

THE GALLERY at the Roseburg Art Association outdoor show at the Elks Temple Saturday drew throngs despite the heat. It was called a success by the association. More than 150 entries were set up, and several artists showed their skills on the spot in a popular section of the show.

Roseburg Artist Fools Butterfly

By BEVERLY BROOKE

The artist wasn't there to see. But it happened!

A butterfly, straying from the usual garden haunts of these lovely creatures, found right in downtown Roseburg a vase filled with magnolias. The butterfly's visit was short, however. It soon discovered the flowers weren't real but were in an oil painting done by Mrs. Kenneth Ford.

The picture was one of the more than 150 oil paintings, water colors, pastels and other entries found on the plaza of the Elks Temple Saturday. Forty-one adults and 15 children contributed to the showing sponsored by the Roseburg Art Association.

Much Art Seen
Besides portraits, landscapes and still lifes, visitors enjoyed seeing the pottery and ceramic work done by Douglas County craftsmen. Viletta West, well-known designer of china, had a number of fine pieces of her work on display. Children, especially, enjoyed seeing Bill Donnelly, formerly with the Walt Disney Studios, working with charcoal, drawing giant cartoons.

Another "live" exhibit was Mrs. Maude Powers of Winston, who demonstrated the art of china painting. Mrs. Powers has taught her technique to many county artists and was Mrs. West's first teacher.

John Pelzell

John Roland Pelzell of Oakland, a retired railroad worker, died Saturday at a local hospital. He was 32.

Pelzell was born in Oakland on June 13, 1909, and had resided in that community during his entire lifetime. He was active in Oakland Lions Club and served as assistant fire chief for the Oakland Volunteer Fire Department.

He retired from the Southern Pacific Railroad last year after 33 years of service.

Surviving are his mother, Mrs. Mamie Pelzell of Oakland; a daughter, Mrs. Holland Hutchings and a son, Ronald, both of Oakland; a sister, Mrs. Donald Cummings of Sunnyvale, Calif.; a brother, Donald of Tacoma; and three grandchildren.

Funeral services are scheduled at 10:30 a.m. in the Community Presbyterian Church at Oakland with the Rev. Ronald Spaulding of the Oakland Church of Christ officiating. Interment will follow at the IOOF Cemetery at Oakland. Sutherland-Oakland Mortuary is in charge of arrangements.

Solon Plans Nisei Tax Relief Bill

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Sen. Thomas Kuchel, R-Calif., plans to introduce this week legislation to exempt from federal income taxes money paid to Japanese-Americans placed in relocation camps during World War II.

Kuchel said Saturday the Internal Revenue Service added "insult to injury" by ruling that compensation claims for property losses by the Nisei were subject to income tax.

"I deny that Congress ever intended such a travesty," said Kuchel. "The awards represent but a fraction of the loss."

"Morally, the problem is the other way around. These people ought to be permitted to take a loss on their tax returns," Kuchel said.

While his bill is pending, Kuchel said he also will urge the IRS to reconsider its ruling.

He noted that most of the 110,000 Nisei sent to the camps were loyal Americans.

Kuchel labeled the claims program the effort of "an embarrassed nation to right the grievous wrong done to tens of thousands of our fellow citizens of Japanese extraction."

Drunk Charge Holds Man Wanted in Albany

John Allen Ray Sooter, 33, 1248 Willow St., Roseburg was arrested Friday night by Roseburg City Police on a charge of being drunk in a public place.

Further check showed he also was wanted on a Linn County warrant out of Albany alleging converting subject matter of trust, with bail set at $250.

He posted bail on both charges, then forfeited bail on the drunk charge by failure to appear in the Municipal Court of Judge Warren Woodruff Saturday morning. He is to appear in Albany on the other charge.

Ike Visits Swedish Museum, Sniffs Old Rum

STOCKHOLM (UPI) — Former President Dwight D. Eisenhower, with a beaming smile, took a sniff today of what is claimed to be the oldest rum in the world but declined to sample it.

"It's amazing," Eisenhower said. Eisenhower, 71, was aboard the 334-year-old warship Vasa, which sank with all hands at the start of her maiden voyage Aug. 10, 1628. When the ship was discovered in the mud in 1956, a rum bottle was found intact.

Eisenhower found it of particular interest during his one-hour visit to the recently raised warship, now a floating museum.

The touring ex-president was so eager to see the Vasa he turned up almost half an hour early with U. S. Ambassador J. Graham Parsons.

Eisenhower, who left his wife and two grandchildren behind in town, was shown around the museum by Vasa's discoverer, engineer Anders Franzen.

Continually wiping his glasses in the damp, floating museum, the ex-president examined the old pumps and looked at the ship's sculptures.

Mrs. Eisenhower and the two grandchildren, Dwight David II, 14, and Barbara Ann, 13, were to visit the Vasa this afternoon before a reception tonight by the Swedish-American Society. Eisenhower spent part of the afternoon at the American Embassy, chatting with members of the staff.

When Eisenhower arrived in Sweden Sunday he gave a public apology for "having wrongly criticized the social security conditions in Sweden" two years ago.

"I sincerely apologize for having wrongly criticized the social security conditions in Sweden," he said as he and Mrs. Eisenhower arrived for a four-day visit.

The ex-president was referring to a remark he made while president in which he did not refer to Sweden by name but alluded to it as a nation with a "high rate of suicides and alcoholism." The statement stirred up a hornet's nest in Sweden.

Eisenhower said that since he had thus spoken he had "met many countrymen who have visited your country and have told me that I was quite wrong. I admit my error and I hope that settles the controversy."

But even before the apology, Swedes were cheering "long live Eisenhower" and police had to control the admiring crowds at his press conference.
