assembly ratified the coalition agreement signed last week by the rival princes of Laos. Neither Souvanna nor his half-brother, Prince Souphanouvong, of the pro-Communist Pathet Lao rebels, recognizes the national assembly.

Souvannaphouma did not accompany Souvanna to Vientiane. He had been expected because he will be a deputy premier in the coalition regime, designed to remove Laos from the cold war. Informants said Souphanouvong will stay away until the argument is settled.

They added that Souvanna wants the issue solved by Thursday; otherwise he will refuse to head the coalition, thus throwing Laos back into a state of turmoil.

Souvanna and Souphanouvong visited Hanoi, capital of Communist North Viet Nam, after signing the coalition agreement last week, informants reported.

Radio Peiping quoted Souphanouvong as declaring in a speech Sunday that "even before the ink is dry on the three princes' agreement, American imperialism and its agents have started destroying the provisional coalition government agreement."

Last-Ditch Effort Is Under Way To Avert Big Airline's Strike

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Labor Secretary Arthur J. Goldberg called union and management officials together today in a last-ditch effort to avert a big airline strike against Trans World Airlines Tuesday.

Goldberg invited representatives of TWA, the Flight Engineers Union and the Air Line Pilots Union to a 9 a.m. EDT meeting. He acted after union leaders announced they would strike at 2 p.m. EDT Tuesday against TWA.

A walkout by its 615 flight engineers presumably would halt operations of TWA, which is the nation's fourth largest domestic carrier and employs 20,000 persons.

The engineers' union said it would not strike against Eastern Air Lines of Pan American World Airways, which also are involved in the dispute, unless they engaged in "an illegal lockout."

In scheduling the strike against only one airline, the union said it shared Kennedy's concern over the economic effect that a full-scale walkout might have. Kennedy said last week that a strike against the three airlines would deal the economy a severe blow.

Conferring with Goldberg were H. S. Dietrich, chairman of the union's TWA chapter; Capt. Russ Derickson, chairman of the TWA council of Air Line Pilots, and David Crombie, TWA's vice president for industrial relations.

The long-standing dispute centers chiefly on the number and qualifications of cockpit crew members. The union refused to submit this issue to arbitration.

The flight engineers said they would agree to arbitration on purely economic issues with Eastern and Pan American, but not with TWA. The airlines have said they would accept arbitration on all issues.

The dispute results from a presidential commission's recommendation that cockpit crews be cut from four members to three, and that the flight engineers be merged with the Air Line Pilots Association.

The flight engineers say the pilots, who outnumber the flight engineers, would not guarantee their seniority rights if they merged with the pilots union.

63 Viet Cong Reds Killed in Battle

SAIGON (UPI) — South Vietnamese troops killed 63 Viet Cong guerrillas and captured 97 others in two battles in the Mekong Delta south of here today, Vietnamese military sources reported.

U. S. Marine helicopters flew Vietnamese troops of the 21st Division into battle at Ba Xuyen Province. The troops reinforced a force of civil guardsmen and surprised a band of Communist guerrillas.

The sources said 14 Viet Cong were killed and 17 taken prisoner. In a day-long running battle about 80 miles south of here, the sources said Vietnamese forces killed 49 Communist guerrillas and captured another 80.

The sources said the battle erupted when a force of civil guardsmen made contact with a strong band of Communists near the borders of An Giang and Vinh Long provinces.

The rangers immediately attacked and the Communists fled westward. The rangers continued the pursuit until darkness fell.

The sources said government casualties were two killed and three wounded. Government casualties in the other clash were not known. A number of weapons and documents were captured in the clashes, the sources said.

They also reported that Communist guerrillas ambushed a convoy of two armed cars and a truck on a road near Trang Bom, about 25 miles northeast of Saigon.

The truck was blown up by a road mine and five Vietnamese soldiers killed, they said. The armored cars opened fire, killing four of the rebels and driving the others into the jungles.

The attack took place in the same general area where two American officers were killed in an ambush last week. Twenty-six Vietnamese soldiers also died.

Government officials disclosed that only one South Vietnamese soldier survived the ambush.

A heart specialist was flown there from Nairobi to attend the film star.

The film group's doctor had left to drive to Nairobi, 200 miles away, a few hours before Robinson became ill. The doctor himself is in the hospital now—his car crashed a few miles outside Arusha and he was injured.

A few weeks ago Robinson broke his right thumb when he shut a car door on it.
