E. Germans Halt Unauthorized Trips To Baltic

BERLIN (UPI)—The East German government today barred all unauthorized trips to the Baltic Sea coast in an effort to halt the flight of refugees with a watery version of the Berlin wall.

It placed the 190-mile coast from West Germany to Poland off limits to all persons without special permission.

It enforced the ban by establishing a three-mile security zone along the coast and a 500-yard "defensive strip" along the waterfront.

The order goes into effect at midnight tonight. It was published in the official East German Legal Bulletin that reached West Berlin today.

The order was designed to prevent East Germans from fleeing by sea. Many East Germans, their way west blocked by the anti-refugee wall, have used boats to flee to Scandinavia and West Germany.

The order said all vacationers would need police permission to enter the three-mile zone. It even forbade the Communist Youth Organization from camping in the zone without special permits.

All coastal fishermen were restricted to East Germany's coastal waters. Crews of fishing boats that go beyond the coastal waters were required to register with the police.

Pleasure sail boats and motor boats were barred from use between sunset and sunrise.

They were restricted to certain ports.

Large sailboats and outboard motors of more than 2.5 horsepower were banned altogether.

Rubber rafts of the sort used at beaches were barred from going more than 150 yards from shore.

The order said only persons with special stamps on their identity cards would be allowed to live in the 500-yard defensive strip.

It forbade hotels and rooming houses to accept guests in the three-mile-wide zone unless the guests could show a police permit.

The order provided imprisonment for two years and fines of $125 for violations.

White Hailed As Prototype Of A New Breed Of Pilots

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Air Force Chief of Staff Gen. Curtis E. LeMay today hailed Maj. Robert M. White as the forerunner of a new breed of pilots who will fly into space routinely from standard airports.

LeMay made the statement at Pentagon ceremonies honoring White as the first man to pilot a winged rocket ship into space.

The Air Force chief of staff stood aside while White's pretty wife, Doris, 38, pinned the silver pilot-astronaut badge, with its shooting star emblem, above his rows of World War II and Korean conflict ribbons. Then she kissed him.

White earned astronaut's wings Tuesday by rocketing a X15 space craft 58.7 miles above the earth.

His feat made him the fifth American to see the earth from more than 50 miles up. But LeMay pointed out that White was the first to operate his craft under positive control from launch to landing.

America's other astronauts were lofted into space aboard the Mercury spacecraft which were boosted by a missile. They are Marine Lt. Col. John Glenn and Navy Lt. Cmdr. Scott Carpenter, who orbited the earth, and Navy Lt. Cmdr. Alan B. Shepard Jr. and Air Force Capt. Virgil I. Grisom, who flew suborbital missions.

In praising White's "wonderful achievement" in the X15, LeMay said "we know that man is going out in space." The Air Force looks to the day when men will "take off from standard airbases, go out into space, and return" to ordinary air fields.

With winged, controlled spacecraft, LeMay said, there will be greater efficiency, less cost and more flexibility than with rocket boosted capsules.

"We are going to have a lot more" astronauts like White, LeMay said, pointing out that the Air Force is now starting an aerospace research pilots school at Edwards Air Force Base, Calif., where White completed his epic flight.

Three Safe After Forced Landing

WILLIAMS LAKE, B.C. (UPI)—Two men and a boy, all of Eugene, Ore., were reported all right today after their light plane made a forced landing Wednesday in an isolated area of the northern interior of British Columbia.

Raold Hanson, 46, his son, Alex, 15, and Marvin Fountain, were aboard the small red and white Piper Tri-Pacer when it went down.

The three walked most of the way from the crash scene to shelter. Riders tried to take horses into the area, but the roads were washed out, it was reported.

The Air and Sea Rescue Service said they stayed overnight in a shack near an airstrip and were reported to be staying at a ranch near Dog Creek today. Hanson said they would fly out when the weather clears. The plane was undamaged.

The Service reported to Hanson's sister, Mrs. Charles Lee, Eugene, that all three were apparently in good condition.

They were found in the Dog Creek area about 35 miles south of Williams Lake. The plane had been missing on a flight from Chilliwack to Williams Lake. The service said they made a forced landing in stormy weather on an abandoned airstrip.

Mrs. Lee said the plane left Springfield, Ore., airport about 5:30 a.m. PDT Wednesday.

Hanson, a Eugene real estate man, was a flight instructor during World War II and ferried planes from the U.S. to South America.

Col. Homer Garrison, chief of the rangers and head of the Texas Department of Public Safety, said Marshall, officially ruled a suicide could not have killed himself. Garrison pointed to five wounds inflicted by a bolt-action rifle, carbon monoxide in the body, cuts on the head and hands, brain injury and signs of a struggle.

Garrison informed a district judge and also sent word of his decision to the FBI and the chairman of the Senate investigating subcommittee looking into the Estes' case.

The rangers are working on the theory of murder, Garrison said. A justice of the peace ruled suicide in the case when the body of Marshall was discovered on his farm June 2, 1961. A special grand jury in Franklin, Tex., last May heard testimony from a pathologist who judged from the exhumed body that Marshall probably was murdered. The body bore five wounds from a single-shot, bolt-action 22-caliber rifle found near it.

A heavy concentration of carbon monoxide was found in the body and there was evidence of a blow over one eye that was powerful enough to stun a man.

The special grand jury announced after a five-week investigation that it could not decide whether it was murder or suicide.

Rangers found cartridge casings at the spot where the body was found, but no bullets were found.

Col. Garrison, who doubles as chief of the Texas Department of Public Safety, informed Judge John M. Barron, Bryan, Tex., that a murder investigation would continue. It was Barron who called the grand jury investigation.

Police said this was the second curfew violation by the driver of the car within the past week. This youth was lodged in the county jail. So were two of the three girls after they indicated they would run away if returned to their homes.

The other three were released to the custody of their parents. Police Chief John Truett said the case will be handled by the Douglas County Juvenile Department.

Police said four of the youths were 17 years of age and the other two 15.

The six young persons were picked up about 2:40 a.m. Officers said they were in a car which was traveling on Diamond Lake Blvd. A boy driving the vehicle was cited for violation of instruction permit since he was not accompanied by an adult.

City Police Nab Curfew Violators

Six juveniles — three boys and three girls — were picked up by Roseburg City Police early this morning for violating the midnight curfew law.

Reedsport Youth Faces Jury Action

A transcript filed in Douglas County Circuit Court from Reedsport Justice Court states Kenneth J. R. Howell, 18, of Reedsport, has been bound over for action by the Douglas County Grand Jury in connection with a complaint charging "malicious and wanton damage to personal property."

Howell waived preliminary hearing on arraignment before Justice Orin B. Collier. The defendant was released from custody after posting $500 bail.

Howell is charged with jamming the controls of a boat belonging to James Robert Davidson, Coos Bay, and breaking the boat's windshield. The incident occurred at Loon Lake last weekend.

Another transcript from Collier's court states J. B. Stewart 34, of Empire, has been bound over for Grand Jury action on a complaint charging the accused with drawing a check with insufficient funds in the bank to pay the sum in full.

A complaint by Lloyd L. Richardson of Umpqua Building Supply alleges the defendant issued to him a check dated June 13 for $125.98 without funds in the bank on which the check was written.

Stewart was released from custody after posting $500 bail.

Trucker Files Appeal Notice

Fred Edward Dickinson, 25, of Winston, entered oral notice of appeal following conviction in Douglas County District Court on a complaint charging overload on a logging truck.

Dickinson appeared for trial without jury before Judge Gerald R. Hayes and was found guilty. Judge Hayes fined the defendant $45 and costs. Oral notice of appeal to the Circuit Court was entered.

The Winston resident was also tried and found guilty on two other violations of trucking laws. He was fined $5 and costs on an overweight charge and $5 and costs for no truck license. The latter fine was suspended.

Dickinson must file his written notice of appeal with 30 days. The defendant is also charged with vagrancy and this case is set for trial on July 24.

The vagrancy offense was alleged to have occurred on County Rd. 122 near Lookingglass in connection with the defendant's arrest by Sheriff's Department deputies on the trucking violations. Sheriff's deputies complained Dickinson conducted himself in a "violent and disorderly" manner and used abusive language in a public place.

In another District Court action, Robert Earl Ambrose, 42, of 5003 SW Melody Lane, Roseburg, pleaded innocent when arraigned Wednesday on a charge of vagrancy. The case was set for jury trial on July 26.

A complaint by Fred Everett alleges that the defendant on July 15 conducted himself in a disorderly manner on Melody Lane and disturbed the neighborhood.

Marshall Death Called Murder

AUSTIN, Tex. (UPI)—The chief of the Texas Rangers said today all evidence points to murder in the mystery death of Henry Marshall, first official to point the finger of suspicion at Billie Sol Estes. A ranger investigation will continue.

Elks Lodge Plaza Site For Local Art Exhibit

The Roseburg Art Association's outdoor art exhibit July 28 will be held on the front plaza of the Elks Lodge, instead of in a roped-off area on SE Jackson St.

This report was made today by Chairman Mrs. Howard Emrich. It had been previously announced the Roseburg City Council had approved use of part of Jackson St. for the show. Since then, however, plans have changed.

Mrs. Emrich explained: "The committee is most grateful to the council and Police Chief John Truett for their cooperation but feels the new location, beside providing a most attractive background for artwork, will prove more convenient for viewers, downtown merchants and exhibitors."

Chamber Okays Parking Meter Removal

The Roseburg Chamber of Commerce this week gave its stamp of approval to a city proposal to take out 133 parking meters in the city and, at the same meeting, disavowed endorsement of a baby picture contest.

The board of directors approved the recommendation of its Parks and Streets Committee on the parking meter matter. The committee had recommended approval of the plan presented by City Manager Craig McMicken and Police Chief John Truett.

Under the plan, meters would be taken of all of SE Sheridan St., the 800 block of SE Kane, the 800 block of SE Jackson, all of SE Mosher Ave., with the exception of the area in front of the Pacific Northwest Bell office, the 700 block of SE Kane, the east side of the 600 block of SE Kane, Douglas between Douglas and Jackson, and west side of SE Stephens between Washington and Oak.

Purpose of the plan is to obtain the most use of the existing free parking areas to benefit both the long-term shopper and the employee who parks all day.

At their monthly meeting, the chamber also indicated it could not endorse promotions. The precipitating reason for the statement was a promotion of a baby picture contest sponsored by three Roseburg studios in which advertising indicated the chamber had given its endorsement. The studios were Clark's, Bob Leber Studio and Wilson's Studio.

Thomas Garrison, president of the chamber, explained the advertised endorsement resulted from an apparent misunderstanding. In a formal statement, he said: "The Chamber of Commerce is not sufficiently staffed to investigate the ethics of local or outside business promotions and therefore, does not endorse particular promotions or contests, and as a matter of fact, did not endorse a recent local photography contest, as was indicated in one of the advertisements thereof."
