

Fire Instructors Gird For Fight Against Oregon Education Board

The Oregon Firemen's Instructors Association passed a resolution Sunday and girded itself for battle against the state Board of Higher Education and the state legislature.

The association held its quarterly meeting in Roseburg Saturday and Sunday.

The resolution opposed the recent elimination of the position of fire instructor by the state Board of Higher Education. The job is scheduled to expire July 1. It is presently held by Robert Mobley of Salem, Cliff Thrasher, Roseburg Rural Fire Department chief and president of the state association, said the elimination of Mobley's position would be "a terrific blow" to the state fire instruction program. "Without the aid of the state, the program will go kaput," he said.

The instructors' association is made up of firemen who wish to secure specialized or general training in fire fighting and allied fields which they can then teach to their own fire departments. It works closely with the state coordinator, who arranges classes, tests and certification of the teachers as director of the state System of Higher Education program.

Thrasher said that despite support offered by both state system supervisor Leon Miner and Gov. Mark Hatfield in past years, the state program had been forced out of the budget. He said last year, the program contained the equivalent of 3 1/2 state-wide coordinators. It was then cut to one. Now that one has been dropped.

The association decided by its resolution not to give up without a fight. It appointed a three-man committee to try to arrange for a legislative hearing in Salem Tuesday. Members of the committee are: Ted Miller, Salem, chairman; George Howland, Multnomah County; and Walt Pflughaupt, Corvallis. Meanwhile, all members of the association are contacting their mayors, city councils, city managers, other fire associations and the League of Oregon Cities to gather support.

Thrasher said, "We want to endeavor to show the impact this action (loss of the coordinator) will have on the entire state."

Thrasher said no explanation was given for the elimination of the position.

The meeting over the weekend in Roseburg was attended by 72 firemen.

Tiller-Drew Sets Its Visitation Day

Next year's first graders in the Tiller-Drew area will be introduced to classroom routine when annual Visitation Day is held Wednesday in the primary room of the Tiller-Drew Grade School under the sponsorship of the PTA and Umpqua Valley Kindergarten, according to Mrs. John O. Wilson, publicity chairman.

Mrs. Milton Hammersly, correspondent, said plans have been made for a full day of activity for the children, who will ride the school bus on regular routes with older pupils. From 8:30 a.m. until 2 p.m. they will have a typical first grade schedule under the direction of Mrs. Howard Ward, primary teacher. Children will bring a sack lunch or 25 cents for hot lunch.

Mrs. Robert W. Squyres will have charge of Mrs. Ward's second grade pupils for the day and will take over supervision of first graders and visiting pupils at 2 p.m. for a play period, at which time Mrs. Ward will meet with mothers of visiting pupils for a tea and conference.

Letters have been sent to parents of all prospective students known to the PTA, Mrs. Wilson said, but she emphasized that any newcomer family which might have been missed by letter is welcome to attend and that all mothers of prospective beginners are urged to come in order to familiarize themselves with procedure. Any questions or problems will be discussed during the conference period, Mrs. Wilson said.

Roseburg To Host NARCE Convention

The 1964 state convention of the National Association of Retired Civil Employees will be held in Roseburg.

The Roseburg Chapter 212 received the information from Homer Pattison at its recent meeting. Pattison was delegate to the 1963 convention held this month in Portland.

He also announced that Floyd Powell, local chapter president, had been elected to the post of first vice president of the state federation.

Floyd Carter and Richard Renoe, both former members of the engineering division at the Roseburg Veterans Hospital, were accepted as new members of chapter 212. The total membership is now 45.

Mr. and Mrs. Arto Stephens served refreshments at the meeting.

Local Pair Held After 'Free' Meal At Market

City police booked Bobby Milton Myers, 38, Rt. 1, Box 601, Roseburg, and Ralph Allen Miller, 39, of 1236 SE Mill St., Roseburg, Saturday for petty larceny, after the pair enjoyed a meal of crackers and sardines.

The only thing wrong, according to city police reports, was that they allegedly didn't pay for their meal.

The two men were picked up at Byrd's Market, where they had been detained by an employee. According to the report, Myers and Miller allegedly came into the store, opened a can of sardines and eat them. They then put the empty sardine can and cracker box back on the shelf and left without paying.

They were followed outside to a car by the store attendant, and induced to return to the store office to await arrival of officers.

1963 Fire Season Will Begin Friday

The 1963 fire season in Oregon officially begins at 12:01 a.m. Friday, fire officials disclosed today.

This opening will apply to all public forest and grazing lands in this area, as well as the protective region served by the Douglas Forest Protective Association.

With the fire season opened, logging contractors and woods workers will be required to keep fire tools on hand and burning permits will be required, it was reported today by the Umpqua National Forest and DFPA fire staff officers.

The fire season is usually launched on April 1 but this year's heavy precipitation made it possible to do without fire restrictions during the late spring period.

Umpqua fire staff man Larry Thorpe said logging outfits will receive notification later in regard to burning requirements.

Thorpe said the woods at the present time are "fairly damp, but are drying out rapidly."

Permits may be secured from fire warden stations and from district headquarters of the Forest Service, BLM and DFPA.

Tenmile Residents To Get Instruction

The Tenmile Volunteer Fire Department, meeting Friday night, decided that residents should receive instruction on how to start and run their newly acquired fire truck, reports Mrs. Walter Coats, correspondent.

The truck is located at Ted Benedict's Trunk Store, and Benedict will be on hand to give instruction. He will also show how to use equipment on the truck.

The truck has not yet had any occasion for use, said Mrs. Coats, but it is now ready to go on a fire call at any time.

The department plans later to visit homes in the community and leave cards which will tell the public whom to call and what to do in case of fire. Residents will also receive information on what to do to lessen fire hazards in the home.

At the Friday meeting, the group voted to buy two smoke masks and a first aid kit.

James Parrett, president of the organization, has resigned because he has been transferred to the coast. Don Hinch Jr., vice president, will take over Parrett's duties. A new vice president will be elected at the next meeting, said Mrs. Coats.

Fifteen Survive No-Smoke Pledge

Fifteen survived. Of the 33 persons who started the Five-Day Plan to stop smoking last Monday at the YMCA, 15 are no longer smoking.

Pastor A. P. Ritz, one of the therapists in the program, says the 15 were not necessarily rid of the tobacco habit, even though they had not smoked for several days. "The habit pattern is still there, but these folks have proved they can get rid of it," he said.

The minister-physician team conducting the program urged "buddies" to continue to contact each other when the urge is strong, even though the formal course is completed. They said the next two months "can be critical."

Participants signed decision cards, indicating they chose not to smoke. They will carry these with them as a reminder. Pastor Ritz said the discussion periods during the clinic indicated "a real spirit of enthusiasm." A number of participants also indicated they had friends who were interested in attending a stop-smoking clinic if another is held.

The program last week was jointly sponsored by the YMCA and Seventh-day Adventist Church.

New FCC Chairman Wants Public To Join Campaign For Better TV

WASHINGTON (UPI) — E. William Henry, new chairman of the Federal Communications Commission, wants the public to join the FCC in a campaign to improve the quality of television programs.

Henry said in a weekend interview he sees no magic remedies for improving television standards such as new legislation, or a government subsidized network such as the British Broadcasting Company.

"If you don't like the kind of programs your local television station is offering, write to them and tell them. If you don't get any cooperation from the station, write to the FCC and tell us about it."

Traffic Safety Film Booked Wednesday

"Signal 30," a 30-minute motion picture on safety, produced by the Ohio State Police Department, will be shown Wednesday evening as part of the driver training school, reports Roseburg Chief of Police John T. Truitt.

The school will be from 7 to 10 p.m. in the City Council chambers under police department sponsorship. It is one of a series of the public, free of charge, the second and fourth Wednesday nights each month. Anyone interested is invited to attend, said Chief Truitt. Each session is complete in itself, but an effort is made to avoid duplication so that more than one session may be attended and additional driving training instruction obtained.

This film is considered comparable to "Mechanized Death," shown two weeks ago and which attracted considerable attention, said Truitt. He and other officers will explain various laws pertaining to driver training, and young people as well as older persons are invited to attend.

comes up for renewal every three years, and said that any serious complaint about a station's programming would go into a file for consideration at renewal time.

Henry, appointed as successor to Newton W. Minor who quit as head of the FCC last week, said those who find present television fare dull and monotonous should express their dissatisfaction despite claims by broadcasters that present programs suit the majority's taste.

Broadcasters have "not merely a moral but a legal responsibility," he said, to serve the interests of all segments of the community including the minority that might prefer public affairs rather than hospital serials and horse operas. "Networks must satisfy the majority, but only part of the time," Henry said. "They have an obligation to find out what the majority really wants, not what it accepts merely because nothing else is offered."

The former Memphis, Tenn., lawyer said that ratings services do not provide the networks with an accurate picture of what the public desires. They reflect only what the majority watch given the limited choice, he said.

"Ratings do not show what people might prefer if they had other choices," Henry said he thought the public already was discouraged with what television was providing now, and would become even more so when they see next season's schedule. "Of 2 1/2 hours of prime time programs on the three major networks next fall, only 2 hours will be devoted to what might be called public affairs programs," he said.
