

Unusual No-Trump Usage Varies

By OSWALD JACOBY
(Written For NEA)

The unusual no-trump is a new convention and it is still in a state of change. Every expert uses it in some fashion, but they disagree on the exact method. All agree on one thing, though. It is intended to show a two-suit hand.

This particular two-no-trump overall of the diamond opening showed a heart-club two-suit. Probably North did not have quite enough to force his partner to the three level, but unusual no-trump addicts go out of their way to use the bid.

East's three diamond call was strictly competitive. South jumped to five clubs because he expected to make that contract, and was willing to play a slam if North wanted to continue.

At this point West came up with a perfectly outrageous double. West was looking at 16 high card points, but when you double a high contract you do so in tricks, not points, and West was not looking at many tricks. His ace of spades looked pretty good, but his king of hearts probably had its head on the chopping block. In the diamond suit there was no opportunity for more than one trick and a good chance of no tricks at all.

Finally, the queen of clubs represented a liability. South had gone to five clubs without the queen. He had to have compensation somewhere.

Still, West doubled and in one respect he was lucky. Both opponents held a diamond and South did not make an over-trick, even though he did make his contract.

What is your opening bid?
A—One club. You have 29 points, too much for an opening no-trump in any system, and you should select a bid which is most likely to get a response from partner.

Plane Carries Biggest Cargo

EDWARDS AFB, Calif. (UPI)—A B377 "pregnant Guppie," the world's largest airplane, was carried aloft the largest cargo ever nicknamed because of its bloated midsection, the plane recently airlifted a "dummy" second stage of the Saturn I missile to this flight test center from Los Angeles, 125 miles southwest of here.

The cargo, only a shell but the same weight and size as a "live" S4 stage of the Saturn I, weighed 20,379 pounds and measured 41 feet long and 18 feet in diameter. There was no engine, propulsion system or other equipment in the "dummy."

The 127-foot-long Guppie weighs 91,000 pounds and can carry more than 71 tons of cargo. Its expanded midsection more than triples the potential of 29,187 cubic feet, making it the largest plane in the world in terms of cubic capacity. The plane and its cargo will be flight tested here.

When certified by the Federal Aviation Agency, the Guppie will carry flight stages of the giant Saturn I to Cape Canaveral, Fla., and may be used by the National Space Agency for similar jobs to save hauling time.

Space cargo currently is transported by ship through the Panama Canal.

Khrush May Reneg On Inspections

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Soviet Premier Nikita S. Khrushchev may have set the clock back six months in negotiations for a treaty banning nuclear tests.

The text of the Kremlin leader's interview with Pravda, received here, makes it clear that though he at no point flatly withdrew his offer of six months ago for on-site inspections in a nuclear test ban, he strongly implied he may have decided to do so.

Washington officials had no immediate comment on Khrushchev's interview pending study of the text.

Unless Khrushchev clarifies his remarks, however, the interview appeared to reduce what little hope there had been for success of U.S. British-Soviet nuclear test ban talks scheduled to be held in Moscow in mid-July.

The offer had been included in a letter from Khrushchev to President Kennedy last December 19. In that letter Russia for the first time since 1961 accepted the principle of inspection on Soviet soil. The letter also agreed to placing three unmanned seismic monitoring stations, or "black boxes," on Soviet territory as a further guarantee against secret underground tests.

The December letter, and an exchange of letters between Kennedy and Khrushchev which followed in January, raised hopes for a test ban agreement after a long period of negotiating dol-drum.

But in test ban talks which followed the negotiators failed to agree on the number of annual inspections. The West reduced its earlier demands to seven a year. The Russians stuck to two or three.

In the text of Khrushchev's interview received here, the premier specifically repeated his Deember agreement to the "black boxes." But inspections by West-sites, Khrushchev charged, would only be "inspection for the purpose of espionage."
