Special Offerings Held By Adventist Church

Keeping things warm in Iceland is part of the special missions project of the Roseburg Seventh-day Adventist church, according to a report received from Inez Hitchman, reporter for the church.

"With an average temperature of 41.6 degrees the year around, heating becomes a rather expensive matter," says Mrs. Hitchman. "But beneath the ground in many places are hot springs. This water can be tapped and piped into the homes for heating. This is a goal of the Adventist school in Iceland."

To this "natural plumbing," Mrs. Hitchman says, "part of the special offering at the Seventh-day Adventist church today will go. It also will help to modernize the denomination's Empress Zauditu Memorial Hospital, which sits next to the palace in Addis Ababa, Ethiopia."

Another school also will benefit from the offering which will be received in all Adventist churches at the same time is Newbold College in England, for a new men's dormitory.

Last Saturday a special offering was received as the local church's part in raising a million dollars for missions in one day. The Oregon conference goal in this special mission offering was $37,000.
