Sheriff's Office Roundup Nets 47 Curfew Violators

A sweeping roundup of juvenile curfew violators was carried out early Saturday morning by the Douglas County Sheriff's Department and resulted in 47 youths ranging in ages from 12 to 17 being turned over to the county juvenile authorities.

Douglas County Juvenile Officer Julian Helleck said the move by the sheriff's department brought into focus the facts that (1) parents were advised they can be held responsible for violations of the curfew law by their children, and (2) action can be taken against the juveniles themselves for such violations.

Close Watch Planned

Sheriff Ira C. Byrd, who conducted the roundup made by eight regular deputies and 22 reserves, said the sheriff's department plans continued close surveillance of the curfew situation.

The roundup began at 12:30 a.m. when the sheriff's deputies converged on a restaurant in north Roseburg and took a number of curfew violators to the sheriff's office for questioning by the juvenile authorities.

"We then got wind of a fight in the vicinity of the Riversdale Grange, so we headed out there," Byrd said. "When we arrived there were about 100 cars out there."

Byrd said he took one 16-year-old boy to a hospital to be treated for a cut on the head reportedly received when he was struck with a bottle. The youth was not seriously injured.

Several carloads of youths were taken to the sheriff's office from that location, Byrd said.

The next move was to check a drive-in theater at 3:30 a.m., where several additional curfew violators were picked up and turned over to the juvenile authorities.

The curfew law states basically that no one under the age of 18 shall be out after midnight unless accompanied by his parent or an adult designated by parents as a guardian.

Helleck said that in addition to the curfew violations, two youths were discovered to have taken a relatives' car without permission and used it Saturday night.

Parents of the majority of youths involved were called to the sheriff's office to take their youngsters home.

"Our first objective," Helleck said, "was to discover whether or not the minors had their parents' permission to be out after midnight. Parents were made cognizent of the fact they do not have the right to authorize their children to violate the curfew law, and that if found at fault, they can be taken to court for authorizing such violations.

"We also made some of the parents realize they do not always know the whereabouts of their children," he said. "Several of the parents were very surprised to learn their children were not where they had told them they would be.

"We're hoping this move will create closer supervision on the part of the parents," he concluded.

Wirtz Effort Brings Hope To Rail Issue

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Labor Secretary W. Willard Wirtz' last-ditch effort to settle the nation's railroad dispute was credited today with improving chances of avoiding a nationwide strike.

Sources close to the long and fruitless negotiations said the odds still "are about 80-1 against acceptance" of Wirtz' proposals.

"But they were a million to one against reaching a settlement before, so there definitely has been improvement in the sitation," one party said.

Wirtz proposed Friday that both sides agree to engage in binding negotiations for 20 days with Assitant Labor Secretary James Reynolds sitting in as sort of an arbitrator.

Would Direct Talks

Reynolds would be authorized to prescribe procedures to insure final settlement of the two major issues in the dispute—role of firemen on diesels and makeup of track crews.

Before hearing Wirtz' plan for breaking the deadlock in the so-called "featherbedding" dispute, union and management spokesmen indicated there had been no change in their positions. Afterwards, a union leader said Wirtz' idea would have to be studied before the unions made any comment.

The railroads have said they will put job-eliminating and pay scale changes into effect at 12:01 a.m., EDT, Thursday, and the five operating railroad brotherhoods representing 200,000 workers have promised to strike when they do.

Requests Reply

Wirtz proposed that the 20 days of negotiations confined to the two main issues begin on Sunday, and he asked for a reply from both sides by 4 p.m. Sunday.

If they do not accept, Wirtz said, he will make his final report Monday to President Kennedy. The President has indicated he will react by asking Cengress to pass legislation to prevent a railroad strike from paralyzing a large part of the nation's economy.

Senate Group Visits Dunes

PORTLAND (UPI)—Five members of the Senate Public Lands Subcommittee and Rep. Robert Duncan, D-Ore., visited the site of the proposed Oregon Dunes National Seashore today.

Chairman Alan Bible, D-Nev., led the group. He said the trip was for field inspection and no hearings would be held at this time.

Accompanying Bible were Sens. Ernest Gruening, D-Alaska; Quentin Burdick, D-N.D.; Len Jordan, R-Idaho and Milward Simpson, R-Wyo.

Bible said the visit was to permit the group to "make a visual inspection of the dunes and the various boundaries proposed."

He said none of the five senators had seen the area before.

He said hearings in the Senate on the bill proposed by Sen. Maurine Neuberger, D-Ore., have been completed.

Rep. Robert Duncan has introduced a similar bill in the House. He said the Oregon delegation will definitely come to an agreement on the proposals. His bill would provide for a smaller area than the Neuberger bill.

Peking Gets New Rebuke From Russ

MOSCOW (UPI) — High Soviet and Red Chinese officials today held their first negotiating session in what appeared to be a near-hopeless effort to bridge the gulf splitting the world Communist movement into two rival camps.

Even as the top-level Communist ideologists met in secrecy at the gray stone headquarters of the Communist Central Committee, the Kremlin delivered a new indirect rebuke to Peking by publishing a peace message from President Kennedy to Premier Nikita Khrushchev.

The message expressed thanks to Khrushchev for the Soviet leader's 4th of July congratulations and told him, "The world has long passed that time when conflict can be the solution to international problems."

The pointed publication of Kennedy's message by the Soviet Tass news agency was seen as an indication of warming relations between Moscow and Washington as Red China was pulling away from its Soviet former ideological partner.

Reliable informants said the two negotiation delegations — led by Soviet Presidium member Mikhail Suslov and Teng-Hsiao Ping, secretary general of the Chinese Communist party — confined their meeting today to an exchange of position papers.

The exact contents of the documents exchanged was not disclosed. But the substance of the conflicting Moscow and Peking positions has been clearly exposed in recent weeks.

In a June 14 letter to the Kremlin, the Chinese Communists sharply condemned the idea of peaceful coexistence with the West, as advocated by the Russians. They denied the possibility of avoiding war as long as "imperialism," personified in their eyes by Kennedy, continues to exist.

Mass Hearing Follows New Race Incident

BALTIMORE, Md. (UPI) — Seventy out of 283 demonstrators, including leading religious leaders, today still face court action in connection with an Independence Day attempt to integrate a suburban amusement park.

The bulk of the group was processed Friday night during a four hour hearing before Baltimore County police magistrate John Serio. All pleaded innocent to charges of trespassing and/or disorderly conduct and requested jury trials.

Serio, holding the marathon hearing in the Woodlawn police station, granted their request and released them in the custody of their lawyers. No date was set for the cases to be heard in the Baltimore County Circuit Court.

Hold Prayer Meeting

While the demonstrators jammed the hearing room, their friends and sympatizers outside held a prayer meeting on the sidewalk, sang freedom songs and cheered as each group left the police station. Others exchanged addresses or composed new civil rights songs. About 200 white spectators silently watched.

Local demonstrators also discussed plans for another attempt to desegregate the Gwynne Oak Amusement Park despite the large scale arrests on the Fourth of July.

Three chartered buses took most of the demonstrators back to New York or Philadelphia following the hearing. The group, predominantly white, had gathered Thursday before the amusement park to protest its policy of white-only admittance.

GOP Assails Cuban Policy

WASHINGTON (UPI) —Republicans kept pressure on the administration today for stronger action on Cuba despite assurances from the State Department that further anti-Castro steps are planned.

Sens. Gordon Allott, R-Colo., and Jack Miller, R-Iowa, members of a group of Republicans who feel Cuba is one of the GOP's best 1964 campaign issues, continued the attack on what they believe is a weak anti-Communist policy in Cuba by President Kennedy.

The criticism followed a State Department announcement that the United States intended to take additional steps of its own and would seek extended action by the Organization of American States (OAS) "which will in fact further isolate Cuba."

Department Spokesman Richard I. Phillips said the United States will continue "vigorous efforts" by way of diplomatic channels to reduce free world shipping to Cuba, which has increased recently, and will enforce vigorously U.S. shipping regulations against Cuba.

But Phillips did not say what other steps would be taken.

Allott said in a radio-Television interview with Miller that economic and diplomatic pressures on Cuba are only a "policy of containment and a very, very weak policy of containment at that."

Tacoma Man Drowns

NEWPORT (UPI) — Robert Trent, 41, of Tacoma drowned while swimming in the surf at Beverly Beach, six miles north of here, Friday evening.

His body was recovered by Coast Guard personnel.

A companion, Geraldine Maples, 29, also of Tacoma, was taken to Pacific Community Hospital for treatment of shock. Her condition was described as good today.

Pro-Peronist Bid To Delay Vote Refused

BUENOS AIRES (UPI) — The Argentine government tightened security measures today against possible violent reaction by pro-Peronists to the cabinet's refusal to postpone Sunday's presidential election.

The military cabinet, in a meeting that ended shortly after the midnight deadline for campaigning, rejected a last-minute request from pro-Peronists that the election be put off for a week.

The request came from the National Popular Front, a coalition of the Peronist Popular Union and the radical intransigents of deposed President Arturo Frondizi, and from the 62 Peronist unions in the General Labor Confederation (CGT).

The confederation, backed by the Communists, already had called a general strike for July 12 to protest the elections. Both the Popular Front and the unions have ordered their followers to cast blank ballots as another form of protest. Voting is compulsory in Argentina.

A communique issued after the cabinet meeting, summoned by President Jose Maria Guido, announced an apparent amnesty to placate the Peronist forces in view of the rejection of their demand for postponement of the elections.

The communique said the government next week would "resolve with generous spirit the situation of the trade union and political prisoners under the state of siege laws." Most of the prisoners are reported to be Peronists, or followers of former dictator Juan D. Peron.

The Yoncalla Saddle Club is glowing today in the wake of the most successful Yoncalla Amateur Rodeo in its history.

Although the Friday crowds weren't as big as the 4th of July turnout of 3,000, it was still big enough to give the rodeo the biggest year in its 17-year history, reports correspondent Mrs. George Edes.

Because of the solid success of the North Douglas County event, the club is already making plans for improving the rodeo grounds with such things as new bleachers.

The spotlight as the rodeo ended shone on a Washington cowboy named Dave Elford. With his outstanding showing in the bareback bronc riding and bull riding events, he walked off with $335.50 for the two days.

No Added Money Needed In Budget

The city of Drain will again carry on its operation without having to call for an added amount outside the 6 per cent limitation from the voters.

The total expenditures estimated are $54,565.28, of which $21,967.80 is in the general fund.

Total receipts, other than taxation, are estimated at $30,736. This means the amount necessary to balance the budget is $23,407.06. The amount inside the 6 per cent limitation is $7,459.28. The $16,370 not subject to the 6 per cent limitation is a five-year, 22-mill levy already approved by voters.

Tabletop From Missing Fishing Ship Is Found

MIAMI (UPI)—A tabletop from the fishing ship Sno' Boy, missing with 40 men aboard, has been found floating south of Jamaica, the Coast Guard said today.

The Sno' Boy has been missing since Tuesday. Earlier reports said 55 persons were aboard the 63-foot craft, but the Coast Guard said today it has verified that only 40 persons were aboard the $25,000 vessel.

Trailers Whip, Cause Mishaps

Whipping trailers which caused the vehicles towing them to go out of control were responsible for two accidents in Douglas County Friday afternoon, the state police reported today.

The first occurred on U.S. Interstate Highway 5 a mile south of Curtin at 1:40 p.m. State police said a pickup driven by Mrs. Relica Regina Balentine, 40, of Downey, Calif., was pulling a house trailer when the trailer began to whip, causing the operator of the pickup to lose control and drive into the ditch.

Her husband, Royce, 42, received a broken arm. Their two sons, Glen and Brad, were not injured.

The second accident occurred at 5:15 p.m. on Highway 99 BR three miles south of Roseburg when a car driven by James Michael Harris, 17, of 364 W. Lilburn, Roseburg, was towing a sawdust trailer and the trailer started swerving, causing the operator of the car to lose control.

The trailer then whipped out into the other lane of traffic and struck a car driven by George Madison May, 40, also of Roseburg, state police said. The May car went out of control and skidded into the ditch. There were no injuries.

Five West Virginia residents were killed when their car slammed into the side of a truck at another intersection at Mechanicsburg, Ohio. A head-on collision near Holbrook, Ariz., claimed five more lives.

The breakdown:

Girl Dragged To Death

PENDLETON (UPI) — An 8-year-old Pendleton girl, Madeline Cyd Maloney, was dragged to death Saturday night by a shying horse.

The girl, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Maloney of Pendleton, was attempting to mount the horse when it shied and started running.

She was caught in a rope, according to Umatilla County Sheriff's deputies.

Woman Survivor Of Plane Crash Rescued After Six-Day Ordeal On Desolate Mesa

GRANTS, N.M. (UPI) — A 100-pound Van Nuys, Calif., woman who bore up under grief, pain, hunger and thirst for six days and nights on a high, dry mountain mesa was on the mend today with a speed that amazed doctors in this western New Mexico town.

Mrs. Frances Tweed, 47, was bruised and battered in the plane crash which killed her husband, Wendell, 43, last Saturday on a 7,100-foot-high mesa in the Zuni Mountains, only six miles west of Grants.

But she suffered no broken bones or dangerous injury. And when rescue came Friday after nearly a week on the desolate mesa, she was composed and rational.

Mrs. Tweed, a slight, dark-haired San Fernando Valley medical technician, gulped some water and fruit juice, and nibbled on fruit while she gave her rescuers an account of her ordeal. Then she walked on badly burned feet to a helicopter which rushed her in four minutes to Cibola General Hospital at Grants.

Doctors found her in good condition, though dehydrated and famished, and predicted a quick recovery.

Return From Vacation

The Tweeds, flying back to Van Nuys from a vacation in Des Moines, Iowa, stopped at Albuquerque for fuel last Saturday. Then they took off for Prescott, Ariz.

Mrs. Tweed said that 80 miles west of Albuquerque, over the Zuni range, the little two-seat Globe Swift began losing altitude.

Tweed, a research engineer for Marquardt Aviation Co. at Van Nuys and an experienced pilot, was at the controls.

The plane overshot a clearing in a landing attempt and crashed into the tops of a stand of trees 45 feet high.

Tweed recovered enough after the crash to walk around and talk about what had happened. But four or five hours later he suddenly complained of a terrible headache and collapsed. He lapsed into a coma and died before nightfall.

Wraps Husband's Body

Mrs. Tweed took a sheet from the luggage and wrapped her husband's body in it. She covered the body with branches.

She unfolded air route maps and spelled out "SOS" with them in letters 10 feet high on the ground near the wrecked plane. During the daylight hours for the next five days, she watched the sky constantly for search planes.

The Civil Air Patrol launched an air search for the Tweeds on Tuesday. By Thursday, 20 planes were searching.

CAP 1st Lt. I. W. Boles of Alamogordo, N.M., and observer Cecil B. Thomas of Albuquerque spotted the SOS and the wreckage on the mesa Friday afternoon. Mrs. Tweed waved a scarf to them. Boles radioed the news to Grants.

It took two hours for a ground party to make its way to the top of the mesa and find her.

ELECTION TIME AGAIN — Posters for the Sunday presidential elections in Buenos Aires, Argentina, attract the attention of a few passers-by. At left is a poster of the People's Radical Party, whose candidate, Dr. Arturo Illia, is one of the favorites. Former Argentine Dictator Juan Peron in Madrid said the elections in which some pro-Peronist electors were disqualified by the government, were a "big farce." He predicted the masses would have to resort to insurrection. (UPI Telephoto)

Campus Press Used To Print Bogus Bills

HAYWARD, Calif. (UPI)—One of the biggest counterfeiting cases in U.S. history spread to Alameda State College Friday when a suspect told authorities he printed about $4 million in bogus bills on a school printing press.

Police said the suspect, Donald J. Carothers, 21, a press operator, made the admission shortly after being arrested. He was the fourth suspect to be picked up by Secret Service agents and local police.

Five more men were sought in connection with the operation, which Secret Service area chief Tom Hanson called the largest in the history of the service.

Agents already have recovered some $2.4 million dollars in counterfeit money printed at the school. Hanson said another $500,000 in bogus money is somewhere in the San Francisco area.

Carothers told police he had a key to the campus press "to work at night on overtime jobs."

Dr. Fred Harcleroad, the college president, expressed shock when told the bills were printed on the campus.

"No one at the college had any knowledge or indication that anyone or any facility on the campus was being used for other than normal use," he said.

Harcleroad described Carothers as "a nice young fellow" and "a hard worker."

Another college employe was arrested Thursday in connection with the case. He is Eugene Allen, 36, a laboratory technician. Allen, Guy J. Smith, 29, Oakland, Calif., and Joe Memoli, 40, also of Oakland, were arraigned Friday in San Francisco before U.S. Commissioner Donald H. Constine.

Secret Service agents found plates and negatives, used in the printing of the phony money, in Allen's possession.

The bills were printed in $1 to $50 denominations and were described by agents as "near perfect."

None of the four men arrested so far have police records, but investigators said the five men being sought were well known to the law.
