Dody Emotes, Hunts Hubby On The Side

Must Dody 24 ex. HOLLYWOOD (UPI)—Most actresses came to movietown hoping to become stars, but comedienne Dody Goodman made the trip when a producer promised to find her a husband.

Dody, the delightful scatter-brained red head who gained fame on the old Jack Paar show, is making her first movie while husband hunting on the side.

And she's doing well for a novice, for her co-stars are Marlon Brando and David Niven.

"When my agent in New York telephoned and asked me to go to California for this role, I was terribly excited," she exclaimed. "I was hoping Marlon was cast, and approval would give me his personal attention. But I got the part without ever seeing him."

Asked if she had ever been married, Dody flushed crimson.

"No," she said, "and it is embarrassing. But the producer of the picture, Stanley Shapiro, promised to get me a husband."

Dody has been having too much fun to waste time husband hunting in the past. A native of Columbus, Ohio, she comes by her wacky outlook on life naturally. It runs in her family.

"I never dated the time I went back to Columbus for a party in my honny," she said. "My mother had a highball and was telling everyone all about me."

"She ran into one man and said, 'I'm Dody's mother.' The man looked at her and said, 'How do you do, I'm Dody's brother.' And sure enough, it was my brother Dody's mother was talking to."

She's Dody's mother, too, you know.

Hollywood and/or Dody must do some adjusting if the two are to hit things off.

In her first visit to the Universal commissary, where she is working in Shapiro's "Dog of the Mountain," Dody approached the actor whose face was cruelly scarred, torn and either "You poor man," she cried, "You should get to a hospital."

The actor, wearing glasses, makeup for a scene, was nonplussed. "I really thought he'd been in a bad accident," Dody said. "It was a relief to find out he was just wearing makeup."

"I love my own role. I play a woman with $4 million and all kinds of fancy jewelry and dresses. Unfortunately the script does not permit me to land either Marlon or Mr. Niven."

Perhaps Dody will have better luck offscreen.

"I don't know," she said. "It's too soon to meet a good man in Hollywood, but you don't run into many good husband prospects."

"And you can't get to know it man is a good prospect without getting pretty close to him. Even the moment I think I'll just leave it all up to Mr. Shapiro."

Schools At Sutherlin Celebrate Music Week

Students of the Sutherlin elementary schools recently observed Music Week, reported Jerry De Muth, correspondent.

The East School sixth grade presented an operetta, "Daddy's Ranch," the West School students gave a rhythm festival and North School had a mother's tea. Part of the program for the mothers was a demonstration showing the use of audio-visual aids in teaching music.

All elementary students joined in a music memory contest. Awards were won by 22 students who earned perfect scores in the contest.

The programs were under the direction of Mrs. Georgia Clarke.
