

Eclipse Offers World Rare, Beautiful Show

By United Press International
Astronomically speaking, the moon is a speck of dust. But today, in a rare and beautiful natural show, it will totally eclipse the blazing sun in a 60-mile-wide swath across Japan, the Atlantic, Canada and Maine.

In a jetliner flying more than seven miles above the earth, astronaut M. Scott Carpenter, Dr. Jocelyn Gill of the National Aeronautics and Space Administration (NASA) and other scientists will pursue the shadow of the moon as it flits across the face of the globe at about 1,650 miles per hour.

TO MAKE THEM WELCOME — Courtesy parking tickets, which drew a favorable reaction when they were introduced last year, are again being used this summer to make visitors from out of state welcome in Roseburg. The courtesy parking tickets were established as a program through the cooperation of the Chamber of Commerce and city of Roseburg. Meter maids, instead of putting tickets on cars from out of state, attach the welcome card which is good for free parking for the entire day.

Military Turns Down Negro Request For Demonstration

CAMBRIDGE, Md. (UPI)—Negro leaders said today they will resume integration demonstrations in this little Chesapeake Bay fishing town tonight and the National Guard said they would be stopped.

The racial strife moved toward a new climax as about 450 additional National Guard troops, including some guerrilla-trained units made a request to the National Guard for permission to demonstrate, but it was turned down by guard officers who have banned such action as part of the limited martial law imposed to keep order in the city.

They turned in a written request that they be permitted to demonstrate, said Brig. Gen. George Gelston, head of the guard units. "We cannot agree to any demonstrations in the town of Cambridge under present conditions."

But one Negro leader, Stanley Branche, emerged from the meeting to declare: "We told him we were going to demonstrate and he said he was going to stop us. We'll be in touch with him some more today."

Branche indicated, however, that the Negro leaders might be willing to discuss the situation with Maryland Atty. Gen. Thomas Finan who was reported en route to Cambridge.

The new troops which moved in today will serve eventually as relief forces for guardsmen ordered into Cambridge last week. However, the original detachment of 450 men will remain until the situation eases.

After four days of quiet, the Negro leaders were angered when it appeared that a state bar association mediation committee would not arrive in Cambridge today.

They also were upset by a statewide radio-television speech by Gov. J. Millard Tawes Friday night and said they were ready to renew the demonstrations which have led to fighting and shooting.

Gelston said the demonstrators would be arrested and made the arrangements to have his forces doubled in the wake of the threat of new demonstrations.

Local Police Arrest Man Wanted In Missouri
Kenneth Everett Huntsinger, 20, who had been staying at 1270 NE Stephens St. in Roseburg, was arrested by city police Friday afternoon on a warrant from Carthage, Mo.

Huntsinger was arrested about 6:30 p.m. Friday and later lodged in the Douglas County Jail. The warrant was for parole violation, city police said.

Sheriff George Hickman, from Carthage, Mo., advised the police department by phone Friday night that he will begin extradition proceedings against Huntsinger, the police report stated.

The last two periods will start on July 28 and Aug. 4, with camp due to close on Aug. 11.

Conviction Is Appealed
Fred E. Dickenson, Winston, has filed a written notice of appeal to Circuit Court from a District Court conviction for assault and battery.

Dickenson was convicted on trial June 18 of assaulting Harold Kirk of 3128 W. Gilbert St., operator of the J & J Garden Equipment at 2385 W. Harvard Blvd., on May 25.

He was sentenced to 30 days in jail and fined $200, but is free in $1,000 bail pending appeal.

GOING UP AGAIN — Carpenters at the site of the new Roseburg Seventh-day Adventist School began the job Friday of raising the framework of the school on which construction started about a month ago. Earlier Friday, supporting trusses on the framework gave way and the entire structure sagged to the ground. A crane here is shown lifting the trusses out of the tangle. Very little damage resulted from the mishap. (News-Review photo by Chris)

Economic, Political Considerations Shaped JFK Decision To Use Tax Powers

WASHINGTON (UPI)—President Kennedy's decision to defend the dollar by taxing foreign investment was shaped by varied economic and political considerations that made the final judgment a delicate assignment.

Treasury Department technicians built up the case that finally convinced Kennedy this strategy offered the best hope for making some progress in the balance of payments problem. But top policy makers added it to the President's package only at the last minute.

Earlier in the week, there had been reports the President's message would not propose any radically new devices for closing the payments gap. And the so-called capital tax proposal came as a complete surprise to a good many officials who thought they were up on the latest developments in this area.

While reluctant to name names, administration sources indicated the idea came from the Treasury Department, but that it also was "worked over" by the President's close economic advisers.

The proposed tax—which would be levied on foreign securities sold in this country—is designed to ease the nagging balance of payments deficit which reached $2.2 billion in 1962 and probably will be higher this year.

Drains Gold Stocks
Such deficits result when U.S. citizens and the federal government spend more dollars over seas than foreigners spend in the United States. In past years, the deficit has caused a drain on the nation's gold stocks as foreign governments with dollar holdings cashed them in for gold.

The President's program was directed toward one of the most troublesome aspects of the payments problem—the loss of dollars to other countries with more attractive interest rates.

Kennedy noted that the outflow of long-term capital rose from $850 million in 1960 to $1.2 billion in 1962. He said this now was up to an annual rate of $1.5 billion.

The administration previously had imposed restrictions on foreign investments. It began to retreat from this position, however, as the problem became more serious.

"About the beginning of the year, the danger flags were flying," one source said, "and we knew something would have to be done before long."

The taxation approach was believed the most palatable of several alternatives.

One proposal, quickly discarded, would have had the United States "screen" loan applications and proposals to buy foreign securities. The idea was that the transaction would be disallowed if it aggravated the dollar deficit.

Enforcement Difficult
Administration sources said this approach was turned down because of enforcement difficulties and because it would suggest an unwarranted interference in the decision-making process on the market place.

Another more drastic possibility for stemming the flood of dollars from the U.S. capital market would be the raising of long-term interest rates to make them more competitive with overseas rates.

This never received serious consideration by administration policy makers because of its political and economic implications.

The Kennedy administration is firmly on record against raising long-term rates which would af-

Practice Bomb Lands In City

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—A U.S. Navy aircraft scored a direct hit on San Francisco Friday in an accidental skip-bombing run on Market Street.

The two-foot-long practice bomb which contained a small charge designed to give off a cloud of smoke on impact, landed in the middle of the crowded street at high noon.

It did not explode, but did manage to gouge a hole in the asphalt a foot wide and four inches deep before ricocheting in a 300-foot arc over a five-story building. It then struck a cornice on the top of the fourth floor of the Phoenix Building at Pine Street and tumbled to the concrete below, striking a Pacific Gas & Electric truck where three employees were eating their lunch.

Nobody was hurt. While San Francisco police cleared away the debris, embarrassed military officials sought to find out who had accidentally dropped the bomb.

Several hours later, the Navy finally identified the pilot of the AAA Skyhawk as Lt. R. A. Kiner, 32, Anaheim, Calif.

He returned to Crow's Landing in central California from where he thought was a routine practice mission unaware that he had lost one of his six practice bombs. The loss was discovered hours later after Kiner, a reservist, had left the field. He could not be reached immediately for comment.

Glendale Instructor Tenders Resignation
At the last Glendale School Board meeting, members accepted the resignation of Mrs. Emma Smith, sixth grade teacher and art teacher in the elementary school.

They authorized Mrs. Vera Kemp to work out tax offset figures for the budget, a task previously done by the county treasurer, according to Mrs. G. B. Fox, correspondent.

The Board awarded the contract to the Standard Oil Co. for furnishing gasoline for the school buses. The company held the contract the previous year as well.

Fuel oil bids were rejected because some of the bids were entered on the basis of cost at Glendale and others on cost at the point of distribution. Firms were asked to submit new bids, all on the basis of delivery at the school.

Smokers Risk Greater Chance Of Cancer Death
PORTLAND (UPI)—Those who smoke cigarettes heavily run 50 times the chance of dying from cancer of the lung as those who are not heavy smokers, the president of the American Cancer Society has predicted.

Dr. L. S. Ravdin, a renowned surgeon, told members of the Portland City Club Friday that he defines heavy smoking as consuming more than half a pack of cigarettes a day.

The doctor, who referred to cigarettes as "coffin nails," stressed that no patient has ever been cured of cancer by a patent medicine.

An increase in long-term interest rates also was rejected because of fears that it might trip the delicate balance of economic factors that currently have generated a healthy rate of business expansion this year.

California Complaint Faces Oakland Couple

Noted Magician Will Appear During Douglas County Fair
Mandrake, the Magician, will be the headline attraction of the big Illusions and Elations Stage Show scheduled for Wednesday through Saturday, Aug. 14-17 at the 1963 Douglas County Fair.

Fair Manager Bert Allenby said the world-renowned mind-reader, illusionist and escape artist will present a company of seven on the new grandstand stage.

He will feature the "Great Montyne," death-defying hazard balancer, several attractive assistants, and an instrumental group, with magic, comedy, suspense and music each evening at 8:30. The show will be presented as a free fair event.

Mandrake has played every major vaudeville theater in the United States and Canada, and many of America's leading hotels and night clubs, as well as producing his own TV shows. During his career, Mandrake has escaped from almost every type of restraint known, including handcuffs, leg irons, jails, wooden packing boxes and steel barrels. Another feature of his activities has found the illusionist driving cars through crowded city streets while blindfolded.

The celebrated master of the mysterious will introduce two entirely new illusions for the Douglas County Fair show, "The Enchanted Palace of the Queen of Hearts," and "The Lady of the Lantern," production of a girl inside a huge lantern. Also featured will be such Mandrake favorites as the "Chinese Million Dollar Mystery," the feats of thought-transference, miraculous escapes and comedy pick-pocket routines. Much of the suspense in the Douglas County Fair show will be provided by "The Great Montyne," as he performs dangerous feats of hand-balancing over a bed of 38 unburned, razor sharp, steel blades. Mandrake's production also promises beautiful girls, dancing, and live musical entertainment.

Picker Estimate Asked By S. Douglas Growers
Glendale and Azalea youths and adults who are interested in taking part in the Southern Douglas County bean harvest late in the summer are asked to contact Ralph Place, city mayor and local board member for the South Douglas Chamber of Commerce.

According to Mrs. Gerald Fox, correspondent, Place has been asked to furnish an estimate of the number of pickers available so that growers may make their plans accordingly. Transportation will be furnished, Place was assured by growers.

At this week's meeting of the Chamber, Place resigned his position as secretary. The position will be filled later, said Mrs. Fox.

Morford Gets Guilty Verdict, Death Penalty

RENO, Nev. (UPI)—Lester E. Morford III, Friday was found guilty of first degree murder and sentenced to die in the Nevada gas chamber for the fatal shooting of a 23-year-old Oregon man last August in Reno.

A three judge panel deliberated three hours before bringing in the verdict against the 19-year-old itinerant ranch hand.

Morford showed no emotion as Dist. Judge John Barrett read the sentence and set the execution date for the week of Sept. 23 at the state prison in Carson City. After the verdict was pronounced, Morford talked briefly with his parents, who live in Santa Rosa, Calif., and then lit a cigarette as he walked out of the Washoe County District courtroom.

The three judges deliberated three hours before reaching a decision. Morford had confessed the crime and it was the judges' duty to set the degree of guilt and fix the punishment.

Judge Barrett said the unanimous decision was reached after "total consideration of all evidence."

Defense counsel Stanley Brown said he "had nothing to say at this time."

Morford admitted he fatally shot Jack Foster, 23, Medford, Ore., after he kidnaped Foster and his wife of two days from a Reno motel Aug. 22. He forced the couple to drive around Lake Tahoe, then shot Foster and raped his widow twice before she was able to escape. Morford was captured a short time later about 40 miles east of Carson City in a gas station.

The defense had based its case on the fact that Morford was under the effects of the sniffing of one psychiatrist testified the youth did not know right from wrong at the time of the crime. However, the prosecution represented by Dist. Atty. William Ragio presented testimony from another psychiatrist who said Morford was fully aware of the chain of events.

Morford did not testify during the five day trial.

It was the second death penalty handed out this month in Reno. Previously Thomas Lee Bean, 18, was sentenced to die in the Nevada gas chamber for the torso slaying of British ski star Sonja McCaskie. Bean will be formally sentenced next Monday.

Jury Favors Defendant In Suit Over Damages
A Circuit Court trial jury has found in favor of the defendant Phyllis Candalaria in a suit brought against her by Elsie A. Perkins, plaintiff. The case was tried before Judge Don H. Sanders.

The plaintiff sought $25,000 general damages and $1,939.28 special damages as the result of auto accident injuries March 28, 1962, in Sutherland. She had alleged she was a passenger in a 1957 car which was parked on Umpqua Street across from the post office when the defendant's car struck the rear of the parked car.

MANDRAKE THE MAGICIAN, who appears here to have accidentally come across some of Lil' Abner's head-shrinking friend's secret potion, will appear at the Douglas County Fair Aug. 14-17. Mandrake will be featured in a free performance each evening at 8:30 as the headline attraction of the big Illusions and Elations Stage Show.
