Catholic Physician Requests Research On Birth Control

WASHINGTON (UPI)—A noted Catholic physician has called on the National Institutes of Health to set up immediately "at least 10 major research centers" to work on new methods of fertility control.

Dr. John Rock, emeritus professor of gynecology at Harvard University and codeveloper of the oral contraceptive pill, made the plea at a luncheon meeting sponsored by the Planned Parenthood Federation world population emergency campaign.

"Catholic doctrine today is no obstacle to a massive program of government action on the population problem," Rock said. "Many Catholic scholars are as concerned with the tragic consequences of overpopulation as are non-Catholics."

He noted that the late Pope Pius XII and other "authoritative church leaders" have urged greater scientific research to perfect the rhythm method of birth control which Catholics find morally acceptable.

Rock said he had no doubt that a massive research program would quickly lead to variety of "improved, reliable, natural methods of fertility regulation" which would be acceptable to all religious groups and cheap enough to be introduced on a mass scale in underdeveloped countries.

He said it is "tragic" that the NIH is spending "only about $3 million a year for fertility research out of a budget of close to $900 million."

Calling for a scientific effort comparable to the wartime Manhattan Project which developed the atomic bomb, Rock said that the threat of overpopulation is so grave that "scientists must be attracted to work in this field" even if other medical areas are temporarily neglected.

Republicans Hit Aid To U.S. Idle Plan Of Kennedy

By United Press International
 Republicans called attention Wednesday to an anti-discrimination regulation in an effort to defeat an administration plan to boost aid for communities with chronic unemployment.

In a minority report accompanying the $445 million authorization bill, a group of Republicans printed the text of an anti-discrimination regulation which governs use of facilities built with federal aid under the area redevelopment program.

The regulation, published Jan. 4 in the Federal Register, previously had received little attention. Because it is "a comparatively new addition" to the program, the Republicans said they reprinted the text "for the benefit of members who may be interested."

Without expressing any view on the merits of the regulation, the GOP report called specific attention to two of its provisions:

—One that bars racial segregation or other such discrimination in nursing homes built with the program's help. The attention focused on this could make it more difficult for Democratic leaders to line up votes from Southern Democrats.

—A provision that exempts from the anti-discrimination rules all hotels, motels or other facilities intended for occupancy for periods of less than 30 days. This could make it more difficult for Northern Democratic liberals to vote against an attempt to write a tougher anti-discrimination amendment into the bill.

Adoption of such an amendment would, in turn, make it still more difficult to win Southern southern votes for the legislation.

 Restrictions: The House Committee on Un-American Activities hoped to wind up a two-day hearing on whether there should be further restrictions on travel by U.S. citizens to Cuba. The committee, an usual, refused to disclose the identity of witnesses who would appear today.
