

Government Defends Right To Investigate Cancer Drug—Krebiozen

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The government has defended its right to investigate the so-called cancer drug krebiozen and in the process revealed some of the information it had uncovered in its investigations.

The disclosures were included in a brief filed in the U. S. District Court in Chicago today in answer to a suit filed by Steven Durovic, developer of krebiozen. Durovic's suit asked for an order to halt inspections which he claimed constituted harassment by the Food and Drug Administration (FDA).

It also asked for access to reports submitted by federal inspectors who have conducted investigations of krebiozen, for an injunction preventing the inspectors from making any statements discrediting Durovic or krebiozen, and for return of a photograph taken by the inspectors during an investigation of the Promak Laboratories in Chicago where krebiozen is made.

In Chicago, U.S. District Court Judge Julius Hoffman said to issue a preliminary injunction against the FDA and dismissed the petition without prejudice. He said the Durovic attorneys were prepared to argue the case and that the issue would therefore have to follow regular court procedure and be heard later this month.

U.S. Asst. Atty. Thomas James said, "I want it understood the government is conducting an investigation and the investigation

SETS DRAFT CALL.

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Defense Department set the September draft call this week at 12,000 men, the same quota set for August.

The September - August draft calls are the highest since 15,000 were inducted near the end of the Berlin crisis in January, 1962.

The developers of krebiozen claim it is made from a yellowish-white powder extracted from the blood of a horse. This powder is dissolved in mineral oil and the combination is put into a glass ampule which holds one cubic centimeter.

The government brief said investigators learned that Promak Laboratories had purchased 1 1/2 million ampules of the type used as containers for the drug. But a check on the number of horses killed indicated Promak Laboratories had received enough powder to fill only about 522,500 of the ampules, at the most.

Some of the powder substance was obtained from horses killed in Argentina and some of it from horses at Rockford, Ill. The blood of the horses killed at Rockford was used to prepare two batches of the powder in the Ken-L Ration Division of the Quaker Oats Co. in 1959 and 1960, the brief said. The division makes dog food.

"The conditions of pre-treatment inspection of the horses, of injecting the animals, of selection of animals for bleeding, of bleeding, and of handling the blood and plasma met none of the basic requirements of current good manufacturing practice," the government brief said.
