

Bathing Suits, Water Skis Are Latest Wedding Attire

CINCINNATI, Ohio (UPI) — Fashion note: The latest in wedding attire is a white, one-piece bathing suit for the bride and black swim trunks for the groom.

"At least we don't have to worry about sweltering in a church," said one bridesmaid, attired in a yellow bathing suit and improving her suntan while serving as a member of the wedding party.

The occasion was "the world's first marriage on water skis,"

Crescent City Woman's Body Is Found On Slope

LA GRANDE (UPI) — The body of a 78-year-old California woman was found on the south slope of Mt. Emily about four miles north of here Sunday morning.

Dr. J. R. Sloop, medical investigator for Union County, said that Mrs. Daisy Tameris of Crescent City apparently suffered a heart attack Saturday afternoon after becoming lost in the area in the morning.

Mrs. Tameris, who was visiting relatives at La Grande, was picking huckleberries when she became lost.

John Rose of La Grande, a son-in-law, found the body. Searchers using bloodhounds had looked for her since Saturday afternoon.

which Sunday attracted more than 5,000 persons to the banks of Lake Como in the middle of the Coney Island amusement park.

The groom, Ray Shearer, 28, explained that he had been "through this church marriage stuff before and a water ski wedding sounded like loads of fun."

Tried Something Different
"After being married once in a church, I thought I'd try something different," said bride Barbara Engel, 24, a secretary when she's not water-skiing. Both are members of the park's "Water Ski-Ballers."

The Rev. James Teagarden, pastor of the Four Square Baptist Church and the only member of the official party not in a bathing suit, performed the first portion of the ceremony on a small lakeside dock, then hopped into an 18-foot motorboat.

"By the authority vested in me as a minister of the gospel of the state of Ohio . . ." he shouted into the microphone as the bride, groom, best man and matron of honor bounced along on their skis in the boat's wake.

All Wore Swim Suits
In addition to the bride and groom, the entire wedding party was bedecked in gaily colored bathing suits. The 11-year-old daughter of the Ski-Ballers coach opened the affair by circling the lake on skis and strewing flowers in the wedding couple's path. Another youngster followed, carrying a ring on a satin pillow.

The bride admitted before the ceremony that her mother "didn't think it was such a good idea because it's not solemn enough" and "dad won't say anything."

But park officials, beaming proudly at their success, suggested that the ceremony had worked out better than many church affairs.

As one spectator put it, "they've been wetted . . . 'til death do they part."

EAGLE AND FRIEND — The masonry eagle which was taken from the facade of a Portland bank when it was razed recently is shown in its place of honor in a booth at the Yoncalla Rodeo Grounds. It was unveiled to the community at Eagle Day festivities Saturday night. With it is the woman who wrote an entry in a state contest telling why Yoncalla should have the eagle. She is Mrs. June Bowman. The eagle will be given a more permanent place of honor in the Yoncalla City Hall later. (News-Review photo)

Chicken Barbecue, Dance Mark Yoncalla's Eagle Day Saturday

Several hundred people turned out Saturday evening in Yoncalla to honor one of its citizens and pay homage to a 75-pound concrete eagle.

The so-called Eagle Day celebration took place at the Yoncalla Rodeo Grounds. It included a big chicken barbecue and a dance afterwards.

Most of the attention, however, was focused on Mrs. June Bowman, whose literary efforts won the concrete emblem for the new city hall. The "prize talisman" for the Home of the Eagles, as Mrs. Bowman described it, was given the place of honor in a big booth at the rodeo grounds. It was flooded with a spotlight and backgrounded by an American flag.

many others for the efforts to win the masonry eagle in a state contest conducted by a Portland bank. She said the judges must have been swayed in their decision when they saw how many people from Yoncalla were interested in bringing it to the city.

But it was Mrs. Bowman's entry which won the eagle. In a prepared speech, Mrs. Bowman said the eagle would be given a place of honor at the new City Hall, as soon as the City Council can decide on the regal setting.

She said it will be a proud possession but an even prouder possession is the friendliness of the city. She said she has felt it in the years she has been there. "Friendliness must have been invented here," she concluded.
