

Senator Makes Unsuccessful Try To Halt Filibuster On Satellite Bill

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Senate Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield made an unsuccessful bid today to break a filibuster against the administration's space communications bill by offering to send it to the Foreign Relations Committee for study.

His proposal was rejected, at least for the present, by Sen. Wayne Morse, D-Ore., leader of the liberal filibustering group.

Morse indicated he wanted to discuss the proposal further with Mansfield.

There appeared little immediate hope that the bitter deadlock over the communications satellite legislation would be broken soon. Morse told United Press International that he would agree to let the bill go to committee only if it were locked up there until after November elections.

Mansfield told newsmen he would not immediately order around the clock Senate sessions to break the filibuster but would keep the Senate in session until about 10 p.m. tonight in an effort to exhaust the talkathon.

The leadership indicated it was willing and ready to call the around-the-clock sessions if that was the only way to tumble the roadblock that is preventing consideration of the bill.

The object of all-night sessions would be to wear down the small band of Democratic liberals who are opposed to the measure. They claim that the bill's plan to set up a privately owned and government regulated space communications corporation would amount to a give away of public resources.

The current filibuster, part of which stalled the Senate in a 10-hour and 12-minute Saturday session, is aimed at a motion by Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield, Mont., to bring the bill up for action. Virtually unlimited debate could still follow on the bill itself and proposed amendments.

Assistant Democratic Leader Hubert Humphrey, Minn., said that some of the Democratic liberals "may have done irreparable damage" to the cause of civil rights by filibustering against the bill.

Other congressional news: AID — The Agency for International Development (AID) said today some of its press officers were mistaken in their comments about a subject under investigation by a congressional subcommittee. The agency's chief information officer said in a letter to Chairman John E. Moss, D-Calif., of the House government information subcommittee that "my people" were wrong when they stated that mixing of American and Communist foreign aid did not constitute a misuse of funds. Congressional investigators were looking into reports of such happenings at the time.

Stuck Gas Pedal Perils Youngsters

A young driver was knocked unconscious and fire was caused in the car when the gas foot pedal went to the floor board and stuck at 1:30 a.m. today, city police report.

Wilma Doris Dolan, 17, of 482 NE Winchester St., told officers at Douglas Community Hospital where she was taken that she had stopped to let out a passenger on NE Tahoe Ave. east of NE Fulton St., then started backing up.

The foot pedal went all the way to the floor board and stuck. She lost control and the car ran backward into a tree. She said that was all she remembered.

Officers said the car hit the tree with the left rear fender with such force the frame of the car buckled in the middle. The front seat tore loose from the floor. The motor came back into the fire wall breaking the distributor cap, tearing loose the radiator hose and the wires shorted causing the fire.

The fire department was called and put out the fire, then finding the girl unconscious called the police department and Wall's Ambulance.

The car was registered to Arthur and Edna Dolan. He told officers he repeatedly had the car in the garage to have the foot pedal fixed, but it never was.

Four children in the car, ages 10 to 14, were not injured.

The boy was turned over to the Douglas County juvenile officer.

Air Show Crash Claims Officers

EVERETT (UPI)—An Air Force Board of Inquiry today was preparing to investigate the crash of a twin-engine T39 jet transport at Paine Field just south of here Sunday.

The crash claimed the lives of Col. Kearie L. Berry, 43, Paine base commander, and Lt. Col. LeRoy D. Tate, 41, an Air Force plant representative at North American Co. in Los Angeles.

The plane, believed to be piloted by Tate, crashed after it overshot the runway while landing. Hundreds of persons on hand for the annual air show at Paine Field saw the plane cross the end of the runway, crash through a barrier and smash into a dirt embankment.

An Air Force spokesman said the pilot had reported trouble with the plane's hydraulic pressure system before landing.

The officers had taken the aircraft up for an orientation flight. Tate had flown the plane to Paine and it was being displayed in the air show but had not yet officially been assigned to the Air Force.

Berry took command at Paine last May. He was a 1943 West Point graduate, World War II combat veteran and holder of the Distinguished Flying Cross. He was married and had two children, the oldest of whom is a cadet at the Air Force Academy in Colorado.

Berry jointly commanded Paine Field and the 57th Fighter Group assigned there.

Arizona Mother Awaits Judge's Abortion Ruling

PHOENIX (UPI) — A Superior Court judge was to rule today on a mother's suit seeking court approval for an abortion because she fears her fifth child may be born deformed.

However, an attorney for Mrs. Sherri Finkbine, 30, said Sunday he would advise her to drop the suit and go ahead with the operation if public attorneys give assurances she will not be prosecuted.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Finkbine and the Good Samaritan Hospital sought a declaratory judgment permitting the abortion because Mrs. Finkbine took the drug Thalidomide, believed by authorities to have caused thousands of malformed babies in Europe and other countries.

The plaintiffs want legal authority to terminate the pregnancy because Arizona law prohibits an abortion unless it is necessary to save the life of the mother.

Attorneys were seeking a speedy settlement. Physicians say they must perform the operation within the next two weeks or they will have to resort to a Caesarian section.

Judge Yale McFate said he would either dismiss the suit against the state and county today or begin weighing medical opinions calling for an abortion.

Attorney Walter Cheifetz said if he is given assurances his client will not be prosecuted he will advise Mrs. Finkbine, a local television personality on a children's show, to proceed with the operation immediately.

Thalidomide was never approved for use in the United States, although it is believed to have caused as many as 5,000 deformed births in Europe.

Mrs. Finkbine's husband, a high school teacher, bought the drug for use as a tranquilizer while in England.

Kennedy To View A Report That May Influence Tax Cut

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Kennedy may get a look today at one of the economic reports that will influence his decision on whether to ask Congress for a tax cut this year.

Government statisticians worked through the weekend to prepare figures on the nation's employment situation in July. The report is expected to be ready for analysis by Kennedy and other high administration officials today or Tuesday. It will be made public Wednesday.

Between now and the middle of August Kennedy will review figures on other areas of the economy. He has said he will be in a position by then to decide whether the economy is lagging. If the answer is yes, he may ask Congress to reduce taxes.

Figures Considered Important

The job figures being prepared for Kennedy carry an important reading on the seasonally adjusted unemployment rate. For June it showed that 5 1/2 per cent of America's work force was unemployed and looking for jobs. The administration has called anything over 4 per cent too high.

A significant rise in the unemployment rate this month would intensify pressures on Kennedy to seek an immediate tax cut. A decline, or an insignificant change, would do little toward helping him make up his mind.

Congressional views are sharply divided. Assistant Senate Democratic Leader Hubert H. Humphrey called Sunday for an immediate $7 billion tax cut.

Douglas Not Convinced

But another liberal Democrat, Sen. Paul Douglas, of Illinois, said he was not convinced economic conditions warranted a tax cut. He said Congress should wait until there was clear evidence that the nation was headed for a recession.

Two New York Republicans, Sens. Kenneth B. Keating and Jacob K. Javits, sided with Humphrey.

Republican national Chairman William E. Miller said taxes should be cut only if federal expenditures are reduced sharply at the same time. Miller said there was no evidence to indicate that Kennedy was dropping "demands for excessive expenditures."

Lady Churchill said the former prime minister, recuperating from a broken thigh bone, was visited Sunday by Lord Privy Seal Edward Heath at Middlesex Hospital.

Churchill broke the bone June 28 in a fall in his hotel suite at the start of a vacation in Monte Carlo.
