

Here's Head-To-Toe Look At New Women's Fashions For Fall Wear

NEW YORK (UPI)—New York fashion designers have concluded the showings of their fall and winter collections for the visiting press. Now they can sit back and watch what Paris couturiers have in mind for the new season. Paris shows begin July 22.

The New York shows for the more than 200 editors who make a semi-annual trek to town (in July to see summer clothes, January to see winter clothes) ended Tuesday night with a group showing by Norman Norell, Jane Derby, John Moore, and Fernando Sarri.

As the New York ready-to-wear industry plans it, here head-to-toe is how a woman will shape up for fall.

Silhouette: Narrow for both day and evening. No clutter. More accent on fabric, the bulky tweeds, the long-haired mohairs, the deep pile wools, the textured silks and blends calling for simple lines rather than gee-gaw decor.

Coiffures: Hair smooth, straight, just below ear tip length often puffed through the back of the crown. At Norell's show, the models wore their hair combed back off their face and in deep finger waves running across the head. But at other shows, the accent was on the smooth "do" with the part—either center or side—making a return.

Hats: A melange of shapes, but the tall crown is featured in most of them. No tiny pill boxes. To go with the country casual that has taken over in suits and coats, milliners produced the slouch hat, a la Greta Garbo, often tied under the chin, the derby, and the swagger with a dashing, sideswept brim.

Neckline: Much of the collarless, rounded neckline on dresses. Collars on coats and suits lie flat. Some muffling up, however, against winter chill in a few collections—such as at Monte Sano & Pruzan's, where heads were swathed in fur hoods, or at Pauline Trigere's where the "cache cache" hid the whole neck and most of the face except nose and eyes. The "cache cache" is a button-on stole of the same fabric as suit or coat.

Sleeves: Easy fitting through the upper part of the body in most cases. Figure outlined in some collections by the bias cut of the fabric. A trend to widened sleevelessness running right through the collections, especially with dresses under jackets or coats. The wrist-long, tight sleeve, a favorite for late day and evening clothes.

Waistline: Undecided, wandering all over the midsection, sometimes placed high under the bosom, sometimes ignored altogether, sometimes moved down around the hips through seams or low-placed belts. Or the waistline settles down in front, but is ignored at the back, giving a straight line from collar to hem at the back.

Hemline: Just covering the kneecap for day. For evening, more floor length dinner gowns and formals than in many seasons. Floor length at-home fashions abound, in glamour togs skirted, culotte legged, or slim trousers.

Footwear: A boot kick the likes of which you've never seen. The boots go with everything from daytime walking skirt lengths right on into evening for wear with crepes, brocades, lames, or jeweled fabrics. Boot heights range through thigh-high (almost as high as a fisherman's wading boot), knee-high, mid-calf, and ankle length. That tallest of the boots has back lacing, but many are of suede or kid pull-on types. The evening ones are in brocades, jet head covered, or a more prosaic heavy silk. Boot heels, like heights, come in high, middle and low, and in many shapes—curved or straight, stacked (several layers of leather), chunky or thin. Look also for the one or two-lace oxford slipper to go with the country casual, and for cable knit stockings.

Former Glendale Folks Return From Residence In Montana

By MRS. GERALD B. FOX

Mr. and Mrs. Tom Johns, who have moved from Glendale to Livingston, Mont., have returned and are now living in their old home on Windy Creek Road. Johns is employed in logging operations near Ashland.

Mrs. Blair is well known in Glendale, living here during her youth and graduating from the Glendale high school. Her husband worked at the SP depot here in the 1920's.

VISIT YUGOSLAVIA

BELGRADE (UPI) — Soviet Premier Nikita S. Khrushchev and Hungarian Premier Janos Kadar will visit Yugoslavia separately next month but their paths may cross, informed sources here said Thursday.

The sources said Khrushchev is expected to begin a two-week visit Aug. 20. Kadar is expected to arrive in Belgrade earlier.

There has been no official confirmation of either visit.

Community News Briefs

The eighth annual Wisconsin picnic will be held Sunday at Brownsville. Activities begin at 11 a.m. A potluck dinner is planned, or those attending may bring their own picnic lunch.

Mrs. R. D. Williams is back at her home here, following the last seven weeks in St. Louis, Mo., visiting her son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Wilbur McKee, and family. She attended the commencement exercises of high school for her grandson, Richard McKee, who later entered the Air Force for service.

Mr. and Mrs. H. N. Jacobson of this city have returned home, following a trip to Eugene and Corvallis to take their two granddaughters, Kathie Gremmel, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Doug Gremmel of Eugene, and Meg Jacobson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Jacobson of Minneapolis, Minn., who spent the last week visiting here. Meg will join her mother and family at the home of her maternal grandparents, Dr. and Mrs. V. S. Gearey, in Corvallis.

Mr. and Mrs. Nolan Bickford of this city have had as guests the latter's brother and sister-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Louis Purpich, of Crosby, Minn., who also visited Mr. and Mrs. Dennis Zaver in this city and with Mr. and Mrs. Conrad Lound and Mrs. Ed Lewis in Myrtle Creek. The Bickfords and Purpiches enjoyed a trip to Crater Lake also. The visitors left Thursday to continue their vacation trip.

direction

It's part of our tradition. Up means growth, success, progress. Up means wider perspectives, more potential. Up is exciting.

The strong and the healthy grow-upwards. Like the daily newspaper. Because it is so necessary in the world we live in...fills a vital function...is the most useful, effective medium of communication...for all these reasons the daily newspaper moves up in circulation and in advertising revenue.

Since 1940, daily newspaper circulation has risen from 41 million to more than 60 million, a growth rate almost double that of the adult population in the same years. Newspaper advertising revenue grew from $2 billion in 1949 to more than $3.6 billion in 1961.

Newspapers will keep moving up, staying on top as the advertiser's most effective medium.
