

Senate To Reconsider Vote On Constitution

SALEM (UPI)—The Senate today rescinded, 18-14, the constitution it defeated Tuesday and expressed the hope that "men of good will" could resolve differences on legislative apportionment.

The vote came on a motion to reconsider Tuesday's 18-12 defeat of the document.

Key senators involved in the deadlock over how to hand out legislative seats said finding a common ground would be difficult, but they considered it possible. They said they would like a chance to try.

The document went back to the Senate Committee on Constitutional Revision.

Sen. Walter Pearson, D-Portland, chairman of the committee, said former Gov. Charles Sprague would offer one apportionment plan that might be a solution.

Sen. Alfred Corbett, D-Portland, one of the eight who opposed the document on apportionment grounds, moved for its reconsideration.

Delaware Holds Suspect Burglar

A man accused of burglarizing Sandy's Tavern in Roseburg May 24, 1962, is being held in Wilmington, Del., and extradition proceedings are under way to have him returned here.

He is Roger Lee Marine, about 37, who was known here at the time as Gary Wilson. He was staying at a local hotel.

Detective Sgt. E. R. Woodworth of the city police force said a search has been under way since the date of the crime for Marine. He was picked up in Wilmington on a petty larceny count and is being held for Roseburg authorities.

He is accused of taking about $200 from a music machine about $5 from the till and a .22 Hi Standard automatic pistol, and is alleged to have made an unsuccessful attempt to crack open the safe.

Marine also is charged in another complaint with larceny by bailment. He is accused of failing to return the car of Lyle David, which he was permitted by David to drive the night of the burglary. The car later was recovered in Portland.

Mountain Roads Open

SALEM (UPI)—The Mt. Hood Loop Highway reopened to traffic today.

Three other routes will open at 8 a.m. Thursday. They are the McKenzie Pass, East and West Diamond Lake Highways and Crater Lake North. They had been closed by snow.

Rescue Vote Hailed

Corbett termed the vote to rescind the document a real showing of who wants the constitution to pass and who doesn't. It would take 29 of the 30 senators' votes to pass.

But the vote to send the constitution back to committee was unusual. Some of its steady supporters said it was too late to do any more with it this session. A few of its foes agreed to return it to committee.

In Tuesday's action, only 12 senators voted for final passage, while 18 voted against it.

A vote swung by the eight who opposed the "Yurri plan" of apportionment would have made the difference.

The document passed the House earlier. If it passes the Senate, the two chambers will have to resolve their differences to send it on to the people next year.

Sen. Anthony Yurri, R-Ontario, met with the key foe of his apportionment plan today and said some differences were resolved. He said it may be hard to resolve the basic difference, but he was willing to try.

Senators on the other side stressed willingness to seek a compromise.

High School Students Visit Umpqua Forest

During this spring season many classes are turned out-of-doors to observe growing things. Recently the Umpqua National Forest played host to several schools from the Umpqua Valley area, reports Raymond C. Schaafs, forester at Steamboat Ranger Station.

Oakland High School biologists visited the North Umpqua District in the Steamboat Creek area on May 15. Mickey Hurley and nearly 70 students of biology were led on a tour of the district to observe multiple-use management of the forest. Foresters Richard Harlan and Ronald Waitt of the North Umpqua District were guides on the field trip.

Two fifth grade classes from West Sutherlin School visited the same area on May 16 with foresters Raymond Schaaf and Ronald Waitt in charge. There were 63 children on this tour as well as eight parents.

Temperature Expected Above Normal Locally

Weather outlook for the next five days calls for temperatures to be a little above normal after Thursday, says the weatherman.

Precipitation will be less than 1 of an inch.

schools and to acquaint students with the national forests and the multiple-use management of national forests.

In preparation for the trips, District Ranger Gene Carlson visited Oakland High School and forester Raymond Schaaf visited West Sutherlin School on the day before the trip. A Forest Service film, "The Forest," was shown. This film dramatically points out the many uses of the national forests.

Also, while at Oakland High School, Ranger Carlson spoke to the advanced biology class and later to the freshman class on the importance of education and opportunities for careers in forestry, engineering, wildlife, business management and other professional and subprofessional specialties in the Forest Service.

On the field trips, each group visited the same areas, but the discussions were aimed at the level of each group.

Discussed on the field trip were development and use of the resources through management. This included water and watershed management, timber management for grazing and wildlife forage, recreation management, wildlife management through cooperation with the Oregon state Game Commission and other agencies and protection of the resource through fire, insect, and disease control and development of forest roads, trails and facilities.

The field trip covered the North Umpqua River and Steamboat Creek areas and included stops at Steamboat Falls, the Wabash Timber Sale area and Steamboat Ranger Station.

This has been the second year for these conservation education programs. It will be continued yearly with modification and expansion to meet the needs of each school.
