CARNIVAL

"Jimmy's at that awkward age—old enough to have an allowance, but young enough to spend it on himself!"

Acting Governor Names Welfare Commissioner

SALEM (UPI) — Temporary Gov. Ben Musa Tuesday named Ralph W. Perry Sr., 65, a semi-retired Hood River orchardist, to the State Public Welfare Commission.

It is the first time since Gov. Mark Hatfield has been in office that a substitute governor has made an appointment to a state board or commission.

Musa, president of the Oregon Senate, has full powers when Hatfield is out of state.

The senate president said today he recalled that a temporary governor years ago had appointed a circuit judge, Sen. Walter J. Pearson, pardoned a murderer who was serving time in the Oregon penitentiary when he was temporary governor in 1960.

Hatfield, who is in Miami attending the National Governor's Conference, was unaware of today's appointment.

Warne Nunn, Hatfield's administrative assistant said he "wouldn't recognize Perry if he walked in the door."

"I think the governor will be real happy with this appointment," Musa said this morning.

He explained the naming of the new commissioner wasn't aimed at embarrassing Hatfield.

"I just wanted to add to the stature of that commission. I think I'll be complimented for doing a good job," Musa declared.

Musa recommended Perry.

Musa said he had known Perry for many years and he had recommended Hatfield appoint him after Roy Webster, also of Hood River, resigned from the commission last week.

Webster and Perry are neighbors in Hood River, which is a part of the senate district Musa represents. Both men are orchardists.

Perry was a member of the Hood River County Welfare Commission from 1936 until 1956, except for one two-year interval.

Perry's Appointment Lacked Mark's Okay

MIAMI, Fla. (UPI) — Oregon Gov. Mark Hatfield confirmed that the appointment of Ralph W. Perry Sr. to the State Welfare Commission today was made by Acting Gov. Ben Musa without his knowledge.

"I will be interested in learning what critical emergency existed which required Sen. Musa to take such action in violation of a gentleman's agreement which he voluntarily made at the beginning of his term," Hatfield said.

The governor indicated he and Musa had an informal agreement that Musa would make no major decisions while Hatfield was out of the state.

West Forgot His Partner

By OSWALD JACOBY
(Written For NEA)

There are so many good habits a bridge player can acquire it is a shame to find them picking up bad ones.

One of the worst is that of playing singles. West had all the aces, plus the queen of clubs and jack of diamonds so when South was mean enough to open the bidding in front of him West wasn't really disturbed.

South's queen won the trick and a heart lead fell to West's ace. Now West panicked and for some reason led his ace of clubs. When East could not trump the second club South showed his hand, conceding the last two aces.

Where did West go wrong? He failed to let his partner get into the act. West should have doubled one heart to ask East to bid. East would have obliged with two diamonds. West could have raised to four if necessary and there would have been no trouble making four, or even five, odd.

TODAY'S QUESTION

Instead of bidding six spades your partner goes to six diamonds over your five diamonds. What do you do?
