

British Labor Party Head Opens Debate On Shocking Sex Scandal

LONDON (UPI) — Labor party leader Harold Wilson today opened an unprecedented parliamentary debate on Britain's sex and security scandal with a statement that evidence of a "sordid underworld network" had shocked the nation's moral conscience.

Prime Minister Harold Macmillan, fighting for his political life, was cheered by the Conservative members as he entered the chamber, but the ovation appeared to be less enthusiastic than usual.

Macmillan is expected to win a vote of confidence after the debate over the confessions and resignation of War Minister John Profumo, but it appeared likely he would quit after the furore caused by the scandal dies down.

Virtually all political observers and newspapers agreed the Conservative party leader had sufficient support for a House of Commons vote of confidence that would save his government from collapse.

The 69-year-old "Unflappable Mac" himself was reported confident of victory on what the Daily Herald called "the day of reckoning."

Career is at Stake

Macmillan's political career was at stake as well as the tone of the Atlantic alliance. To a large extent the outcome rested on Macmillan's speech declaring he acted with the utmost honor and integrity in the affair.

The Laborites said they would concentrate on the security considerations rather than the moral aspects of the scandal.

The prime minister's cabinet ministers, despite earlier reports of a possible revolt, pledged their support, and Macmillan's lieutenants spent the weekend and this morning mulling the party's rank and file and members of parliament.

The scandal which brought on the crucial debate started 11 days ago when War Minister John Profumo, 48, resigned after admitting he lied in Commons about his relationship with red-haired Christine Keeler, a 21-year-old party girl.

Profumo told the House March 22 there was nothing improper about his friendship with Miss Keeler, but it turned out he was having an illicit love affair with her.

Security Involved

The Profumo affair took on security implications when it was disclosed that Miss Keeler also was the mistress of Soviet assistant naval attaché Eugene Ivanov during the time she and Profumo, a married man, were meeting. This disclosure led to demands by the opposition Labor party for the Commons debate.

Two Suffer Hurts In Auto Accidents

State police investigated two accidents during the past weekend, one of which caused minor injuries to the persons involved.

The first occurred at 4:30 p.m. Saturday about four miles from Roseburg on Garden Valley Road when a 4-year-old girl crawled into a parked car and released the emergency brake.

State police said little Kathy Lynn Diggs got into the car owned by her father, Benjamin Theodore Diggs, Rt. 2, Box 472 Roseburg, released the brake and the car rolled into the middle of the road. They said a vehicle driven by Robert Lloyd Whipple, 78, of 1135 SE Douglas St., came along, swerved to miss the car and struck a telephone pole and the left rear fender of the Diggs car.

The little girl suffered a bump on the right side of her head and Whipple suffered a cut lip and loose tooth, police said.

The second occurred at 5:55 p.m. Sunday on U. S. Highway 99 BR at its junction with Hooker Road, just north of Roseburg.

State police said a car driven by Mary Valentine, 50, of 4210 NE Hooker Road, proceeded out of Hooker Road and headed north on 99 BR. They said a car driven by Gary Thomas Shultz, 21, of 943 NE Klamath St., was traveling north on 99 BR and overtook the Valentine vehicle, striking it in the rear bumper. Both cars received only minor damage.

Most political observers felt a vote of confidence would be only a temporary respite for Macmillan and that he would have to step down under party and public pressures some time this summer.

The Laborites charged that Macmillan was either negligent or naive in failing to recognize the seriousness of the situation created by the Profumo-Keeler-Ivanov love triangle.

The whole affair set off a wave of public indignation at the moral aspects. This led to discontent among the Conservatives who fear for their fate at the polls. The prestige of the Tories was at a low ebb before the scandal broke.

Local Police Get Grass Fire Complaint

Roseburg city police investigated two non-injury accidents during the past weekend. The first occurred at 2:25 p.m. Saturday on SE Stephens St. near the intersection of SE Oak Ave.

Police said the accident occurred when a car driven by Robert Lee McMullen, 39, of 525 W. Maple, struck the rear of a car driven by Harold R. Smith, of 1750 NE Stephens St., causing that car in turn to collide with a rear of a car driven by John A. Overholt, of Los Angeles, Calif. All three cars were traveling north on Stephens St., when Overholt stopped suddenly for other traffic. Smith slowed down rapidly and McMullen was not able to stop before hitting the Smith car, police said.

The second at 12:40 p.m. Sunday at SE Main St. near the intersection of SE Orcutt Ave. involving vehicles driven by Wallace Leon Hambrick, 27, of 3459 W. Harvard Blvd., and Donald Lee Baile, of 1774 NE Klamath St.

FALSE TEETH That Loosen Need Not Embarrass

Many wearers of false teeth have suffered real embarrassment because their plate slipped, slipped or wobbled at just the wrong time. Do not live in fear of this happening to you. Just sprinkle a little FASTEREIN, the alkaline (non-acid) powder, on your dentures. Note false teeth more firmly, so they feel more comfortable. Does not sour. Checks "plate odor" (denture breath). resignation Sunday, bringing down Israel's 10th coalition government. He said he was leaving the government completely "for personal reasons."

The veteran Zionist, described by many as the "George Washington" of Israel, also quit as defense minister and member of the Knesset (parliament). He made the announcement at the regular cabinet meeting.

Ben-Gurion's trouble-shooter and finance minister, Levi Eshkol, 68, appeared to be the most likely choice for the premiership.

Eshkol helped form the three-party government in 1961 when Ben-Gurion balked at forming the coalition on his own.

Urgent consultations went on during the day among leading figures in Ben-Gurion's Mapai party. All indications pointed to a renewed coalition among the Ahdut Haavoda, the national religious party and Mapai.

Ben-Gurion's announcement was terse, saying only he was leaving public life for "personal reasons" — personal needs which were not connected with any state problem or event.

One friend said "he kept it close to his heart as he did all previous historic decisions." Another said Ben-Gurion is "tired and needs a long rest," but the white-haired leader daily walks four miles and is famed for his seaside headstands and exercises.

Part Of Kellogg Span Doing Business Again

The part of the old Kellogg Bridge which was salvaged after it collapsed in 1961 into the bed of the Umpqua River is now doing business again.

It is now resting on new piers over Abernathy Creek near Oregon City.

The Kellogg Bridge, now replaced by a new span, collapsed with a car and truck on it. No one was killed.

Clackamas County commissioners purchased the 100-foot section for $4,000 last winter and used a special rig to haul it to the county.

The bridge will reactivate a county road which has been dead-ended for 20 years. A bridge in the same location burned.
