Dear Abby!

It's Doubtful, Mother!

— By ABIGAIL VANBUREN —

DEAR ABBY: My daughter, who has three children, all under 12, divorced her husband three years ago. She had no choice, as drinking, gambling and women took the food out of her mouth. She started going to a "therapist" for treatment and counseling. He is not a doctor, and I never did understand what qualifies him to practice. My daughter has paid him $100 a month for two years, and she seems to be getting worse instead of better. She goes to him three nights a week while her children get their own meals and stay alone until midnight. Wouldn't a good therapist tell a mother to stay home with her children? They are developing emotional problems because their mother is so irritable and on edge, and is gone so much. How can I find out more about this "therapist" without causing trouble? I think he is a faker.

CONCERNED MOTHER

DEAR CONCERNED: Assuming he WERE a faker, and you could prove it, you would accomplish nothing unless you first gained the confidence of your daughter, and together you investigated this "therapist." (I read where one woman became so enchanted with "Dr." Ben Casey that she admitted that she didn't care whether he was a "real" doctor or not—she'd let him operate on her.) Try to convince your daughter that she'd be wise to investigate her therapist's background and qualifications before continuing with him.

DEAR ABBY: We gave one of the girls in our office a bridal shower and then she broke off the engagement. Instead of returning the gifts she passed a note around the office asking each of us to list our gift and how much we paid for it, saying she wanted to refund the money. Have you ever heard of this being done, and do you think it was proper?

ONE OF THE GIRLS

DEAR ONE: No, but that doesn't mean it is improper. Perhaps the girl used her gifts and cannot return them, so she's doing the next best thing. Don't be critical of her. She's having enough problems as it is.

DEAR ABBY: My best friend is a widow, aged 52. She was just told by her doctor that she is pregnant. Her boy friend is separated from his wife, but not divorced. Her only income is $108 per month social security from her dead husband. She asked me what to do, so I am asking you.

HER FRIEND

DEAR FRIEND: If your friend is interested in finding a Home For Unwed Mothers in her area, tell her to write to me and I will help her. In the meantime, she should see a lawyer to determine what her "boy friend's" responsibility is to her and her child.

DEAR ABBY: My parents are getting very crabby in their old age. Every time I want to do something, they think of a million things that can go wrong. I have been talking this over with my friends, and they tell me their parents are the same way. Parents today are too strict about everything. My parents were always this way, but they seem to be getting worse. What can I do?

PRISONER

DEAR "PRISONER": You can thank your lucky stars that you have parents who care enough about you to worry about the million things that can go wrong—before they do.

Match Point Double Used

By OSWALD JACOBY
(Written For NEA)

One duplicate bid that practically never makes its appearance in rubber bridge is the so-called match point double. West's takeout double was very weak distributionally, but he did made two spades for plus 110, he did beat three diamonds because North held the Jack instead of South and plus 200 gave him a top score in the Southeastern championships in Miami, Fla.

Incidentally, the double was good percentage because North and South were vulnerable. If they had not been vulnerable it would have changed the score from 50 to 100 only and would not have made much match point difference.

have three defensive tricks. North's immediate heart bid was made in anticipation of spade bidding by the opposition and eventually North bid three diamonds over East's two spades.

East doubled this. He decided that if South could make three diamonds South would do pretty well - pointwise and that while the double would increase South's point score from 110 to 670 in the event that South could make three diamonds it would increase East's point score from 100 to 200 in the event that South was one trick too high and that the match point score would improve from below average to top.

East was right on all counts. Left to himself he would have
