

Dear Abby!

Make Him Prove It!

— By ABIGAIL VANBUREN —

DEAR ABBY: Lloyd and I have been married five years. We have two children. I thought we were very happy until last week. A strange man telephoned me and told me that if my husband didn't stay away from his wife there would be trouble. When my husband came home I asked him point blank. He admitted that he and this married woman loved each other and had been seeing one another for a year. He said they were planning to get divorced and marry each other. Abby, Lloyd is 25 and she is 38! She has four children. Can this be love? Last night she and Lloyd sat and talked with me. They said they had decided to call it quits because of the children. Abby, they work together in the same plant, and I know they won't stop "loving" each other no matter what they say. Neither will I give up my job. What should I do?

BROKEN HEARTED at 23
DEAR BROKEN HEARTED: Assuming Lloyd and this woman were sincere in their promises to "call it quits," if they continue to work together, their good intentions won't last long. Tell Lloyd that you will believe that he means to "call it quits" when either HE or she quits the plant. Offer to move anywhere, but don't buy their story unless they are out of temptation's way.

DEAR ABBY: I am a woman who once weighed 230 pounds. I finally got down to 130. It took me almost a year, but I did it. I love myself this way, and I'll NEVER be fat again. What bothers me is people who say, "Oh, I like you better fat!" Or, "Somehow you don't seem the same. You seem to have lost something in your personality!" Abby, how can you get along with people like that?

DEAR THINNER: You don't "get along" with people like that. You try to get along without them. They'd miss a wart on the end of your nose if they had become accustomed to seeing it there. But would YOU?

DEAR ABBY: There is an elderly woman in our neighborhood who is driving everyone crazy. She is a dog-feeder. She makes her poor 72-year-old husband climb fences to feed other people's dogs that are cooped up in their own yards. We have two dogs that we feed ourselves, and we don't want anyone else feeding them. We are not alone in our complaints. The whole neighborhood is having trouble with these two nuts because of this. Isn't this a job for the police?

DOG OWNER
DEAR DOG OWNER: "Neighborhood trouble" is indeed a job for the police. But only after a warning visit has been made, without results.

DEAR ABBY: I read the letter from "Disgusted Husband" who complained because his wife had only an eighth grade education, and all she'd read in the newspaper was the funnies. He's lucky. My wife graduated from high school and asks me to EXPLAIN the funnies to her.

Everybody has a problem. What's yours? For a personal reply, write to Abby, Box 3365, Beverly Hills, Calif. Enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

South Wisely Refuses Ruff

By OSWALD JACOBY

West's four spades is known as a barriade bid. He wanted to make it as hard as possible for his opponents to find their best spot.

North doubled. He had good defense against spades and no desire to play 11 tricks anywhere, but South took the double out. Then North chose diamonds for trump. East won the trick opening with the ace, not the king, and promptly returned a low spade. He had four trumps and high hopes of beating the contract if he could persuade South to trump that low spade.

He would have succeeded in his purpose if South had trumped in but international Bobby Nall of Houston, who held the South cards, went into a long huddle and elected to discard a low club.

After West played a low spade Bobby won in dummy, drew trumps and conceded a trick to the ace of clubs.

Bobby reasoned as follows: "West would not jump to four spades with only three trumps so East has five spades only. East would not overcall with a five card suit headed by ace-nothing. Therefore he must hold the king also. Of course, I can trump the spade and make the hand if diamonds break."

Normal Temps Forecast

The five-day weather forecast, according to the Weather Bureau station at Roseburg airport, calls for temperatures averaging near normal for Western Oregon with no precipitation expected. Highs of 65 to 75 are expected along the coast, 70 to 80 in the northern interior and 80 to 90 in the southern interior. Lows will be in the 50's.
