Resolutions Due At Walton Meet

PORTLAND (AP)—Selection of a 1963 convention site and adoption of resolutions highlight today's closing session of the 40th Izaak Walton of America convention.

The national board of directors and the executive board were to meet following adjournment.

Friday night, Oregon Gov. Mark Hatfield told a banquet gathering that lumbermen are not often given credit for being conservationists.

He said publications often feature the bleakness of freshly logged areas, but rarely note stands of young trees planted by lumber firms.

Hatfield said he objects to the concept of limited use of natural resources.

"All present and future values must be recognized when determining usage for the common good of all the people," he said.

Earlier in the day, the League gave its highest award for public service to Laurance S. Rockefeller, head of the Outdoor Recreation Resources Review Commission.

Rockefeller delivered Friday's luncheon address, telling delegates that the greatest challenge in outdoor recreation is to make effective use of urban land.

Applications Due Soon For Wheat Allotments

Farmers who wish to be considered for a "new wheat" allotment for 1963 on a farm which does not now have a wheat allotment are advised to contact the Douglas County ASCS office at once.

Curtis Baker, chairman of the Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation County Committee said farmers have until July 2 to file applications.

Under the wheat allotment-marketing quota program, a "new farm" is a farm on which there is no wheat acreage history, including acreage considered as wheat under the Conservation Reserve program, for any of the years 1960, 1961 or 1962.

The chairman emphasized that formal application for a "new farm" application must be made in writing on a form provided for that purpose, and the application must be filed at the ASCS County Office, Room 214, Court House, by the July 2 deadline.

an hour, but gas continued to escape from the damaged tank. Electric current in the area was cut to avoid danger of explosions.

The spectacular new terrorist action followed a Secret Army Organization broadcast Friday night calling for a final stand against Algeria's imminent independence.

Fugitive former Gen. Paul Gardy issued the order to his outlawed followers in Oran after stating that contacts with representatives of Moslem nationalists have failed to yield positive results.

A blaze, started by a bomb, gutted the Oran town hall an hour after his clandestine broadcast.

In Bone, eastern Algeria, two plastic bomb explosions reminded the population that the local Secret Army command was not accepting the peace negotiated in Algiers.

Algiers alone held on to the precarious peace accord announced Sunday by Moslem nationalist representative Dr. Chekwi Mostefaï and Secret Army leader Jean-Jacques Susini.

But the accord had little legal or binding value since it consisted only of two broadcast announcements.

One week before Algeria votes on its future, a new dangerous note has crept in.

Pacifists Hit U.S. Pentagon

WASHINGTON (AP)—The mammoth Pentagon—the nation's citadel of defense—was besieged by a small band of pacifists, some of whom had to be dislodged by force.

Sixteen of the pickets, carrying such signs as "Don't Work For War—Quit Your Job," were arrested Friday while military officers and employees looked on from the entrance.

As the law moved in, six of the pacifists went limp and dropped in their tracks, assuming what they called "the classic position of noncooperation"—sitting down with arms locked under their knees.

"This means that two men have got to pick you up—one can't do it," explained one of the pickets who identified himself as Peter Giffin, 24, of Haddonfield, N.J. (Giffin proved his point. His shirt was torn when one policeman tried unsuccessfully to move him from the roadway.)

Pentagon police, working in pairs, lifted the sitdown demonstrators and carried them away.

The law permits orderly demonstrations outside government buildings as long as the demonstrators keep their distance.

Police moved in when one group tried to distribute leaflets to occupants of passing cars and four others tried to march into the Pentagon.

Local Loggers Signed For Albany Carnival

Two Douglas County men have entries in the 1962 World Championship Timber Carnival at Albany July 2-4.

They are John Miller, of Rt. 2 Box 98-D, Roseburg, and Doc Parret of Winston. Both are familiar faces at the carnival, having competed in past contests.

Miller, reigning Douglas County Timber Days champion, will compete in bucking, log chopping and axe throwing. He was among the top contenders in last year's best logger competition.

Parret will compete in axe throwing. The carnival actually opens July 2 with the queen's coronation. Logging events begin July 3. The men of the woods compete in log bucking, log chopping, tree topping, speed climbing up a 100-foot pole, log rolling, axe throwing and the rough "bull-of-the-woods" boxing contest.

A mile-long parade July 2 will feature floats, variety acts, pretty girls and gigantic logs. Downtown Albany will be blocked off for a day of logging demonstrations, carnival rides, a water show and antics of the Albany Junior Chamber of Commerce, sponsor of the carnival.

All Quiet On Crosswhite Family Front

HYDEVILLE, Calif. (UPI)—All was quiet on the Crosswhite family front today.

Father Louis was out of jail, the 11 kids were out of the family station wagon, and the sheriff's office was smitten with remorse.

Crosswhite emerged victorious from the Humboldt County jail Friday and the children ended a 2½ day automobile sit-in which he had ordered in protest against an attachment order on the car.

He was arrested Wednesday after deputies went to his house in this small logging community to serve repossession papers. He countered by ordering the kids to sit in the locked car and was arrested for obstructing the law.

Deputies had acted in the belief that a bill for a car radio had not been paid. But it developed that the disputed $128.23 bill had been paid some time ago by Crosswhite's brother.

The news didn't get through to the county officials until Friday, Dist. Atty. Leonard Conroy, a trifle weary, then asked that the case be dismissed and Crosswhite released.

But Crosswhite was not altogether placated, even after his children trooped out of the station wagon singing "Old Rugged Cross."

He said he intends to sue the county for false arrest.

"The sheriff's office was too quick to jump on a two-bit collection," he said. "They should have been more careful."

Auto Collision Causes Injuries

Trecil Lomeda Fessler, 37, Kirby, Ore., was treated and released from Douglas Community Hospital Friday evening following a two-car accident in Roseburg.

The accident occurred at 6:05 p.m. at SE Jackson St. and Lane Ave. Rodney L. Frank, 29, 555 NE Jackson St., Roseburg, was traveling south in his car on Jackson St. He approached the intersection of Lane Ave. when the Fessler vehicle pulled out into the intersection traveling east, Roseburg police said.

The Frank car struck the Fessler car on the side at the left rear fender. Both cars were moved from the point of impact when the police arrived. The victim, who was driving, was taken to the hospital for examination.

At 6:22 p.m. another accident occurred, but on NE Fremont Ave. near its intersection with Boston St., police said.

A car driven by Joy Frances Hamlin, 24, of 1461 NE Alameda Ave., Roseburg, was headed east on Fremont when a dog jumped out the right window and landed on its head.

The driver stopped the car and got out. The car was on a hill and rolled backwards, police said. The driver opened the door on the right side of the car and tried to put the brake on. However, the open car door and the rear fender hit a parked car belonging to Edith M. Miller, 1721 NE Fremont Ave. Minor damage occurred.

A citation for failure to park properly was issued to Mrs. Hamlin.

State Announces Plans For Computer Center

SALEM (UPI)—Gov. Mark Hatfield and Secretary of State Howell Appling Jr. Friday announced plans for a major electronic computer center here that takes in the State Welfare Commission and which would "provide large scale computing power at minimum cost."

The center would eliminate older welfare commission equipment, now rented at a cost of $12,000 a month by the commission, and would allow a "substantial cost saving to the welfare commission."

The governor and secretary said the proposal is a joint effort of the Oregon Department of State, the State Finance Department, and the Welfare Commission.

Selection of a computer will be made this August by a committee representing the three principal agencies involved in the planning.

The new system would use a magnetic tape processing computer. This in turn would be serviced by "satellite" processors located in the three departments.

The bigger central unit would be used for major computing and updating of files. The satellites would allow agencies to prepare their own data files, and the many reports needed to carry out their functions set out by law.

Initial impact would be replacement of the welfare commission's present magnetic tape computer, which has been operating for three years, and which is considered out of date already.

Smelser worked for Warner Painting Co., a sub-contractor on the span being built for the Washington Toll Bridge Authority some 5 miles downstream from John Day Dam.

French, U. S. Aviation Experts Converge On Tragic Crash Scene

POINTE-A-PITRE, Guadeloupe (AP)—French and American aviation experts converged today on a scorched swath of tropical rain jungle where an Air France Boeing 707 jetliner crashed in a raging thunderstorm after reporting landing gear trouble. All 113 persons aboard were killed.

Police blocked off the crash scene until representatives of the U.S. Civil Aeronautics Board and Federal Aviation Agency teamed with French air experts from Paris to inspect wreckage of the second worst single-plane disaster in commercial aviation history.

The four-engine airliner smashed into a hill and burst into flames early Friday shortly after winging over Pointe-A-Pitre's Raizet Airfield in the start of a landing approach after a flight from Paris.

Officials said the pilot radioed as he passed over the field that he was having difficulty getting the landing gear down. The plane then swept out over the sea.

Minutes later, the control tower radar lost contact at about the same time explosions in the distance were noted. The explosions were taken by some as lightning crackling in the storm.

But after daylight searchers spotted the wreckage on Mule's Back Hill 18 miles from the field, and one witness reported: "Nothing left...a horrible sight."

The plane slammed into the hill about 500 feet below its 2,000-foot crest, off the usual landing approach pattern. The pilot of another Air France liner here blamed the crash on the thunderstorm, saying "the ceiling was very low."

The fiery crash scattered wreckage over more than a mile of the thick undergrowth. Bodies hung from trees. A small girl, one of 11 youngsters killed in the crash, still clutched her doll in death.

Air France officials revised the casualty list several times Friday, finally placing the dead at 102 passengers and 10 crew members. No Americans were reported aboard.

This all in a single-plane crash was exceeded only by the crash of another Air France Boeing 707 jet early this month which killed 130 persons, including 121 Americans on a European tour sponsored by the Atlanta Art Association.

The big Boeing jetliners have been involved in five commercial airline crashes killing a total of 303 persons in the past 17 months.

The London Daily Sketch urged today that the Boeing jets be grounded "until an acceptable explanation is found" for the crashes. But the Federal Aviation Agency said in Washington Friday night that it has no present plans to order them grounded.

"We have no evidence at this time on which to ground them," an FAA spokesman said. "If any evidence turns up we will ground them."

The downed plane was piloted by Capt. Andre Lesieur, one of Air France's most experienced pilots who had flown jets for President Charles de Gaulle on several occasions.

BLM Initiates Tree Thinning

The Roseburg District office of the Bureau of Land Management has initiated the first pre-commercial thinning on lands under its jurisdiction during the past week, BLM officials said today.

Workmen under the supervision of trained foresters are removing the smaller and deformed trees from 40 acres of dense Douglas fir second-growth adjacent to the Smith River County road north of Drain, it was reported.

District Manager Archie Craft said purpose of this thinning is to allow more growing space for the remaining trees and thereby increase the size of the trees when they are cut at some future date.

Size of trees being cut is between 12" and 16" in diameter. They may be purchased for poles or other use from the local district office by interested persons.

As soon as more funds become available, additional thinning of this nature will be made on dense stands of second-growth throughout the county, Craft said.
