

Separate Groups Will Ask Referral Of Tax Measure

SALEM (UPI) — Two separate groups were expected today to file formal notice of referral of the 1963 legislature's 160 million revenue increase measure.

The way for referral was paved at 8:45 a.m. today when the tax bill and 19 other measures were delivered to the secretary of state. The final group of 20 bills became law at 12:01 a.m. today without the signature of Gov. Mark Hatfield.

J. Francyl Howard, editor and publisher of weekly newspapers in Albany and Corvallis, told UPI he expected to appear in the capitol at about 2:30 p.m. to file for referral.

Plan Announced Earlier

Howard, president of the Citizens Committee for Economy and Equitable Taxation, announced on June 17 that he would lead a referral movement. He filed a referral petition at that time, but it could not become legal until the tax measure was in possession of the secretary of state. He will have to re-file the petition before the legal machinery for referral can start.

Meanwhile, Jack Thompson, elections supervisor for the secretary of state, revealed another group had notified him of intention to refer the revenue measure.

"I'm not at liberty at this time to say who it is," Thompson said. Howard told UPI he also had heard another group planned to file a referral petition.

Floods Threaten East Nebraska

By United Press International

High winds and more than an inch of rain battered flood-stricken eastern Nebraska early today. Heavy rains hit the southeast and caused flooding in Georgia.

Nearly 1 1/2 inches of rain fell during the night at Wahoo, Neb. Winds up to 57 miles an hour toppled power poles in the Norfolk, Neb., area and winds hit 46 m.p.h. at Omaha.

The U. S. Weather Bureau at Omaha said the "touch and go" situation concerning further flooding will depend on how hard it rains during the day and where the rain falls.

Most Nebraska flood waters were receding rapidly but the new rain posed a threat of more high water.

Thirty families were removed from their homes in a southeast Savannah, Ga., subdivision after more than seven inches of rain fell in about eight hours.

Many Savannah streets were impassable because of stalled cars and accidents. A 6-year-old boy drowned while playing with two companions near a canal which was over its banks.

The rainfall was general throughout the southeast part of the nation, although the amounts varied considerably. Athens, Ga., received 3.7 inches during the six hours ending at midnight.

Jacksonville, Fla., which has had much rain recently, had 2.67 inches for a 24-hour period, and Miami Beach, Fla., got 1.27 inches during the same time.

Ireland Proves Contrast To Kennedy's Visit To Berlin

DUBLIN (UPI) — President Kennedy's brief pilgrimage to revive the pastoral past of his Irish forebears provides a sharp contrast to the previous four days spent in Germany.

From the grim, grey Berlin wall to the green fields of Erin in one day is quite a jump—in both mood and motive.

The President's bell-ringing four-day visit to West Germany, climaxed Wednesday by an emotion-packed tour of Berlin, may or may not have a lasting effect on the course of Allied politics and policies in Europe. Diplomatic opinion is divided on this point.

The President's personal charm undoubtedly sparked much of the acclaim in Bonn, Cologne, Frankfurt and Berlin. In divided Berlin, where he reaffirmed in dramatic language the pledge to defend the free Western sector, the acclaim at times approached adoration. However, Kennedy did not consider himself engaged in a popularity contest with French President Charles de Gaulle or any other European leader.

Strategy Emerges

The President's strategy emerged more clearly each day in Germany and undoubtedly will be developed further when he visits Italy next week—after a somewhat awkward day in England with sorely beset Prime Minister Harold Macmillan.

He seemed to be carrying on two simultaneous campaigns which he obviously believes may mesh to lessen the chance of nuclear disaster:

—To rally nervous Allies against attempts by De Gaulle and some others to downgrade the Atlantic alliance, and eliminate suspicions that the United States may abandon West Europe when the chips are down.

—To convince West European leaders that the new Kennedy "strategy of peace"—seeking accommodations with the Kremlin—does not mean that Washington will make any deals with Russia at the expense of its Allies.

Would Be Worthwhile

If he really won the firm and unyielding support of the German leaders and people for his strategy, the trip will have been worthwhile and he will have broken the back of any Franco-German axis—the only combination capable of providing the backbone for a European "third force."

Kennedy and German leaders already agree on nuclear defense cooperation, including creation of a NATO multilateral nuclear force of Polaris-bearing ships manned by mixed nationality crews. But they decided a final Allied decision must await the end of political uncertainties in Britain and Italy.

A multilateral nuclear force comprising only Germany and the U.S. would be a sitting propaganda duck for Kremlin arguments that Washington was fostering resurgent German militarism.

Kennedy himself acknowledges that Europe at present is beset by too many political uncertainties to make it possible to expect decisions on many major issues.

But he hopes he has built a backfire against trends which could wreck the Western alliance and play into the hands of the Russians.

Windy Creek Dam Project Given Airing

Some 20-25 persons turned up for the Douglas County budget hearing Wednesday, with only three objections being voiced to the proposed budget.

Each of the objections came in forms of requests for additional funds. One change was made in the budget. The Budget Committee added $1,500 to $1,000 already in the budget for studies on a proposed dam on Windy Creek near Glendale.

There was a delegation of people from the Glendale area on hand to make the request for added funds for the Windy Creek project. The money was added to the Water Resources Survey department budget.

Gen. Curtis Beecher, a member of the Water Resources Board, also appeared to request that $20,000 for studies on small dam projects on the South Umpqua river be put back in the budget for the coming year. This request was denied.

A delegation from the library board, headed by chairman Gordon Carlson, appeared to request that funds for a second bookmobile crew be put back in the budget. This was also denied. County Judge V. T. Jackson said the County Court feels the library is doing an outstanding job, but added that with the main library, plus eight branches and one bookmobile, the court does not feel the funds for operating a second bookmobile at this time would be justified. One new bookmobile has been ordered and the present unit will be held for emergency use.

CC Zone For Tourists, Says Chief Of Police

The tourist zone posted in front and at the side of the Chamber of Commerce office is strictly for that purpose, Chief of Police John T. Truett says.

A parking zone has been posted on SE Cass and on SE Rose to accommodate tourists seeking information from the chamber office during the tourist season.

Local residents making unauthorized use of the restricted zones will be given tickets, said the chief.

Chief Deputy Quits

Sheriff Ira Byrd reports Mrs. Don (Arda) Garrett, chief deputy in the sheriff's department civil division, has resigned after about six years employment.

Mrs. Les (Betty) Miller has taken over her duties, and Mrs. Hugh (Velma) Fretwell has been employed to replace Mrs. Miller.

JUDGE SYMPATHETIC

SWINDON, England (UPI) — A judge Wednesday advised a man charged with failing to maintain installment payments that he could pick up an unwanted door-to-door salesman "by the seat of his pants and put him outside."

Judge Thomas Elder-Jones also gave Henry Lowe 10 years to pay a $38.24 debt incurred, Lowe said, when a salesman forced a set of books on him.
