

Traffic Officers Urge Caution In Using Highways On Holiday

Another major holiday looms ahead tomorrow, and again traffic officers are beginning to grit their teeth at the possibilities of more highway slaughter and mayhem.

Compounding the problems, traffic officers of the county insist that use of the highways has boomed even in the last year.

Recreation Calls
Thursday many people will be rushing to their favorite recreation areas for the day. Others will be taking advantage of the mid-week holiday to make a long weekend of it.

Although the 4th of July falls on Thursday, the period beginning at 6 p.m. tonight through midnight July 7 will be included in the holiday death count, with the expectation many will be taking a four-day weekend.

The Traffic Safety Division of the state Department of Motor Vehicles is predicting another "potentially" bloated 102-hour holiday period for Oregon.

Eleven motorists died in six separate crashes throughout the state during a similar holiday period earlier this year. Last 4th of July, covering only a 30-hour span, showed 16 accidents and 21 injuries. No deaths were recorded.

Death Toll Zooms

What makes traffic officers even more edgy is that Oregon's highway death toll has zoomed almost 30 per cent ahead of last year. Douglas county, which started with a fine record through the first five months of the year, is not catching up quickly as highway deaths mount.

All traffic agencies are stressing the defensive driving technique of "not counting on the other driver to make up for your mistakes." Roseburg Police Chief John Truett had these words of advice to reduce accidents: Obey all laws, be courteous, be patient, keep a safe distance between cars, drive at reasonable speeds and keep seat belts fastened when the car is in motion.

Sgt. Robert Keefe of the Roseburg office of state police said he would have all available patrols out. He urged extreme caution on the highways. He also asked that swimmers be particularly careful in the water.

Welfare Center On Stand-By

Mrs. Dan (Irene) Blehm, director of activities at the Seventh-day Adventist Dorcas Welfare Center at 1515 Mill St., announced today that the Center will be closed from 3:30 p.m. today until 9:30 a.m. Wednesday, July 24.

Mrs. Blehm reported that the workers have been busy engaged in readying clothing and bedding for distribution to folks in need. She said that she was contacted before 6:00 last Wednesday morning by Mrs. John Beam, who lives next door to a house that was burned leaving three adults and seven children homeless, and that the Center was able to provide several changes of clothing and some bedding for the destitute family.

These things are done for anyone who needs them without regard to color or creed. She stated that they have many calls for clothing and bedding and for furniture. Anyone having some of these things especially children's clothing and furniture to contribute may bring them to the Center any Wednesday except the next two when many of the workers will be attending the annual Camp Meeting at Gladstone Park near Oregon City. In an emergency during the next two weeks, contact Elton Hansen evenings at OR 2-4239.

Kiwanis Club Hears 'Swedish' Speaker

A serious commentary on several aspects of the American way of life — spiced with appropriate comedy — was presented Tuesday to the Roseburg Kiwanis Club by Dr. Orlan Torlund of Gothenburg, Sweden.

The speaker was introduced to club members by Bob Feldkamp as a "Swedish scholar and educator, former mayor of Gothenburg, a member of the Swedish parliament, a former committee delegate to the United Nations and the 1948 winner of the Nobel Peace Prize."

After entertaining Kiwanians for about half an hour with humorous observations on a wide variety of subjects—including politics, religion, business, education, tourism, publicity and parental discipline—the speaker removed his wig and false mustache.

He was then reintroduced by Feldkamp as Mel Gustafson of Eugene, who has delivered similar talks—under various masquerades—at many gatherings and functions throughout the Northwest.

New Nazarene Minister, Family Arrive To Fill Roseburg Pulpit

A new minister and his family have arrived in Roseburg to take up pastoral duties at the First Church of the Nazarene on SE Douglas.

Here from a 10-year pastorate at Omaha, Neb., are the Rev. and Mrs. Edward J. Gallup and son, Edward Jr., who arrived in Roseburg this week. The Rev. Mr. Gallup will fill the pulpit vacated by the Rev. Robert Hempel Hempel, with his family, left late in May to accept a call to Spokane, Wash.

The new Nazarene Church minister was born in Springfield, Ill., and received his bachelor of theology degree from Olivet Nazarene College in Kankakee, Ill. He earned his bachelor of arts degree at the University of Omaha and also did graduate study at that institution for his master's degree. He served in World War II and was based in England with the 8th Air Force, flying missions over Germany.

The Rev. Mr. Gallup held his first pastorates in Missouri and from there went to Omaha, Neb., where he served for 10 years. Under his ministry the First Church of the Nazarene in Omaha was built, with a seating capacity of 750 persons and a church property valued at $300,000. He also served as church school board chairman of the Nebraska District.

The new pastor is the son of a former pastor of the denomination at Pontiac, Mich. During his father's pastorate in that city, Gallup met and married the former Mary Lou Hopper. Mrs. Gallup also attended Olivet Nazarene College and the University of Omaha, receiving her master's degree from the latter institution. She has begun work on her doctorate in the University of Nebraska. Her major fields are music and elementary education.

She has taught every grade, including teaching at the University of Omaha. For the past two years Mrs. Gallup served as principal of two downtown schools in Omaha. She also served on the immediate committee with the superintendent of Omaha schools in raising a $25 million bond issue to build new schools in the city. In September, Mrs. Gallup plans to open a curriculum-centered kindergarten in Roseburg, specializing in "reading readiness."

All members of the family report being very favorably impressed with Roseburg and its people and with the opportunities for fellowship and service in the community.

NEW ARRIVALS in Roseburg are the Rev. and Mrs. Edward J. Gallup and son, Edward Jr. The Rev. Mr. Gallup is the new minister of the First Church of the Nazarene and replaces the Rev. Robert Hempel who was called to a pastorate in Spokane. The family comes here from Omaha, Neb., from a 10-year ministry in that city. REUNITED — Mrs. Ella Mae Pilant of North Little Rock, Ark., laughs happily over a baby picture of her son Billy Roy Kratzmeyer of Roseburg, Ore. shown in center. Mrs. Pilant, on left, was reunited with her son July 1 for the first time in 38 years. Mrs. Pilant separated from her husband about 38 years ago. She allowed her son to be adopted and two years later heard he had died of scarlet fever. Far from dead, he grew up in Malvern, Ark., and now lives in Roseburg with his wife, Fay Allen, right, and their five children. (UPI Telephoto)

School For Custodial Employees Set At High School Next Week

A series of all-day training classes for custodial employees throughout the county has been scheduled for Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday of next week at the Roseburg High School.

Sponsored jointly by the county Department of Education, the state Department of Vocational Education and the Roseburg public schools, the classes will be open to both school custodians and any others working in custodial fields.

The fire protection section, under the direction of City Fire Marshal Stender, will cover all phases of fire prevention and use of extinguisher equipment.

Registration may be made at the time of the opening class on Monday, July 8, Kennedy said, emphasizing that the classes will be open to all interested persons.

The statement issued by the bar said "The Board of Governors of the Oregon State Bar has referred to its Committee on Minor Courts for study and preparation a measure to be presented to the next Oregon Legislature under which the State of Oregon would guarantee the independence of municipal judges in Oregon from improper pressure from other officials, such as that which apparently occurred at Seaside, Oregon."

The bar termed the action "grossly improper interference" with the judge's duties. Pysker said the police department was "demoralized" by the fines and lenient sentences handed down by Walters, a 70-year-old retired Washington attorney who moved to Seaside June 1, 1961, after 41 years of practice, mostly in Seattle.

"The police said they wouldn't risk their lives to make arrests only to have the accused turned loose with a slap on the wrist," he said. Pysker said the City Council voted unanimously to request Walters' resignation.

Walters said "No lawyer who has self-respect will sit on the bench and let anyone dictate, inferentially or directly, what he will assess as a penalty. That goes back to one of the bulwarks of democracy, the freedom of the judiciary."

Walters was appointed April 1, 1962, by Mayor E. E. Black, 71, a retired State Unemployment Compensation Department employee.

Suit Seeks End To Dunes City
EUGENE (UPI) — A suit has been filed in Lane County Circuit Court to dissolve the newly-incorporated city of Dunes south of Eugene.

The plaintiffs are four property owners who claim their property would be burdened by taxation without corresponding benefits. They seek a declaratory judgment to make the incorporation election, held June 11, and the resulting order of the county commissioners establishing the city "null and void of no effect."

Plaintiffs are C. Von Hickman of Eugene, Aaron Hunter, Globe, Ariz., Olive May, Santa Monica, Calif., and John May, St. Petersburg, Fla. They own together about 200 acres of Washink Lake and additional land on the outlet of Siltcoos Lake.

Named as defendants in the suit are the City of Dunes, the county commissioners, and the county assessor and tax collector. Hickman said Tuesday "in our opinion there will be a federal park" and that the main reason for the establishment of the city was to stop a national seashore. He said the move is too late to do that.

Adventists Appoint New Area Pastor
The Seventh-day Adventist churches in Sutherlin and Yoncalla now have a new pastor, Elmer Unterseher, who comes to the area from a four-year pastorate in the Cottage Grove area. Unterseher replaces the former pastor, Ben Evans, who died suddenly several months ago. With his wife and two children, Randall Leon, 6, and Marla Joy, 8-months-old, Unterseher has taken up residence in Sutherlin.

Mr. and Mrs. Unterseher are both graduates of Walla Walla College at College Place, Wash. He received his master's degree in religion at the Seventh-day Adventist Theological Seminary in Washington, D.C.

Seminary Student Must Lose Weight
ST. LOUIS, Mo. (UPI)—A minister with the weight of a congregation on his shoulders shouldn't have too much weight on his frame, so seminary officials suspended 419-pound Michael Hughes.

The 20-year-old seminarian was suspended from St. Paul's College at Concordia, Mo., where he was studying to be a Lutheran minister and was told to trim off some of his 419 pounds. Hughes went from the seminary to Faith Hospital in St. Louis two weeks ago to spend six weeks lopping off the excess pounds. So far, he reported Monday, he has lost 25 pounds. "I haven't had a potato in about two weeks," he said. Hughes said college officials told him he was being suspended "for my own benefit."

"They felt it was a poor investment for the church if I continued at my weight," he said. "I might not last as long or do as good a job. A pastor has got to be in good physical condition." Hughes, who is 6 feet 2, has been heavy most of his life. But his weight problem did not become acute until last year when he gained 90 pounds. He said officials at the school told him he would be readmitted if he gets down to 200 or 225 pounds, which he says he is determined to do.

Foresters Criticize Training Program

The Umpqua chapter of the Society of American Foresters issued a statement today critical of a forestry training program announced by the U.S. Department of Health, Education and Welfare.

A press release from Washington last Saturday reported that 20 unemployed persons would be trained as foresters during an Oregon training session.

Donald Brown, Glade, chapter chairman, said the governmental announcement "signifies the entrance of the federal government into a subsidization of professional forestry education. In this case, the 37 weeks of training will be conducted under the 'manpower development and training act' at Eugene Technical Vocational School."

"Forestry educators are concerned with the effect that such a program will have upon undergraduates in accredited forestry schools for obtaining summer employment," Brown stated. "Heretofore, such opportunities have not only helped these students in a financial way, but have actually been a prerequisite for graduation from such schools as Oregon State University. The experience gained in sub-professional jobs by an undergraduate in forestry not only stands him in good stead through his working career, but also assists the various schools in shaping the particular specialty of a forestry graduate in the fields of forest management, forest engineering and forest products," he added.

Union Leaders Urge Petition Rejection

PORTLAND (UPI)— Executive officers of the Oregon AFL-CIO are urging union members not to sign petitions to refer the 1963 legislature's $60 million tax increase measure.

State AFL-CIO President J. D. McDonald and Executive Secretary James T. Marr said today that while the new law "violates in some measure the historic approach of progressive taxation in Oregon, it has a number of basic advantages."

They said they liked the tax credit which replaces the former personal dependency deductions, and favor the narrow range of progress in the rate structure as a step forward.

Both said they felt the new law was "far more advantageous to families" than either a sales tax or a gross income tax. A petition to refer the tax bill has been filed, and a special election will be held if 23,185 persons sign the petitions.

Planning Commission Recommends Revision Of Roseburg Fire Zones

The Roseburg Planning Commission has recommended that the City Council approve a proposed revision of city fire zones.

Their action stems from recommendations made by administrative leaders urging re-evaluation and re-establishment of fire zones.

A principle effort of the proposal would be to eliminate Diamond Lake Blvd. and the general area from the alley between SE Mill and SE Pine to SE Fullerton St. from the fire zone 1 classification.

Fire Marshal Leonard E. Stender points out that the present fire zone 1 covers Diamond Lake Blvd. and other areas which are predominantly residential, low value business or areas not presently built up. Fire zone 1 requirements are presently too severe in these areas, causing hardships with respect to expense, types of construction, floor areas and occupancy types.

Stender pointed out that the purpose of a zone 1 is to cover only "high value" and heavily industrialized areas.

The area to be cut out of the fire zone 1 would be re-established as fire zone 2. The change is expected to be beneficial to properties in new zone 2 area. The zone will probably encourage more building development in that area, city officials believe.

Scale Checkers Due
Weights and measures men of the Oregon Department of Agriculture will be in Roseburg Friday, July 12, for their annual testing of scales of bean growers, who pay pickers by weight.

The men will have their temporary testing station at the Dole Corporation, according to a department news release.

Bar Association Protests Firing Of City Judge
MCMINNVILLE (UPI) — The Oregon State Bar Tuesday protested the city of Seaside's recent discharge of a municipal judge. The bar said it would seek legislation to guarantee the independence of municipal judges.

The Bar's Board of Governors expressed the protest in a statement issued by Eugene E. Marsh, McMinnville, bar president. Maurice Pysker, mayor of Seaside, confirmed the resignation of Frank Walters had been received. He said John Black has been appointed in his place.

Marsh said the city officials apparently thought Walters "was not imposing stiff enough penalties." The statement issued by the bar said "The Board of Governors of the Oregon State Bar has referred to its Committee on Minor Courts for study and preparation a measure to be presented to the next Oregon Legislature under which the State of Oregon would guarantee the independence of municipal judges in Oregon from improper pressure from other officials, such as that which apparently occurred at Seaside, Oregon."
